Patricia Hearst Now Wanted As Criminal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A white woman, believed possibly to be Patricia Hearst, and two black men, offered $500 to rent a Hollywood apartment for 24 hours and one of the men lunged at the landlady with a knife when she refused, police reported today. (Also see stories, page 2.)

A dragnet for the 20-year-old heiress, now listed as armed and dangerous and liable to be shot if she resists, was spread over the metropolitan Los Angeles area after six members of the Symbionese Liberation Army were killed Friday.

A spokesman for the FBI said the Hollywood incident was one of a number of reports coming in from excited citizens about the whereabouts of Miss Hearst and that they had no evidence to link it directly to the wanted girl.

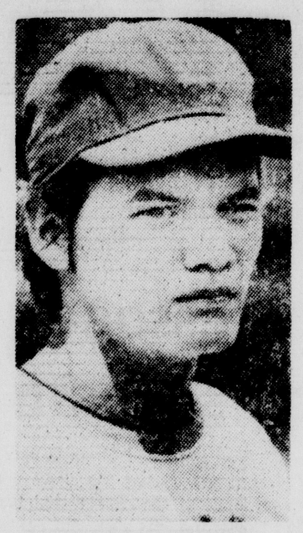
A report by the Los Angeles Police Department, however, listed the incident as "possible SLA connection."

An LAPD officer said the incident occurred around 9:30 last night at an apartment building on New Hampshire Avenue in the Hollywood area.

The report said the trio was carrying a shotgun, one of the men had a switchblade knife and that they "possibly" had hand guns. Miss Hearst was reported to have left the shoot-out house in a black area of the city with two black men hours before the gun battle Friday.

The report said the landlady told police that one of the men attacked her with a knife when she refused to rent the apartment for 24 hours and cut through the folds of her skirt. She was not injured.

The U. S. attorney's office was preparing to file a complaint today charging Miss Hearst and two known members of the SLA still at large with violations of federal laws pertaining to possession and use of automatic weapons.



TOM DEAN MATHEWS
Kidnaped by SLA members

William A. Sullivan, assistant director of the FBI, said Miss Hearst was the woman who leaned out the front window of a red and white Volkswagen van and opened fire with a .30-caliber carbine last Thursday afternoon, as SLA member William Harris struggled with a clerk at Mel's Sporting Goods Store in Inglewood. Tarris was accused of shoplifting a pair of socks.

"She is a federal fugitive and if she resists arrest she will be treated like any other federal fugitive," Sullivan said. She is considered armed and dangerous, he said, and if located she will be told to surrender immediately. If she tries to shoot, he said, "we would undoubtedly shoot back."

The FBI said an agent who believes his life is endangered may open fire on a suspect.

A spokesman for the Hearst family in Hillsborough said the family was stunned and was "taking it very, very hard."

The FBI said formal complaints would be brought in San Francisco today charging Miss Hearst with violating federal laws against possession or use of machine guns.

Six persons, including David DeFreeze, 30, who as head of the SLA called himself "General Field Marshal Cinque," were killed in a shoot-out Friday night in Los Angeles. The sixth body, that of Camilla Hall, 29, was found yesterday.

Johnson said Miss Hearst told him last Thursday that: "They'll have to kill me before I go back."

"She told me she was with them—on their side," Johnson said.

He said Miss Hearst was wearing a pistol and wanted to

Battles Raging On Golan Heights

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Syrian and Israeli forces today fought artillery, tank and armor battles on Mount Hermon and along the the 40-mile Golan Heights front for the 70th day while Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger continued his shuttle diplomacy in the search for a formula to separate the two armies.

Even while Kissinger conferred in Damascus with President Hafez Assad in what could be the final stages of his three-week peace-seeking mission, Palestinians staged a memorial service for three guerrillas who died in an attack on an Israeli schoolhouse at Maalot last Wednesday. A speaker's platform collapsed under Nayet Hawatmeh, leader of the Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, and part of the crowd fled in panic when guerrillas started shooting in the air.

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Golda Meir and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan told the Knesset (Parliament) that Israel must intensify its war against Arab guerrillas following the massacre at Maalot in which 21 school children were among 30 persons killed.

"Fierce fighting is going on in large sectors of the front since this morning," a Syrian military communique said an hour after Kissinger's arrival in Damascus on his seventh shuttle trip.

"Units of tanks, field artillery and rockets as well as various types of mortars are taking part in the fighting," the Syrians said. They claimed undetermined "losses" on the Israeli side in the 70th consecutive day of fighting on the Heights.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv reported no casualties.

Lebanon said the Golan fighting spilled over into its territory when an Israeli patrol entered Lebanon in the foothills of Mount Hermon. The Beirut Defense Ministry said Lebanese army artillery fired on the patrol and the Israelis fired back at a Lebanese army post but reported no casualties.

No new Israeli reprisals against Palestinian refugee camps in Lebanon were reported today after three days of air and sea raids. An Arab League meeting in Cairo said Lebanon's defenses must be bolstered by other Arab states.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi said at the opening of the Cairo parley that the Israeli reprisals were aggressions against Lebanon that the rest of the Arab world "does not take lightly" but he specified no counter-action.

UPI diplomatic correspondent K.C. Thaler reported from London that Kremlin leaders are seeking a meeting with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to prevent him from falling farther and faster under American influence.

In Moscow, Arab diplomatic sources said that Libya, one of the most militant Arab countries, had secured a Soviet arms deal during the visit of Libyan Premier Abdel Salam Jalloud.

Jerusalem residents celebrated the seventh anniversary of the city's reunification in the 1967 Six-Day war. The government stepped up security with extra army patrols through the old Walled City to guard against Arab guerrilla attacks.

Chicago Bank Boosts Rates

CHICAGO (UPI) — First National Bank of Chicago today boosted its interest rate for prime business loans—those to large, top-rated borrowers — to a record 11 ¾ per cent from 11.40 per cent, effective tomorrow.

Other banks still are moving to the 11 ½ per cent base rate which became general Friday when the Big Three—Bank of America of San Francisco and First National City and Chase Manhattan of New York—raised rates ¼ point to that level, followed by numerous major banks around the country.

The prime rate has climbed swiftly from its mid-March level of 8 ¾ per cent and bankers generally expect it to peak around 12 per cent.

Hush Money Will Get A Hard Look

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee and a federal court get down to specifics this week in trying to interpret whether President Nixon meant to authorize payment of "hush money" to Watergate defendants and the burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

In addition, Nixon's role in an increase in milk price supports allegedly in exchange for hefty campaign contributions comes up again in a new complaint filed by a lawyer for consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

The impeachment panel tomorrow will listen to the tape recording of the crucial March 21, 1973, conversation between Nixon and John W. Dean III, his former counsel and now chief accuser. It was at that meeting, according to edited White House transcripts, that Nixon discussed raising $1 million to pay off Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt. A few hours later, according to a grand jury, Hunt received $75,000.

The White House has said the conversation is open to different interpretations and Nixon was really discussing only the possibility of buying Hunt's silence. The White House says it knows nothing of the payment.

District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell, who has already indicated that Nixon's national security powers may include the authority to order burglaries, was to hear oral arguments starting today on motions to dismiss conspiracy charges against six men who allegedly broke into the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding, the psychiatrist who treated the man who gave reporters the Pentagon Papers.

Blaze Guts Terra Linda Apartments

Fire raced through an unfinished apartment house in Terra Linda yesterday, causing an estimated $35,000 damage to the 12-unit building.

Three units were destroyed, and four were extensively damaged in the structure at 22 Los Ranchitos Road. It is owned by the Tarrant-Bell Properties of San Rafael.

Marin County fire investigators said they did not know what caused the blaze, which raged out of control for nearly one hour after it began shortly after 2 p.m.

The apartment complex was approximately 75 per cent completed. There were no furnishings in the building and no workers were at the job site when the fire began.

Nuclear Station Back In Service

SAN ONOFRE (UPI) — The San Onofre nuclear generating station was returned to service at full power today, Southern California Edison Co. announced.

The plant had been shut down since April 27 for maintenance work and repairs to equipment on the non-nuclear side of the facility.

Judge Rules Reinecke To Be Tried

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge refused today to dismiss perjury charges aganst Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke of California or to transfer his trial from Washington to the West Coast.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker said Reinecke had not provided sufficient evidence to support his charges that he had been improperly induced by special Watergate prosecutors to provide evidence that could be used against him in his trial, tentatively set to begin July 15.

Barrington rejected contentions by Reinecke and his lawyers that he could not receive a fair trial in the District of Columbia and that his defense would be too costly a financial burden if the trial were not moved to California.

The judge said that after considering evidence presented in court last week, he concluded that Watergate prosecutors had made "no promise of leniency" and said the evidence showed Reinecke had cooperated "at his own risk."

Parker also said it would not be "uniquely oppressive or burdensome" for Reinecke to be tried in Washington rather than in his home state.

Reinecke, a Republican candidate for governor in California's June 4 primary, is charged with lying before the Senate Judiciary Committee. His testimony was on coversations he had with former Attorney General John Mitchell about an offer by International Telephone and Telegraph Co. (ITT) to help finance the 1972 Republican National Convention.

Parker said he would not rule today on a third motion by Reinecke's lawyers that the three counts of lying before the Senate panel be dismissed.

TICKETS FOR 'JUBILEE' GOING FAST

Tickets for "Jubilee," San Rafael's Centennial musical, will be on sale at the door of San Rafael High School auditorium for performances tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday, according to Joan Paulson, ticket chairman.

Friday's closing performance is almost sold out, she said.

The show starts at 8 p.m. each day except Friday, when curtain time is at 8:30 p.m.

Tickets are also available through the Centennial office at San Rafael City Hall and at the gift shop at St. Raphael's Church.

HORSE'S ORDEAL

Upside Down In Ravine 8 Hours

A horse that fell upside down in a steep, watery ravine west of Novato last night was rescued after hours of toil by Marin Humane Society officers, a veterinarian and its teen-age owner.

The horse, a 3-year-old gelding, survived an ordeal that would have killed most horses, according to Robert Dollahite, supervisor of the County pound at the Humane Education Center of Marin.

Dollahite said the trouble started about 6 p.m. when the horse's owner and a friend were riding it bareback on the steep ridges west of Indian Valley.

The boys temporarily tied the horse to a tree and it fell. One of the youngsters was able to cut the reins, but the horse slid 60 to 80 feet into a ravine, becomign wedged upside down. Owner Pierre McKay, 13, ran for 45 minutes to find a home where he could call for help. His friend — whose name Dollahite lacked — held the horse's head out of the water which was in the ravine.

Dollahite, two aides and veterinarian Bruce C. Anderson of Novato had to trek in on foot since they couldn't get their winch-equipped vehicle up the hill above the ravine.

Their special horse stretcher was too wide to negotiate the steep-sided ravine when they began to pull the horse out. They improvised a "stretcher" from eight rubber tires, Dollahite said.

The rescuers finally were able to get the horse into the rescue trailer about 2 a.m. today. At the humane center it was placed in slings so it could stand.

The horse was able to stand alone this morning, but had difficulty eating and drinking because its head is bruised, Dollahite reported.

"Usually one hour upside down is fatal to a horse, but he fought every inch of the way," Dollahite said.

The youngster who stayed with the horse while McKay ran to get rescuers was so numb with wet and cold he could scarcely move, and went home before officers learned his name.

The horse owner lives with foster parents in Novato.

Nixon Makes A Plea On Health Care Plan

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon appealed today for rapid congressional approval of his national health insurance program, claiming that health care charges will continue rising and that every American must be assured adequate means to meet the cost.

In a nationwide radio address, the President also urged the health care industry "to take every action at their disposal" to hold down prices and said failure to move voluntarily "could lead to drastic, congressionally imposed mandatory controls."

Nixon acknowledged at the outset of his speech that he chose to speak out once again in pushing the plan he advanced last February because the Senate Finance Committee is opening hearings tomorrow on the whole concept of national health insurance, with cosideration of some sharply different propoeals.

"Never has the need been greater, or the national climate more favorable for the development of a sound consensus on a comprehensive program of health insurance than today," Nixon said.

In defending his own approach, the President asserted: "It is the only major plan that offers extensive, uniform health coverage without raising your taxes; without severely damaging the effective private health insurance industry that has helped to make this generation of Americans the healthiest, best-cared for in our history; and, without establishing an enormous new federal bureaucracy."

The President chose to speak from his bayside villa in Key Biscayne where he has spent most of the past four days vacatioing with his family and some close friends. He was expected to fly back to the White House later in the day.

ACCEPTS DEATH — The Rev. George F. Hall, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church in Lincolnwood, Ill., told newsmen yesterday he would accept the identification of his daughter as the sixth victim of Friday's Los Angeles shoot-out with the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Hall Sees Message In Daughter's Death

LINCOLNWOOD, Ill. (UPI) — The Rev. George P. Hall, father of Camilla Hall, 29, the sixth victim of Friday's gunbattle between police and the Symbionese Liberation Army, says his daughter died because she probably felt "something dramatic had to be done" to awaken America.

Hall, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church in this Chicago suburb, yesterday said he had no contact with the SLA, but did meet Patricia (Mizmoon) Soltysik, 25, whose charred body was also pulled from the rubble of the Los Angeles house which burst into flames during the Friday night shootout.

"They were both dedicated persons," Hall said. "They loved America a great deal. I think what they were doing was trying to say, 'America, wake up.' They were interested in all issues —equality, the care of the land, the food that we eat, pollution of the air, women's rights, peace.

"Every social issue that was raised, they were fighting for. It probably had come to the point where they felt something dramatic had to be done," Hall said.

"I do not agree with their methods," he said. "But the causes they were cocerned about were of concern to all of us. I'm trying to rationalize this in my mind."

Hall managed to smile several times during the news conference at the church, but Ivan Norstrand, his assistant pastor, said, "He's hurting.

"It's painful," Nostrand said. "His daughter was killed, and he's in pain."

Camilla was the last of four Hall children to die. Hall's 7-year-old son Terrace died of a heart attack during a family vacation 25 years ago. Two years later, another son, Peter, 8, died of a kidney ailment. The same kidney ailment killed Hall's other daughter, Nan, just after Camilla had been graduated from high school.

Hall said he would accept the latest identification of Camilla, but doubted it was she who participated in the robbery of a San Francisco bank.

"I still feel the original identification of her in the bank robbery was wrong," he said. "She was very nearsighted. She had very thick glasses and she couldn't make her way without her glasses." The girl in the picture was not wearing glasses, he said.

Hall said the last time he saw his daughter was at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport after a Christmas visit.

"She was going to take the plane back to Oakland and there was the usual affection," he said. "She gave no indication of any change and said she would see us in the summer."

Hearst Stunned By News Patty Is Wanted Woman

HILLSBOROUGH (UPI) — Randolph A. Hearst sat in stunned silence last night when he learned his kidnaped daughter, Patricia, 20, would be charged with violation of federallaws prohibiting posseesion and use of automatic weapons.

A family spokesman, John Lester, said after hearing the news Hearst "just sat in a chair and remained very quiet for a long period of time.

"He's taking it very hard, very hard."

Lester said that "this whole thing, 105 days now, it has so many twists it's difficult to predict what's going to happen next."

He said the Hearsts "are aware that the unexpected is usually the expected."

Mrs. Hearst, Lester said, was greatly relieved that her daughter's body was not among the six removed from the charred Symbionese Liberation Army hideout in Los Angeles.

"But again, considering the events that occurred and considering that her daughter's not back here, she's still a little apprehensive and he likewise," he said.

Earlier, Hearst, editor and president of the San Francisco Examiner, said he approved of the police tactics in trying to rout the SLA terrorists from their hideout Friday.

"They tried to get people out and they tried to use tear gas," he said, "and they evidently were met with a tremendous hail of fire.

"Once those things start, there's no controlling them. I don't really see what else they could have done. I think it was just a miracle that nobody else was hurt."

In the first weeks after the kidnaping Feb. 4, Hearst repeatedly said publicly that the FBI should not be allowed "to go in with guns blazing" if they found his daughter.

Mitchell Separation Is Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Martha Mitchell, wife of former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, has filed for a legal separation from her husband and is seeking custody of the couple's 14-year-old daughter Marty.

Mitchell

Mrs. Mitchell told UPI reporter Helen Thomas during the weekend that she had hired lawyer Melvin Belli to represent her and that she was seeking about $2,000 monthly support from Mitchell.

Mrs. Mitchell has been estranged from her husband since last September, after he and former Commerce Secretary Maurice M. Stans were indicted for alleged political influence peddling in return for a contribution to President Nixon's 1972 reelection campaign.

Mitchell, who was Nixon's campaign manager, and Stans, were acquitted of all charges at a trial in New York.

Fuel Dump Raided

SAIGON (UPI) — Viet Cong commandos raided a U.S.-owned fuel complex on the outskirts of Saigon today, marking the birthday of the late North Vietnamese leader Ho Chi Minh with the heaviest Communist attacks in 15 months.

The guerrillas blew up nearly a quarter-million gallons of gasoline at the Caltex fuel farm in Nha Be, six miles southeast of Saigon, in a pre-dawn raid culminating a series of attacks across the country.

The Saigon military command said the guerrillas sneaked into the subruban Saigon oil depot and destroyed 240,000 gallons of gas at the facility, jointly owned by Standard Oil of California and Texaco.

It was the closest Communist raid to the capital since last Dec. 3, when Viet Cong commandos destroyed 35 million gallons of fuel at a sprawling Shell Oil farm at Nha Be.

Hijack Hijinks

SEOUL (UPI) — An army deserter and four companions held 40 persons hostages in a downtown teahouse and kept 200 army troops and police at bay today after a wild car and bus hijacking.

Three of the men, armed with two carbines, a knife, and 510 rounds of ammunition captured a sedan and an express bus and killed a highway patrolman who tried to stop them, police said.

They holed up in an eastern district Seoul teahouse where they were joined by two friends, police said.

Authorities identified one of the hijackers as army deserter Pvt. Lee Won-mo, 23. Police said he and two other young men in civilian clothes commandeered a private sedan in a eastern district of Seoul earlier in the day.

Turkish Crisis

ANKARA (UPI) — The intended withdrawal of the dominant Republican People's party from Turkey's unsteady coalition government brought the nation to the brink of a new political crisis today.

The party, headed by Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit, said yesterday it had decided to pull out of the coalition it entered four months ago with the ultra-conservative National Salvation party.

The rift was caused by the opposition of 20 National Salvation party deputies to government-backed clauses in an amnesty bill that would have freed political prisoners as well as criminals.

Missouri Floods

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Western Missouri flood victims hoped the worst was over today, in spite of weather forecasts predicting a 30 per cent chance of more rain.

Three persons were dead and millions of dollars in damage listed in flooding along the Missouri River and its tributaries.

Clay County communities of Smithville, Birmingham, Gladstone and Excelsio Springs, all north of the Missouri, suffered the most damage in flooding, as a result of seven inches of rain in two days.

"The damage is going to be very, very high," Bill Blair, director of emergency services in Clay County, said yesterday.

"What with crop losses, utility losses, damage to highways, it'll be a million dollars at least."

Expensive Rain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon has acknowledged it tried to make rain over Southeast Asia for six years. But it says all it got were a few extra sprinkles on top of predictable and more effective monsoons.

The object, according to the Pentagon witnesses, was to muddy the unpaved roads over which thousands of North Vietnamese trucks carried supplies to the battlefronts in the South.

The transcript of a top secret briefing, given to a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee March 20, was published Saturday by Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.

It showed that the rainmaking program involved 2,602 flights by Phantom jets and C130 turboprop transports seeding clouds with silver and lead iodide. The effort cost about $21.6 million.

Almost all the rainmaking was directed at the Ho Chi Minh trail in the Laotian panhandle.

Drug Peddlers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nearly half of a random sample of drug peddlers arrested for selling narcotics were implicated in further drug trafficking while free on bond awaiting trial, according to a report by the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA.)

Only 12.3 per cent were arrested again on narcotics charges, the report said. The others were implicated by federal surveillance of other suspects, by reports of other agencies, or by their dealings with undercover agents.

The government investigators followed up on 499 persons who were arrested and freed on bond in 1972. They said 47.5 per cent of the suspects were implicated in continued illegal narcotics dealing after their initial arrests.

India Is Jubilant Over Atom Blast

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Jubilation over India's explosion of a nuclear device swept the country today, bolstering the troubled government of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and overshadowing the nation's economic woes.

"We may be hungry," one young Indian celebrant said in a typical comment. "But now at least we're someone to be reckoned with."

Defense Minister Jagjivan Ram said, however, India would never use its new-found nuclear clout for military purposes. "Our objective is to use our knowledge in nuclear science only for peaceful purposes," he said.

"Our armed forces know this is not for their use," Ram said in an interview. "I think any government will have to think many times before it reverses our decision."

India set off the 10 to 15 kiloton nuclear blast (equal to 10,000 to 15,000 tons of TNT) Saturday 300 feet below the desert in western Rajasthan State.

The explosion gained new domestic stature for Mrs. Gandhi, whose administration has been rocked by devastating economic problems and a series of labor protests.

About 30 per cent of India's 580 million people live below the subsistence level. Some 75 per cent of recent university graduates are unemployed. Food consumption has dropped despite a 13 million annual rise in population.

The nuclear test was hailed by politicians from the extreme left to the extreme right, with only one significant exception —the Communists.

Two GOP Leaders Feel Nixon Shouldn't Resign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Republicans in charge of GOP campaign strategy this year agree that President Nixon should not resign, even though party congressional candidates face tough races in November.

National party chairman Goerge Bush, admitting that Watergate helped Democrats win four Republican Congressional seats in special elections this year, disagrees with Nixon that his fate and that of the party are inseparable.

In a joint broadcast interview yesterday on (NBC's Meet the Press), Sen. William Brock, R-Tenn., and Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., agreed that the constitutional impeachment process is better than a Nixon resignation.

Brock and Michel are GOP campaign committee chairmen in their respective houses.

"It would do untold damage to our constitutional system over the long haul," said Brock, if Nixon were forced to resign and later proven innocent of any wrongdoing.

Michel, said he was "unalterably opposed" to resignation because "we have a regular constitutional process in the works ... and if we have faith in the whole system, then we ought to abide by this normal constitutional process."

In another interview (ABC's Issues and Answers), Bush was asked about the political effects od Watergate on the recent special congressional elections. He replied: "I think it has hurt us this year.

"I could make a very good case last year that (Watergate) wasn't being hit," he said. "This year, we've lost four out of five special elections and I think it's fair to say that an ingredient in those was Watergate."

But next November, he said, "it's not going to be enough to hammer away at Watergate and be elected."

Half Of Smokers Want To Quit, Poll Reveals

DALLAS (UPI) — Thirty-seven per cent of all adult Americans smoke and half of them want to quit, according to a Gallup poll released today by the American Cancer Society.

Six per cent of the smokers surveyed said they would be very interested in participating in a "stop smoking clinic" while 12 per cent more registered a degree of interest.

"The stop-smoking clinics tended to be of greater interest to high school graduates, those with middle and upper incomes and those aged under 50 than to other population segments," the Gallup organization said in its report.

Cigarette smoking is suspected as a cause of lung cancer and the Cancer Society said 75,000 Amercans likely will die of lung cancer this year.

Portuguese Leaders Flown Away

LISBON (UPI) — Portugal's ruling military junta today flew ousted President Americo Thomaz and Premier Marcello Caetano from the island of Madeira to an unknown destination, a government spokesman said.

(There were rumors in Rio de Janeiro the two men were being flown there.)

"Officially all I can say is that by decision of the junta, Americo Thomaz and Marcello Caetano left Madeira today," said Dr. Pedro Feytor Pinto, director of information services. Military authorities on Madeira said a communique would be issued later today.

Meantime, in Africa, the Portugese high command today ordered an immediate ceasefire in Angola in an effort to persuade black rebels to begin peace talks.

It was the second major move to end 13 years of colonial warfare in Africa since the April 25 coup.

Guerrillas in Guinea-Bissau have already agreed to start negotiations with Portuguese Foreign Minister Mario Soares in London on Saturday.

But insurgents in a third territory, Mozambique, said they will continue the war there until they receive firm guarantees of immediate independence from Lisbon.

There has been little military activity in Angola recently and the last big battle was several weeks ago.

The government investigators followed up on 499 persons who were arrested and freed on bond in 1972. They said 47.5 per cent of the suspects were implicated in continued illegal narcotics dealing after their initial arrests.

India Is Jubilant Over Atom Blast

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Jubilation over India's explosion of a nuclear device swept the country today, bolstering the troubled government of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and overshadowing the nation's economic woes.

"We may be hungry," one young Indian celebrant said in a typical comment. "But now at least we're someone to be reckoned with."

Defense Minister Jagjivan Ram said, however, India would never use its new-found nuclear clout for military purposes. "Our objective is to use our knowledge in nuclear science only for peaceful purposes," he said.

"Our armed forces know this is not for their use," Ram said in an interview. "I think any government will have to think many times before it reverses our decision."

India set off the 10 to 15 kiloton nuclear blast (equal to 10,000 to 15,000 tons of TNT) Saturday 300 feet below the desert in western Rajasthan State.

The explosion gained new domestic stature for Mrs. Gandhi, whose administration has been rocked by devastating economic problems and a series of labor protests.

About 30 per cent of India's 580 million people live below the subsistence level. Some 75 per cent of recent university graduates are unemployed. Food consumption has dropped despite a 13 million annual rise in population.

The nuclear test was hailed by politicians from the extreme left to the extreme right, with only one significant exception —the Communists.

Two GOP Leaders Feel Nixon Shouldn't Resign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Republicans in charge of GOP campaign strategy this year agree that President Nixon should not resign, even though party congressional candidates face tough races in November.

National party chairman Goerge Bush, admitting that Watergate helped Democrats win four Republican Congressional seats in special elections this year, disagrees with Nixon that his fate and that of the party are inseparable.

In a joint broadcast interview yesterday on (NBC's Meet the Press), Sen. William Brock, R-Tenn., and Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., agreed that the constitutional impeachment process is better than a Nixon resignation.

Brock and Michel are GOP campaign committee chairmen in their respective houses.

"It would do untold damage to our constitutional system over the long haul," said Brock, if Nixon were forced to resign and later proven innocent of any wrongdoing.

Michel, said he was "unalterably opposed" to resignation because "we have a regular constitutional process in the works ... and if we have faith in the whole system, then we ought to abide by this normal constitutional process."

In another interview (ABC's Issues and Answers), Bush was asked about the political effects od Watergate on the recent special congressional elections, He replied: "I think it has hurt us this year.

"I could make a very good case last year that (Watergate) wasn't being hit," he said. "This year, we've lost four out of five special elections and I think it's fair to say that an ingredient in those was Watergate."

But next November, he said, "it's not going to be enough to hammer away at Watergate and be elected."

Half Of Smokers Want To Quit, Poll Reveals

DALLAS (UPI) — Thirty-seven per cent of all adult Americans smoke and half of them want to quit, according to a Gallup poll released today by the American Cancer Society.

Six per cent of the smokers surveyed said they would be very interested in participating in a "stop smoking clinic" while 12 per cent more registered a degree of interest.

"The stop-smoking clinics tended to be of greater interest to high school graduates, those with middle and upper incomes and those aged under 50 than to other population segments," the Gallup organization said in its report.

Cigarette smoking is suspected as a cause of lung cancer and the Cancer Society said 75,000 Amercans likely will die of lung cancer this year.

Portuguese Leaders Flown Away

LISBON (UPI) — Portugal's ruling military junta today flew ousted President Americo Thomaz and Premier Marcello Caetano from the island of Madeira to an unknown destination, a government spokesman said.

(There were rumors in Rio de Janeiro the two men were being flown there.)

"Officially all I can say is that by decision of the junta, Americo Thomaz and Marcello Caetano left Madeira today," said Dr. Pedro Feytor Pinto, director of information services. Military authorities on Madeira said a communique would be issued later today.

Meantime, in Africa, the Portugese high command today ordered an immediate ceasefire in Angola in an effort to persuade black rebels to begin peace talks.

It was the second major move to end 13 years of colonial warfare in Africa since the April 25 coup.

Guerrillas in Guinea-Bissau have already agreed to start negotiations with Portuguese Foreign Minister Mario Soares in London on Saturday.

But insurgents in a third territory, Mozambique, said they will continue the war there until they receive firm guarantees of immediate independence from Lisbon.

There has been little military activity in Angola recently and the last big battle was several weeks ago.

FRUSTRATIONS — For students in wheelchairs at Sonoma State College life is made even more difficult by frustrations great and small, as a small group of staff members and students who are not disabled learned last Thursday. Wesley R. Burford (left), director of physical planning and development at the college, finds that getting a drink can become a major project. Carl Campbell (right) public affairs director, discovers the hazards of narrow doorways.

WALKERS' ONE-DAY EXPERIMENT

Wheeling Along Is Found To Be No Fun

By ERNEST MURPHY

For the dozen Sonoma State College students and staff members who spent the day confined in wheelchairs, the novelty wore off in a hurry as everyday tasks became almost insurmountable obstacles.

They were guinea pigs in a program called Wheelchair Awareness Day, sponsored by the Disabled Students Coalition at the college.

None of the participants was an actual paraplegic, but all spent Thursday on wheels to see what it is like for the 25 persons at Sonoma State who do it every day.

One middle-aged administrator came to work, sat in his unfamiliar conveyance and headed for the coffee pot, as he always does.

He filled his cup and tried to start back to his desk. "I couldn't figure out a way to hold on to the cup and move the chair at the same time," he said.

And so it went throughout the day.

Every doorway presented several problems. The temporary paraplegics found their knuckles easily battered by narrow entrances as they applied propulsion to their wheels. If there wasn't anyone to hold the doors open they often had to wait until someone appeared.

Even then the small front wheels of the chair had a rough time crossing the doorsills.

"Elevator doors are worse," library planner Frederick Cunha said. "The doors open and shut fast. You've got to get all lined up and zoom in the second they open and hope no one gets in your way."

Although the Rohnert Park campus abounds with ramps designed with paraplegics in mind, many of them are too steep or too narrow for the easily overturned wheelchairs.

On a windy day —Thursday had gusts of up to 30 miles an hour — wheelchairs zigged and zagged like sailboats as the weather played games with them.

Several of their passengers, perhaps not as adept as full-time paraplegics, adopted a technique of braking the windward wheel with one hand while pumping furiously on the other in a futile attempt to move in a straight line.

They found that a hose lying across a widewalk was enough to bring a wheelchair to a bone-jarring halt.

The wheelchair users discovered that they became uneasy at the resentment, real or imagined, of the other people in the lunch line. Wheelchairs are slower than feet in such circumstances.

After buying their lunch, they could fit only at a special table built several inches higher than the others to accommodate disabled students. But the table was full of ambulatory students because the cafeteria was crowded.

Dr. Thomas Plowright, director of student health services, said his work was especially difficult from a wheelchair.

"It's almost impossible to practice medicine from a wheelchair," he said. "If I was permanently confined to one I'd have to change my specialty to something like radiology — there's no other way to examine patients from this position."

College housing director John Simmons was more disturbed with the human reaction he got than with the problems of getting around. "People were very quiet — they wouldn't talk to me. People who I know, even, would look right past me without seeing me. It was strange and it was unsettling."

At a meeting in the afternoon between the disabled students and the temporarily disabled the disabled ones occasionally just grinned while the others told horror stories of having to take long detours around the campus to avoid stairways.

The staff members and students learned that it's a different view from down there. They found out what it is like to begin each day like a steeplechase jockey before the race, keeping mental count of the hurdles and figuring out how to negotiate them all without breaking your neck — and still managing to arrive on time.

There are a dozen people at Sonoma State, back on their own feet again, and whose eyes have been opened.

Soviet Nuclear Strike Weapons Kept In Cuba

MIAMI (UPI) — A study on Soviet nuclear arms strategy published today lends credence to reports that the USSR maintains a permanent nuclear strike capability in Cuba which could wipe out as much as two-thirds of the United States in the event of atomic war.

The strike capability is in the form of ships docked or anchored in Cuban waters rather than land bases, according to experts here.

The report published in book from today by the Center for Advanced International Studies at the University of Miami, said the Soviet nuclear strength is considered by the Kremlin to deter U.S. intervention in the Caribbean island.

The study is authored by Prof. Foy D. Kohler, former U.S. ambassador to Moscow; Prof. Mose L. Harvey, director of the center; and Dr. Leon Goure, director of Soviet Studies at the center.

For several years, Dr. Manolo Reyes, Cuban exile civil leader and newscaster for Miami's WTVJ-TV, has appeared before various congressional committees with reports from inside Cuba concerning Soviet arms build-ups.

Eleven days ago, Dr. Reyes said he had learned that the Soviet 12th naval fleet was anchored in Cuban waters. "It is composed of two destroyers, one tanker and one ballistic missile submarine. Even though this is a diesel (powered) sub and not nuclear (powered) it carries three nuclear missiles called 'Serb' with a range of 750 miles," Ryees said.

In an interview with UPI, Dr. Goure said the eight-month study of Soviet nuclear arms strategy by way of Kremlin speeches, publications and broadcasts, supports the view of Reyes and others that a system of relief vessels at Cienfuegos, Cuba, and elsewhere on the islands assures a Soviet nuclear strike capability in Cuba at any given moment.

He said a van containing two black men drove up, and Miss Hearst got into it and left with them.

He said he talked to her for half an hour and "she was a beautiful person to me, real intelligent and all."

The others killed in Friday's shootout were identified as Patricia (Mizmoon) Soltysik, 24, Nancy Ling Perry, 2), Willie Wolfe, 22, and Angela Atwood' 25.

Sullivan revealed another previously unpublicized SLA incident. He said two women hitchhikers, one of whom was "possibly Emily Harris," drew pistols on the driver who picked them up, Frank Richard Sutter, forced him out of his car and drove off. They abandoned the car a half mile away, in the Griffith Park Area.

The FBI said much of its charge against Miss Hearst was based on a statement from a Tom D. Mathews, 18, a high school student who said he was kidnaped by the Harrises and Miss Hearst and held for 12 hours Thursday.

The kidnaping was reported earlier, but Miss Hearst's involvement was not alleged until Sullivan's statement yesterday.

The Harrises and Miss Hearst were allegedly on the run after the sporting goods store shooting, stealing and switching cars repeatedly as they fled. Mathews said Mrs. Harris approached him and said she was interested in buying his van, which had a "for sale" sign on it, and the trio then commandeered the van at gunpoint, abducted him and identified themselves as from the SLA.

The FBI said Mathews told them that:

Miss Hearst loaded a submachine gun in the van

Miss Hearst and the Harrises said that it was Miss Hearst who shot up the front of the hardware store.

Miss Hearst said she was a willing participant in the SLA's flamboyant holdup of the Hibernia Bank in San Francisco April 15.

He was introduced to her by her SLA name of "Tania," Mathews said.

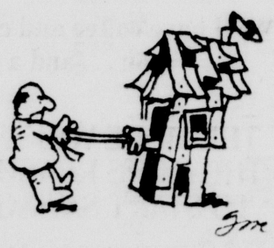
Police said a pistol Harris dropped in the store had been purchased by Harris' wife, Emily, also an SLA fugitive. It was that pistol that tipped authorities that the SLA had moved from San Francisco to Los Angeles. It set off the hunt that led to Friday's fiery gunbattle.

Mathews said the trio drove around for 12 hours, searching for a store where they could buy a hacksaw blade to remove a manacle placed on Harris' wrist by the store clerk. They sawed it free in a drive-in movie and abandoned Mathews atop the Santa Monica Mountains that overlook Los Angeles, he said.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Landlord Must Keep House Fit



A house should be a home, decent and habitable for living.

The early common law used to say that the landlord owed no duty to repair or to keep premises in good condition for his tenants. The common law rule being that the tenant took the premises "as is."

Many a "form lease" will require the tenant to waive the rights of repair, or those rights provided in the Civil Code requiring that the premises be "habitable."

Two years ago the California Court of Appeal ruled that with every residential rental agreement there is concurrent legal duty on the landlord to make the premises habitable. If the landlord fails to do so he may not remove the tenant for failure to pay rent.

Landlords used to bring unlawful detainer proceedings on the failure to pay rent. The defense that the premises were not in good repair could be raised since 1972, but until recently had to be brought in a different action. Now the California Supreme Court has held that the defense can be raised in the same suit. The landlord has to show that the premises were fit if he wants to remove a tenant.

Green, the tenant, agreed that he had not paid rent, but claimed that the landlord had failed to maintain the premises in a livable condition. Green showed a copy of an inspection report that the landlord had violated the housing code. Rats, pests were on the premises, the plumbing was bad, there was no heat, and the electrical wiring was faulty.

The landlord could not remove Green from the premises even though he had not paid rent nor did he set aside the rent to make the repairs.

In modern society, it is no longer realistic to say that the landlord no longer has a duty to repair. Repairs in an apartment building may be complex and expensive and practically impossible for the single tenant in a large building to undertake by himself.

Just as other consumers in present day society, there is a right to rely on the supplier or landlord to assure that his product is "fit for its intended purpose."

If the landlord fails to make the repairs, a tenant can recover or offset the rent based on the "difference between the fair rental value and the amount the landlord demands." What is the fair rental value of the unsafe or unsanitary premises? The tenant must pay the difference if any. A tenant has the right to withold a month's rent to make necessary repairs if the landlord refuses to do so after notice.

Petaluma Seeks Decision Stay

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Representatives for the City of Petaluma will argue Friday that the U.S. District Court decision which struck down its growth limit should be stayed unfit an appeal is completed.

Robert T. Anderson of Oakland, Petaluma's special counsel, will ask federal district Judge Lloyd H. Burke to delay enforcement of his January decision until the U.S. circuit court of appeals decides whether to uphold it. The hearing will begin at 1:30 p.m.

The decision, which invalidated the city's 500-unit a year growth limit, came after several construciton firms successfully argued in a suit that the limit unconstitutionaly denies citizens the right to move and settle where they wish.

Champion Kidnap Suspect Sought

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Authorities in five Pacific Northwest states were searching today for 33-year-old Carl Bowles, the accused kidnaper of former California Finance Director Hale Champion.

Bowles was serving a life term in Oregon state prison for the 1965 slaying of a Lane County Oregon sheriff's deputy. Charges are still pending against Bowles in California for the kidnaping of Champion, his wife, Marie, and their 19-month-old daughter, Katherine, from their Sacramento home July 8, 1965.

Bowles escaped Friday while on an authorized visit outside the prison with a girl friend at a Salem motel.

Two Arrested In Guard Killing

CHICAGO (UPI) — Two men who called themselves soldiers in a black liberation army were arrested and charged today in the execution of an unarmed railroad guard which preceded a wild shootout with police on Chicago's South Side.

Automatic weapons chattered through a four-block area and two policemen were wounded in the Sunday night confrontation.

A third member of the black group was killed. The others, David Beverly and Lonnel Moseley, both 21-year-old studets at Chicago's Malcolm X. College, were arrested in an alley and later charged with one count each of murder and attempted murder.

Rebozo Says Senate Group In Witch Hunt

WASHINGTON (UPI) Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo Monday accused the Senate Watergate Committee and three of its staffers with leaking false news stories to "humiliate and embarrass him" during their investigation of a $100,000 campaign contribution from Howard Tughes.

In papers filed in U.S. District Court, Rebozo — President Nixon's close friend and confidante—said the commmittee's subpeona of his financial and business records constituted a "witch-hunt," and accused staffers of "maliciously and falsely" distorting testimony of witnesses and leaking false stories.

Diabetic Seminar

A seminar for parents of diabetic children will be held at 9 a.m. Thursday in Marin General Hospital's Coral Room by the Marin County Diabetic Association. Leading the discussion will be Dr. Conrad Ellner, a psychiatrist, and Dr. George J. Monteverdi, a pediatrician.

Lichens A Clue To Air Pollution

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — An Oregon State University student research project is being carried on in Oregon and Washington to gauge the efficacy of tree lichens as indicators of air pollution.

"The tiny mosslike lichens have been found to be more sensitive to air pollution than other plants," reported Dr. William Denison, botany professor and adviser for the project. "The absence of certain lichens, for example, can be correlated with the presence of relatively low concentrations of certain toxic pollutants."

OBITUARIES

William O. Kolthoff Dies At 54

William O. Kolthoff of Tiburon, Bay Area yachtsman, died yesterday in a local hospital after a five-month illness. He was 54.

Mrs. Davis died Saturday at the age of 80.

She was born in Washington.

She was a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley and a member of Trinity United Methodist Church in Berkeley.

Mrs. Davis was the widow of the late Elbert Willard Davis.

She also is survived by another son, Keith Kingman Davis of Silver Spring, Md.; a daughter, Gertrude D. Nelson of Modesto; two brothers, Kenneth Springman of Chelan, Wash., and Forest Kingman of Bainbridge Island, Wash., six grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

DAN LONDON

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco hotelman and civic leader Dan London died of a heart attack yesterday. He was 69.

Relatives said London died during a family vacation near Kalispell, Mont.

London retired in 1970 after 32 years as vice president and managing director of the St. Francis Hotel.

He continued to be a director of several firms, including Western International Hotel Co., Eureka Federal Savings and Loan Association and the San Francisco Convention and Visitors Bureau.

London was also chairman of the U.S. State Department's National Review Board executive committee, a trustee of People to People and deputy chief of protocol for the State of California.

He leaves his widow, Claire, and two daughters, Mimi of Los Angeles and Mrs. Thomas Scott of Baltimore.

HELGA JOHNSON

Funeral for Helge J. Johnson of Petaluma will be at 9 a.m. tomorrow at the Sorensen Funeral Home.

Johnson, 69, died Saturday in a local hospital after a long illness.

He was born in Vastiras, Sweden and came to the United States in 1924, settling in Salt Lake City. He moved to Los Angeles in 1928 and settled in Eureka several years later. He was a self-employed dredgerman for 35 years. After retiring in 1969, he moved to Petaluma.

He was a member of the Operating Engineers Union, Local No. 3 of San Francisco.

Johnson is survived by his wife, Margaret, of the family home at 300 Stony Point Road; two daughters, Dorothy Waterman of Santa Rosa and Joanne Nord of Denver, Colo.; two sons, Ed Johnson of Petersburg, Alaska and Robert Johnson of Hayward; a sister, Judith Pierce of Concord; four grandchildren and a great granddaughter.

Burial will be in Cypress Hill Memorial Park, Petaluma.

THOMAS W. FORGET

Thomas W. Forget of Sausalito, who had been nominated for the Marin outstanding senior citizen award of 1974 for his volunteer work, died Saturday in a local hospital after an illness of several weeks.

He was 66.

Forget, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., was a retired management systems plan coordinator for Lockheed's missile and space division. He held an advanced degree in mathematics and had taught mathematics in several Catholic schools.

He moved to Marin about a year ago, and his home was at 12-A Glen Drive.

A man of many interests, Forget was an organist and a private pilot. He was fluent in French, Italian and Spanish.

Since moving to Marin, he had done volunteer work for the National Park Service and Muir Woods National Monument, for which he had written manuals, among other activities.

He also was a board member for Marin Enterprises and had been working for the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin and the North Bay Senior Planning Council.

Forget vas nominated for the senior citizen award by the Volunteer Bureau of Marin County because of "the remarkable adjustment he, as a recently retired professional person, has made to unpaid work for nonprofit agencies in the human services."

(The senior citizen award is to be announced at a luncheon Wednesday.)

Forget is survived by a sister, Mary C. Richardson of Bergenfield, N.J.

Mass of the Christian Burial will be celebrated at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow at the Star of the Sea Church in Sausalito.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael. Burial will be private.

Kolthoff was born in Germany, and came to San Francisco with his parents when he was 5. He lived in Marin County for 27 years. He was a veteran of Army service during World War II.

He is survived by his wife, Jeanette Kolthoff of the home; a son, William W. Kolthoff of Corte Madera; a daughter, Korinne Brooks of Tracy, and two grandchildren.

Funeral will be held at 1 p.m Wednesday in the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo, followed by entombment in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m tomorrow in the Chapel of the Hills.

IAN FITZPATRICK

Private burial for Ian Ambrose Fitzpatrick, three-week old son of Laura Bebout of Fairfax, has been held at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

The infant died last Tuesday.

In addition to his mother, he is survived by his grandmother, Mary Bebout of Fairfax.

ELVIRA MAZZA

Funeral was today for Elvira L. Mazza, a Marin native who died in a Petaluma hospital Friday after a long illness. She was 87.

She was born in Marin but spent most of her life in the Petaluma area. Her home was at 156 San Antonio.

Mrs. Mazza's husband, Joseph Mazza, preceded her in death.

She was a member of St. Vincent's Catholic Church in Petaluma.

Mrs. Mazza is survived by a son, Elmer, and two sisters, Silvia Martinelli and Lillian Filippini, all of Petaluma.

Burial was in the Calvary Cemetery, Petaluma.

MARIE DAVIS

A funeral for Marie Kingman Davis of Berkeley, mother of nuclear energy expert W. Kenneth Davis of San Rafael, will be held at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in the McNary and Morgan Chapel in Berkeley.

Mrs. Davis died Saturday at the age of 80.

She was born in Washington.

She was a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley and a member of Trinity United Methodist Church in Berkeley.

Mrs. Davis was the widow of the late Elbert Willard Davis.

She also is survived by another son, Keith Kingman Davis of Silver Spring, Md.; a daughter, Gertrude D. Nelson of Modesto; two brothers, Kenneth Springman of Chelan, Wash., and Forest Kingman of Bainbridge Island, Wash., six grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

DAN LONDON

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco hotelman and civic leader Dan London died of a heart attack yesterday. He was 69.

Relatives said London died during a family vacation near Kalispell, Mont.

London retired in 1970 after 32 years as vice president and managing director of the St. Francis Hotel.

He continued to be a director of several firms, including Western International Hotel Co., Eureka Federal Savings and Loan Association and the San Francisco Convention and Visitors Bureau.

London was also chairman of the U.S. State Department's National Review Board executive committee, a trustee of People to People and deputy chief of protocol for the State of California.

He leaves his widow, Claire, and two daughters, Mimi of Los Angeles and Mrs. Thomas Scott of Baltimore.

HELGA JOHNSON

Funeral for Helge J. Johnson of Petaluma will be at 9 a.m. tomorrow at the Sorensen Funeral Home.

Johnson, 69, died Saturday in a local hospital after a long illness.

He was born in Vastiras, Sweden and came to the United States in 1924, settling in Salt Lake City. He moved to Los Angeles in 1928 and settled in Eureka several years later. He was a self-employed dredgerman for 35 years. After retiring in 1969, he moved to Petaluma.

He was a member of the Operating Engineers Union, Local No. 3 of San Francisco.

Johnson is survived by his wife, Margaret, of the family home at 300 Stony Point Road; two daughters, Dorothy Waterman of Santa Rosa and Joanne Nord of Denver, Colo.; two sons, Ed Johnson of Petersburg, Alaska and Robert Johnson of Hayward; a sister, Judith Pierce of Concord; four grandchildren and a great granddaughter.

Burial will be in Cypress Hill Memorial Park, Petaluma.

THOMAS W. FORGET

Thomas W. Forget of Sausalito, who had been nominated for the Marin outstanding senior citizen award of 1974 for his volunteer work, died Saturday in a local hospital after an illness of several weeks.

He was 66.

Forget, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., was a retired management systems plan coordinator for Lockheed's missile and space division. He held an advanced degree in mathematics and had taught mathematics in several Catholic schools.

He moved to Marin about a year ago, and his home was at 12-A Glen Drive.

A man of many interests, Forget was an organist and a private pilot. He was fluent in French, Italian and Spanish.

Since moving to Marin, he had done volunteer work for the National Park Service and Muir Woods National Monument, for which he had written manuals, among other activities.

He also was a board member for Marin Enterprises and had been working for the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin and the North Bay Senior Planning Council.

Forget vas nominated for the senior citizen award by the Volunteer Bureau of Marin County because of "the remarkable adjustment he, as a recently retired professional person, has made to unpaid work for nonprofit agencies in the human services."

(The senior citizen award is to be announced at a luncheon Wednesday.)

Forget is survived by a sister, Mary C. Richardson of Bergenfield, N.J.

Mass of the Christian Burial will be celebrated at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow at the Star of the Sea Church in Sausalito.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael. Burial will be private.

SWIMMING FOR CHARITY

Virgil S. Hollis, county superintendent of schools, does a backstroke in the College of Marin pool, swimming laps during the "politicians heat" of the second annual Red Cross Swim-A-Thon. Actually, two heats were required for vote-seekers at the College of Marin pool Saturday — a dozen election campaigners or their representatives turned out. In all, the charity swim raised about $5,000. Red Cross spokesmen said. (Photo by Fred Arn)

Missing Men's Families —A Pocketbook Situation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Families of men listed as missing in Indochina get an average of $400 a week as long as the fate of the unaccounted for servicemen remains unknown.

His legal status as "alive" is of little consolation to most survivors. But according to Pentagon and congressional sources, some families are more interested in keeping the Defense Department payments than learning the fate of their men.

Pentagon sources have told UPI a few of the relatives have admitted they know their men are dead but will fight to keep them on missing status because they need the money. The salaries stop when a missing man is declared dead.

The sources said at least two wives of missing servicemen are hoping to avoid official death declarations long enough for their missing husbands to serve 20 years on the military rolls and qualify for a lifelong dependent pension of at least $6,300 a year.

"One wife told me she knew her husband was dead but she wanted the money," a high ranking Pentagon officer said.

"I don't blame her for that. She feels the chances of remarrying with four or five kids are pretty slim."

But he became angry discussing some other dependent families.

"They've got fringe benefits and an elite status that the families of guys who were just flat out killed over there never enjoyed," he said.

The Pentagon will not say how much any one dependent family is receiving. But the average salary paid is about $400 a week. More than $2 million is paid to the $1,070 families each month.

The weekly pay is high because most of the missing men are officers who have received promotions even while missing and are pilots who receive extra benefits such as flight pay. For example, the basic monthly pay for a lieutenant colonel with 14 years experience is $1,400.

At least 10 per cent of each paycheck is automatically deposited in a military savings account earning 10 per cent interest. Survivors of servicemen declared dead receive $18,000 in military life insurance and death gratuities.

Many members of Congress and Pentagon officials suspect, but will not say publicly, that some of the families active in movements to slow or halt official death declarations are interested mainly in their own pocketbooks.

Some officials lay blame on organizations such as Voices in Vital America (VIVA), the group that started the popular use of bracelets with POW names during the Vietnam war.

"All these groups have a vested interest in keeping this thing going," one official said. "There are a lot of people making money off this."

VIVA denies the moneymaking charge and claims it has actually gone into debt.

Eight Candidates Win Endorsement

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Mexican-American Political Association yesterday endorsed eight candidates for statewide office, including Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. for governor.

Other endorsements were: Herman Sillas for secretary of state; Vincent Bugliosi for attorney general; San Francisco County Supervisor Robert Mendelsohn for state controller; U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston for re-election; Rep. Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles, for lieutenant governor; San Diego educator Dr. Kent Lloyd for state superintendent of public schools and Gray Davis, a former member of Mayor Tom Bradley's staff, for state treasurer.

D'Estaing To Move Swiftly In France

PARIS (UPI) — Valery Giscard d'Estaing, winner of a razor-thin victory over Communist-backed Socialist Francis Mitterand in the French presidential election, moved swiftly today to form a "new look" government to head off economic chaos threatened by the leftists who nearly defeated him.

He said he will take office officially next Monday, name a premier the same day and hold his first Cabinet meeting the following Wednesday.

Although Giscard D'Estaing, 48, has promised to follow the foreign policy of his predecessor, President Georges Pompidou, he is expected to soften France's traditional toughness with the United States.

One of his key ministers will be a fervent Atlanticist, Jean Lecanuet, who brought him crucial center party support during the campaign. Speculation on his choice for premier centered on Lecanuet, Health Minister Michel Poniatowski and Equipment Minister Olivier Guichard.

Supporters clapped happily yesterday when Giscard d'Estaing, in a move unprecedented for a French president, happily repeated in English for American television crews the victory speech he had just made in French.

Franco-American contacts got off on the right foot when President Nixon telephoned his congratulations to Giscard d'Estaing the first head of state to do so —and the two chatted in English.

Giscard d'Estaing emerged from the Elysees Presidential Palace today and told newsmen, "I have told the interim president that I intend to see to it that my functions go into effect as soon as possible.

"With this in mind, we have decided that I will assume my presidential duties next Monday. I intend to hold my first Cabinet meeting next Wednesday. I will announce the name of my new premier as soon as I have assumed my official functions."

ELECTION WINNER — A beaming Valery Giscard d'Estaing answered the cheers of supporters from the balcony of his campaign headquarters yesterday after winning the French presidency in a close race with rival Francois Mitterand. (UPI Telephoto)

D'Estaing To Move Swiftly In France

PARIS (UPI) — Valery Giscard d'Estaing, winner of a razor-thin victory over Communist-backed Socialist Francis Mitterand in the French presidential election, moved swiftly today to form a "new look" government to head off economic chaos threatened by the leftists who nearly defeated him.

He said he will take office officially next Monday, name a premier the same day and hold his first Cabinet meeting the following Wednesday.

Although Giscard D'Estaing, 48, has promised to follow the foreign policy of his predecessor, President Georges Pompidou, he is expected to soften France's traditional toughness with the United States.

One of his key ministers will be a fervent Atlanticist, Jean Lecanuet, who brought him crucial center party support during the campaign. Speculation on his choice for premier centered on Lecanuet, Health Minister Michel Poniatowski and Equipment Minister Olivier Guichard.

Supporters clapped happily yesterday when Giscard d'Estaing, in a move unprecedented for a French president, happily repeated in English for American television crews the victory speech he had just made in French.

Franco-American contacts got off on the right foot when President Nixon telephoned his congratulations to Giscard d'Estaing —the first head of state to do so —and the two chatted in English.

Giscard d'Estaing emerged from the Elysees Presidential Palace today and told newsmen, "I have told the interim president that I intend to see to it that my functions go into effect as soon as possible.

"With this in mind, we have decided that I will assume my presidential duties next Monday. I intend to hold my first Cabinet meeting next Wednesday. I will announce the name of my new premier as soon as I have assumed my official functions."

Con. Ed's Woes Affect Others

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Since utility stocks like Consolidated Edison (NYSE) seem to be having difficulties, would you advise me whether the following should be sold: Baltimore Gas & Electric (NYSE), Columbia Gas & Electric (NYSE), Niagara Mohawk Power (NYSE), Potomac Electric (NYSE) and Washington Gas Light (NYSE)? —M.B.

A. The problems which beset Consolidated Edison have hurt other utility companies, but in many cases the damage has been less severe. Of the five companies you list, two are in relatively good shape: Columbia Gas and Potomac Electric. Both companies increased their dividend rates in the first quarter. Even on the higher rate, the payouts are in the manageable 60 per cent - 65 per cent range.

Potomac generates more than half its power requirements with coal, although this can be boosted to 88 per cent if necessary. Construction plans for the current year call for $280 million in capital expenditures, to be financed 9 per cent through preferred stock, 21 per cent common stock, 29 per cent bonds with the remainder generated internally. The reaction in the price of Columbia Gas shares, which reported slightly lower first-quarter earnings, was not as severe as for other utilities after the Con. Edison dividend cut, reflecting CG's broader dividend coverage. A synthetic gas plant, which will add 5 per cent to supplies, is due to come on stream soon.

Baltimore Gas & Elec. meets about two-thirds its electric requirements by oilfired generators. The bulk of its $260 million 1974 capital spending needs will have to be raised externally. Furthermore, the regulatory climate is difficult. First-quarter earnings, off 29 per cent at 63 cents per share, imply a 78 percent payout rate on an annualized basis. Niagara reported a 25 per cent drop in first-quarter results, despite a 17 per cent increase in revenues.

Longer-term kilowatt-hour growth rate is projected at a modest 5.5 percent. Washington Gas, which supplies natural gas to Washington, D.C., parts of Maryland and Virgina, reported substantially lower earnings in March on reduced revenues.

After rate increases were denied in two of these areas, the company withdrew requests for the third area. Sell these latter three issues.

Silver Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Handy and Harman today quoted silver at $5.54 cents per fine ounce down 24.5 cents. Engelhard quoted silver bullion at $5.54 down 24.5 cents and fabricated silver at $5.682 down 25.10 cents.

NEW KENTFIELD STORE

Carriage House Foods, which took over the former Byrne's Fine Food location at 735 College Avenue in Kentfield, will hold its grand opening from Wednesday through Saturday this week (May 22 through 25), with prices lowered on 1700 items. Owner Richard Petersen and clerk Rosalie Sloan make sure that everything is in order for the grand opening celebration. "We are stressing quality produce and meats and are the only store in Marin with live lobsters," said Petersen. Carriage House Foods also has Fantasia bakery products and provides home delivery service. The new store announced a series of grand opening specials.

COMMON IN 10 YEARS

The Wrist Computer Is Coming

NEW YORK (BW) — Put your Dick Tracy wrist radio in your pocket, advises Henry Mullish, senior research scientist at New York University's Courant Institute of Mathematical Sciences.

In 10 years, he says, virtually every American adult and child will be wearing a wrist watch-size electronic calculator to compute anything from grade school arithmetic problems and household grocery bills to complex mathematical problems in schools and laboratories.

Speaking to a seminar on the state of the art and future of the electronic calculator, Mullish pointed to what he called "exponential" growth in the number of units put into use in the United States in recent years.

This growth (from one million sold in 1971 to an estimated 12 to 15 million new calculators which will be purchased in 1974) coupled with dramatic progress in semiconductor technology, has resulted in a market decrease in price in all types of electronic calculators.

The NYU scientist cited the Casio FX-10, introduced at the seminar, as an example of the kind of development which is popularizing the machines.

The FX-10, a new hand-held scientific calculator, has been developed by Casio Inc., to meet the needs of students, teachers, engineers, scientists, and others who require high technical capability in their calculators, but who are looking for the best value at the lowest possible price.

The new Casio unit sells for $99.95, yet it offers 10 of the most commonly used higher mathematical functions (square root, reciprocals, "PI," and trigonometric and logarithm functions) in a compact, versatile format.

Mullish envisions the day when every school desk will have a calculator built into it, much as ink wells used to be standard equipment. Lower grades will have simple arithmetic models, and the sophistication of the equipment will increase as the students move up the academic ladder.

To those who raise the question of whether using electronic aids might create a dependency in future generations to the point where they would have difficulty in doing their figuring on their own, Mullish has an answer.

"Take a child," he says, "who lives within walking distance of his school, but has a bicycle which he rides there. He certainly doesn't forget how to walk, but the fun of riding the bike makes school a more stimulating experience for him.

"In the same way," he says, "electronic calculaotrs serve as motivators, taking the drudgery out of math and freeing the mind for more worthwhile, creative work. What's more, at today's prices, the calculator is very likely to be less expensive than the bicycle."

Stocks Gain Slightly In Slow Going

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices edged higher in sluggish trading today on the New York Stock Exchange, with higher-priced issues attracting buyers following last week's heavy losses.

Among glamors attracting buyers, Texas Instruments climbed 2 ¾, IBM 2 ½ and Corning Glass 2. Motorola, Digital Equipment, Fairchild Camera, Polaroid, Merck and Bausch & Lomb each rose at least a point.

Stocks on the American Exchange fell slightly in quiet trading. Research-Cottrell, the volume leader, rose ¾ to 7 ⅝ on 98,900 shares.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Con. Ed's Woes Affect Others

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Since utility stocks like Consolidated Edison (NYSE) seem to be having difficulties, would you advise me whether the following should be sold: Baltimore Gas & Electric (NYSE), Columbia Gas & Electric (NYSE), Niagara Mohawk Power (NYSE), Potomac Electric (NYSE) and Washington Gas Light (NYSE)? —M.B.

A. The problems which beset Consolidated Edison have hurt other utility companies, but in many cases the damage has been less severe. Of the five companies you list, two are in relatively good shape: Columbia Gas and Potomac Electric. Both companies increased their dividend rates in the first quarter. Even on the higher rate, the payouts are in the manageable 60 per cent - 65 per cent range.

Potomac generates more than half its power requirements with coal, although this can be boosted to 88 per cent if necessary. Construction plans for the current year call for $280 million in capital expenditures, to be financed 9 per cent through preferred stock, 21 per cent common stock, 29 per cent bonds with the remainder generated internally. The reaction in the price of Columbia Gas shares, which reported slightly lower first-quarter earnings, was not as severe as for other utilities after the Con. Edison dividend cut, reflecting CG's broader dividend coverage. A synthetic gas plant, which will add 5 per cent to supplies, is due to come on stream soon.

Baltimore Gas & Elec. meets about two-thirds its electric requirements by oilfired generators. The bulk of its $260 million 1974 capital spending needs will have to be raised externally. Furthermore, the regulatory climate is difficult. First-quarter earnings, off 29 per cent at 63 cents per share, imply a 78 percent payout rate on an annualized basis. Niagara reported a 25 per cent drop in first-quarter results, despite a 17 per cent increase in revenues.

Longer-term kilowatt-hour growth rate is projected at a modest 5.5 percent. Washington Gas, which supplies natural gas to Washington, D.C., parts of Maryland and Virgina, reported substantially lower earnings in March on reduced revenues.

After rate increases were denied in two of these areas, the company withdrew requests for the third area. Sell these latter three issues.

Silver Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Handy and Harman today quoted silver at $5.54 cents per fine ounce down 24.5 cents. Engelhard quoted silver bullion at $5.54 down 24.5 cents and fabricated silver at $5.682 down 25.10 cents.

NEW KENTFIELD STORE

Carriage House Foods, which took over the former Byrne's Fine Food location at 735 College Avenue in Kentfield, will hold its grand opening from Wednesday through Saturday this week (May 22 through 25), with prices lowered on 1700 items. Owner Richard Petersen and clerk Rosalie Sloan make sure that everything is in order for the grand opening celebration. "We are stressing quality produce and meats and are the only store in Marin with live lobsters," said Petersen. Carriage House Foods also has Fantasia bakery products and provides home delivery service. The new store announced a series of grand opening specials.

COMMON IN 10 YEARS

The Wrist Computer Is Coming

NEW YORK (BW) — Put your Dick Tracy wrist radio in your pocket, advises Henry Mullish, senior research scientist at New York University's Courant Institute of Mathematical Sciences.

In 10 years, he says, virtually every American adult and child will be wearing a wrist watch-size electronic calculator to compute anything from grade school arithmetic problems and household grocery bills to complex mathematical problems in schools and laboratories.

Speaking to a seminar on the state of the art and future of the electronic calculator, Mullish pointed to what he called "exponential" growth in the number of units put into use in the United States in recent years.

This growth (from one million sold in 1971 to an estimated 12 to 15 million new calculators which will be purchased in 1974) coupled with dramatic progress in semiconductor technology, has resulted in a market decrease in price in all types of electronic calculators.

The NYU scientist cited the Casio FX-10, introduced at the seminar, as an example of the kind of development which is popularizing the machines.

The FX-10, a new hand-held scientific calculator, has been developed by Casio Inc., to meet the needs of students, teachers, engineers, scientists, and others who require high technical capability in their calculators, but who are looking for the best value at the lowest possible price.

The new Casio unit sells for $99.95, yet it offers 10 of the most commonly used higher mathematical functions (square root, reciprocals, "PI," and trigonometric and logarithm functions) in a compact, versatile format.

Mullish envisions the day when every school desk will have a calculator built into it, much as ink wells used to be standard equipment. Lower grades will have simple arithmetic models, and the sophistication of the equipment will increase as the students move up the academic ladder.

To those who raise the question of whether using electronic aids might create a dependency in future generations to the point where they would have difficulty in doing their figuring on their own, Mullish has an answer.

"Take a child," he says, "who lives within walking distance of his school, but has a bicycle which he rides there. He certainly doesn't forget how to walk, but the fun of riding the bike makes school a more stimulating experience for him.

"In the same way," he says, "electronic calculaotrs serve as motivators, taking the drudgery out of math and freeing the mind for more worthwhile, creative work. What's more, at today's prices, the calculator is very likely to be less expensive than the bicycle."

Stocks Gain Slightly In Slow Going

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices edged higher in sluggish trading today on the New York Stock Exchange, with higher-priced issues attracting buyers following last week's heavy losses.

Among glamors attracting buyers, Texas Instruments climbed 2 ¾, IBM 2 ½ and Corning Glass 2. Motorola, Digital Equipment, Fairchild Camera, Polaroid, Merck and Bausch & Lomb each rose at least a point.

Stocks on the American Exchange fell slightly in quiet trading. Research-Cottrell, the volume leader, rose ¾ to 7 ⅝ on 98,900 shares.

GARDENER'S LIFE WORKS AUCTIONED

Shoppers and sightseers browse among some 200 bonsai trees from the estate of the late Leon Gagne of Strawberry. The Marin County public administrator's office sold the trees, on display Saturday in the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross, and was still totaling up the proceeds today. Gagne had devoted his life to growing hundreds of bonsai; the estate will be divided among any heirs that can be located, according to Dr. Donovan O. Cooke, public administrator-coroner.

Krug Lambastes Bales Over Molester Case

Edward M. Krug of San Rafael, candidate for Marin County district attorney, pointing to a recent grand jury indictment of an alleged child molester which was thrown out of court on a procedural error, has urged incumbent Bruce B. Bales, to take "a refresher course in basic law."

Bales himself brought the complaint to the grand jury, Krug said, adding that Bales "has tried so few cases himself in recent years that he must surely have been confident of a conviction in a case watched by every parent with young children. Five young girls, six to nine, testified before the grand jury," Krug said, giving "more than enough evidence to convince the grand jury to return an indictment against the alleged child molester.

"But the DA made a mistake which would have caused Owen Marshall to blush." Krug said, "He simply failed to have each of the girls to take an oath to tell the truth, even when the grand jury foreman, untrained in the law, suggested that the girls ought to be placed under oath."

As a result of Bales's error, according to Krug, "when the case came before the superior court, there was little the judge could do but throw the case out."

Krug said "this blatant example of poor judgment is as demoralizing to me as a citizen and parent as it is to law enforcement and the public."

BROCKBANK — A luncheon for Elaine Brockbank of Kentfield, candidate for Tamalpais High School District trustee, will be at noon tomorrow at the Tiburon home of Nikki Lamott, 34 Linda Vista Lane. A fundraising silent auction for Mrs. Brockbank will be given from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. tomorrow at the Larkspur home of Mrs. Fred W. Banducci, 345 Elm Avenue.

Impasse In Negotiations Over Pay

Tamalpais High School District Supt. Robert D. Torrey, acting as negotiator for district trustees, has declared an impasse in salary negotiations with teachers.

Torrey today said he took the action at a negotiating session Friday. Teachers are demanding 15 per cent raises. Trustees are offering 4 per cent. Negotiations have been going on since early April.

"We seemed to be going further apart because of the teachers' activity," Torrey said, referring to about 100 teacher pickets who marched at the district office during the negotiating session Friday.

A state mediator from the California State Conciliation Service will now enter the negotiations and attempt to bring both sides to a settlement, Torrey said. He expects a mediator to be available Thursday afternoon.

Teachers have promised to turn out in large numbers at trustees' meeting tonight to demonstrate their support for the 15 per cent raise. The salary item is not on the agenda, however, and Torrey said no action will be taken until mediation with the state representative begins.

Removal Of Ramps Not In Proposal

A recommendation that all access ramps to Highway 101 between Tamalpais Drive and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard be closed has been removed from the proposed Corte Madera general plan by the town's planning commission.

The commission took the action Saturday in the wake of protests from businessmen in the Lucky Drive area who feared freeway access to their firms would be lost.

William G. McBride, town zoning administrator, said the commission also passed the circulation element of the general plan Saturday.

McBride said commissioners added to Corte Madera's circulation plan a bicycle path between east and west Corte Madera, separate from vehicular routes. He said the path either could be added to an existing overpass above Highway 101 or could be a separate facility.

The commission also passed the seismic and public safety element, leaving only community services-commercial facilities and community appearance-environmental quality elements to be approved and sent to town council. Another public hearing on the plan will be held June 8 at 9 a.m. in town hall.

Porter Is Out Of Prison Early

LOMPOC, Calif. (UPI) — Herbert L. Porter, former scheduling director of the Committee to Re-elect the President, was released from the federal correctional institution three days early for good behavior, it was learned today.

The warden's office said Porter, who pleaded guilty to lying to the FBI about the disposition of funds of the committee, was released May 17 after serving 27 days of a scheduled 30-day sentence.

Porter entered the prison April 22 after voluntarily arriving at the prison gates early to avoid newsmen.

Supreme Court Rules States May Test Pollution On Factory Sites

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled unanimously today that a state may take an air pollution test out of doors on factory property without violating the Constitution's ban on unreasonable searches.

The case was raised by the state of Colorado, where Western Alfalfa Corp. had objected ho a test, without search warrant, of plumes of smoke emitted by one of its plants in Weld County.

State courts ruled that the test was a violation of the 4th Amendment to the Constitution, which bans unreasonable searches and seizures.

Justice William O. Douglas wrote the Supreme Court opinion holding that the amendment does not extend to observations made in "the open fields."

Attorneys general for 10 other states supported Colorado's position in the high court on the claim that the state court's decision, if affirmed, would restrict their ability to carry out air pollution control programs.

The states are Arkansas, Rhode Island, Michigan, West Virginia, Nebraska, Utah, South Carolina, Arizona, Georgia and North Carolina.

In his opinion, Douglas said, "The field inspector did not enter the plant or offices. He was not inspecting stacks, boilers, scrubbers, flues, grates or furnaces; nor was his inspection related to (the company's) files or papers. He had sighted what anyone in the city who was near the plant could see in the sky — plumes of smoke."

The Colorado Court of Appeals also said the test procedure was wrong because, since the company did not know about it until an antipollution order was issued, the hearing it received "lacked the fundamental elements of due process of law."

Douglas said the justices are not sure whether the lower court referred to state or federal "due process" and sent the case back for clarification of that and "any other questions that may be lurking in the case."

Driver In Car Fire Unidentified

Petaluma police said today they are unsure who drove the auto which crashed into a parked car on D Street early Saturday and burst into flames, badly burning the three Petaluma men inside.

Earlier they reported the car was driven by William R. Baxman, 23, of 808 Keokuk Street. But after talking to those in the vehicle, police said it was found that they did not agree on the driver's identity.

Baxman was reported in critical condition today at St. Francis Burn Center, San Francisco. James L. Fulkerson, 21, of 2427 Magnolia Avenue, was listed in critical condition at Community Hospital in Santa Rosa, where the third man, James H. Phelps 25, of 229 Douglas Street also was taken. Phelps was reported in satisfactory condition today.

The car in which the three were riding caught fire about 1:30 a.m. Saturday after crashing into the second car.

Police said today they believe the car was traveling between 65 and 80 miles an hour.

Joint Session Set On Plan Survey

The San Anselmo School District Board will meet in joint session with the district master plan survey committee at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Red Hill School library.

The committee is charged with soliciting community opinion on future school sites and facilities in the school district.

Man Arrested On Suspicion Of Drunken Driving

A Mill Valley man was arrested on suspicion of drunken driving and hit and run Saturday after he drove from the scene of a three-car crash and slammed into a power pole a short distance away, the highway patrol reported.

Richard D. Bardini, 43, of 503 Palma Way, was booked at Marin General Hospital, where he was reported in good condition today.

According to the highway patrol, Bardini drove onto Shoreline Highway from Palma Way at 1:10 p.m. and his car and a southbound auto driven by Anthony Rocco, 27, of Bolinas collided.

Rocco's car was pushed into the northbound lane, where it struck an oncoming auto driven by Arlene Cicogni, 21, of Grass Valley.

The highway patrol said Bardini then sped from the scene of the crash, lost control of his auto at Loring Avenue and Alturas Way and hit the power pole. Neither Rocco nor Miss Cicogni was hurt.

GARDENER'S LIFE WORKS AUCTIONED

Shoppers and sightseers browse among some 200 bonsai trees from the estate of the late Leon Gagne of Strawberry. The Marin County public administrator's office sold the trees, on display Saturday in the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross, and was still totaling up the proceeds today. Gagne had devoted his life to growing hundreds of bonsai; the estate will be divided among any heirs that can be located, according to Dr. Donovan O. Cooke, public administrator-coroner.

Krug Lambastes Bales Over Molester Case

Edward M. Krug of San Rafael, candidate for Marin County district attorney, pointing to a recent grand jury indictment of an alleged child molester which was thrown out of court on a procedural error, has urged incumbent Bruce B. Bales, to take "a refresher course in basic law."

Bales himself brought the complaint to the grand jury, Krug said, adding that Bales "has tried so few cases himself in recent years that he must surely have been confident of a conviction in a case watched by every parent with young children. Five young girls, six to nine, testified before the grand jury," Krug said, giving "more than enough evidence to convince the grand jury to return an indictment against the alleged child molester.

"But the DA made a mistake which would have caused Owen Marshall to blush." Krug said, "He simply failed to have each of the girls to take an oath to tell the truth, even when the grand jury foreman, untrained in the law, suggested that the girls ought to be placed under oath."

As a result of Bales's error, according to Krug, "when the case came before the superior court, there was little the judge could do but throw the case out."

Krug said "this blatant example of poor judgment is as demoralizing to me as a citizen and parent as it is to law enforcement and the public."

ANSWERS TO QUIZ ON PAGE 14

SEN. EDWARD F. KENNEDY
Income of $461,444

Tax Figures Are Given By Kennedy

BOSTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy D- ..., a member of one of the nation's richest families, had an income of $461,444 last year and paid $217,844 in taxes, according to his 1973 tax returns.

Kennedy gave the Boston Globe and the Herald American copies of his 1973 tax return but declined to divulge the net worth of his personal fortune.

All but $43,540 of the income came from family trust funds which total approximately $8.6 million, the Globe said. Senators make $42,500 a year.

"Although a long-time foe of special treatment for the oil industry, the retarn shows the senator has a minor interest in the Foreet Oil Co. which brought him $3,507.85 last year on four leases," the article said.

"Kennedy took a $765.24 deduction from this income because of the oil deplet on allowance, a tax incentive for oil speculators which he has long opposed, but which is still in effect."

In addition to his federal income taxes, Kennedy also paid $8,180.55 taxes on his Mc Lean, Va., home and $3,890 on his summer residence in Hyannis Port, Mass. He also paid $20,434 on his home mortgage and $3,890 on a chattel mortgage on his 50-foot sailboat.

Kennedy made his return public at the request of the newspaper. He declined to issue a statement on his worth "since that action might jeopardize the privacy of other family members.

"He said, however, he would expect the family to understand if he made such a disclosure in a bid for national office," the article said.

The Globe said $340,327 of Kennedy's 1973 income came from two trust funds set up for him by his father, the late Joeeph P. Kennedy. He also received $77,577 from trust funds set up for his brother, Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., and his sister, Kathleen Hartington, both of whom died leaving no children.

In addition to his Senate salary, the return showed Kennedy also made $3,355 from magazine articles and speeches.

Kennedy spent $36,069 for "business purposes out of his own pocket" and donated $4,678 to "charities and other deductible agencies," the article said.

WEST'S DIAMONDS

West opened the queen of diamonds, and East won with the ace. East returned the five of diamonds, and South took the king. When West played the eight of diamonds, South felt preety sure that the missing four of diamonds was in the East hand.

The diamonds don't seem to matter much, but they do. South's slam depends on the play of the clubs. The normal play is to lead a club to dummy's ace and then return a club to finesse with jack.

SUCCESSFUL FEINT

South improved his chances by means of a feint. After winning the second trick with the king of diamonds, South led out his three top spades.

West discarded a diamond on the queen of spades, and South knew what he needed to know; West held the queen of trumps.

It would seem that South was trying to discard dummy's last diamond on the queen of spades. If West had only worthless trumps he would ruff the queen of spades to prevent the diamond discard.

A PUZZLER

Why would West fail to ruff the queen of spades? Clearly because his trumps were valuable rather than worthless.

Having discovered the trump situation, South led the jack of clubs from his hand and let it ride for a finesse. The rest was easy. If West had covered with the queen of clubs, dummy's ace would win and then East's ten would be picked up.

SEN. EDWARD F. KENNEDY
Income of $461,444

Tax Figures Are Given By Kennedy

BOSTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy D- ..., a member of one of the nation's richest families, had an income of $461,444 last year and paid $217,844 in taxes, according to his 1973 tax returns.

Kennedy gave the Boston Globe and the Herald American copies of his 1973 tax return but declined to divulge the net worth of his personal fortune.

All but $43,540 of the income came from family trust funds which total approximately $8.6 million, the Globe said. Senators make $42,500 a year.

"Although a long-time foe of special treatment for the oil industry, the retarn shows the senator has a minor interest in the Foreet Oil Co. which brought him $3,507.85 last year on four leases," the article said.

"Kennedy took a $765.24 deduction from this income because of the oil deplet on allowance, a tax incentive for oil speculators which he has long opposed, but which is still in effect."

In addition to his federal income taxes, Kennedy also paid $8,180.55 taxes on his Mc Lean, Va., home and $3,890 on his summer residence in Hyannis Port, Mass. He also paid $20,434 on his home mortgage and $3,890 on a chattel mortgage on his 50-foot sailboat.

Kennedy made his return public at the request of the newspaper. He declined to issue a statement on his worth "since that action might jeopardize the privacy of other family members.

"He said, however, he would expect the family to understand if he made such a disclosure in a bid for national office," the article said.

The Globe said $340,327 of Kennedy's 1973 income came from two trust funds set up for him by his father, the late Joeeph P. Kennedy. He also received $77,577 from trust funds set up for his brother, Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., and his sister, Kathleen Hartington, both of whom died leaving no children.

In addition to his Senate salary, the return showed Kennedy also made $3,355 from magazine articles and speeches.

Kennedy spent $36,069 for "business purposes out of his own pocket" and donated $4,678 to "charities and other deductible agencies," the article said.

A LONG HISTORY

San Rafael Fire Captain Mike Tompkins (top left) tells a group of fourth graders from St. Raphael's School about a hose cart dating back to the early 1900s. Callaway Will Decide Personally Whether Calley Will Win Parole

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army Secretary Howard H. Callaway, who past month cut in half the My Lai massacre sentence of William L. Calley, Jr., expects to decide personally whether the former lieutenant wins parole in six more months.

In an interview with United Press International, Callaway said there was no doubt in his mind Calley was guilty as charged of murdering at least 22 Vietnamese civilians. "That decision was fairly easy," he said.

The world was stunned when stories of the massacre at My Lai leaked out. It never has been established exactly how many men, women and children died when troops from the Americal Division swept through the village on March 16, 1968, but estimates have ranged as high as 500.

Calley is the only soldier who has been convicted of crimes in connection with the massacre, and he has spent only one night in jail. Since his conviction, Calley was restricted to his bachelor's officers' quarters at Ft. Benning' Ga., until he was freed on bail earlier this year.

Calley's case came to Callaway's desk earlier this year after appeals through the military courts had been exhausted. On April 16, Callaway confirmed the coviction and the 20-year sentence as well.

But Callaway also had on his desk a separate issue, a report from the Army's Clemency Board that suggested cutting the sentence to 17 years. Looking at that issue, Callaway said he found two mitigating circumstances that warranted his reducing the sentence to 10 years.

First, the Army secretary said, "Calley was only one of a number involved...to that extent he was looked at as a scapegoat." Callaway noted that 13 men were charged with crimes at My Lai and five were court-martialed, although Calley was the only one convicted.

The other mitigating factor, the Army secretary said, was his feeling that "there was a good deal of evidence Calley thought he was obeying legal orders." Military law states that an illegal order must not be carried out. The law also states that it is illegal to shoot unresisting captives whether they are civilians or enemy troops.

During Calley's officer training, he was given one hour of group instruction in the laws of war. Since the My Lai massacre, the Army has greatly increased the emphasis given the laws and the importance of disobeying illegal orders.

Calley contended he was only obeying orders from his superior, Capt. Ernest L. Medina, who denied giving the order and who was found innocent of any crime.

The Army secretary refused to step into the middle of that dispute but said even if the order had been issued, Calley "should have known it was not a lawful order."

President Nixon two weeks ago reviewed Callaway's action and decided to make no changes although he could have reduced the sentence still further.

Under military law a man is eligible for parole after serving one-third of his sentence, which would be 40 months in Calley's case. Calley was jailed one day and then released under orders from Nixon and confined to his quarters for 34 months, all of which counts as jail time.

Two months ago Calley was ordered released on bail by a civilian court while his lawyers appeal the case through the civilian judicial system. Should that appeal fail, Calley will be taken to the stockade at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., and six months later come before the Parole Board.

If that board recommends parole, the case will return to a section of Callaway's office. Normally such recommendations would be processed by junior officers and never come to an Army secretary's attention. But Callaway said, "I expect I would take up the case again. There's no reason to avoid it."

Scotland Yard On Bomb Alert

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard officials ordered stepped-up security checks of government offices, mail deliveries and other likely targets today to head off a feared new wave of bombings in the capital.

A suspected Irish Republican Army (IRA) car bomb exploded yesterday in a Heathrow International airport parking lot hospitalizing two persons, sowing panic among travelers, and closing the airport for nearly five hours.

Twelve hours later police found and defused a bomb planted in a government-owned building in South London.

Policewomen Do As Well As Men

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A study of policewomen's performance in Washington, where they pull the same duty as men, shows that women officers generally do as well in tough patrol work.

The Police Foundation said yesterday that a study of two precincts concluded sex is not a valid consideration in hiring or assigning police officers.

Foundation President Patrick V. Murphy said the study is significant because the 1972 Equal Employment Opportunity Act requires every police department to hire and assign men and women on an equal basis or "demonstrate there is a legitimate occupational qualification for not doing so."

"While this evaluation measured the effectiveness of Washington policewomen on patrol, we believe the results are generally useful nationwide," said Murphy, who formerly headed police departments here and in New York City.

The study contained these conclusions:

Women and men on patrol performed generally in the same way. There was no difference in their ability to deal with violent or potentially violent situations.

Women made fewer arrests and gave fewer traffic tickets than the men did. But the women spent slightly less time on patrol. About one fifth of the women made more arrests than men did.

More men than women were cited for "serious unbecoming conduct."

Women got light duty as a result of injuries more often than men but did not lose more time from work because of injuries.

Driving accident records for men and women were about the same but women needed two weeks more time to pass the police driving test.

Following are typical observer reports as summed up in the study:

"One policewoman flipped a belligerent, 250-pound intoxicated man over her shoulder and then handcuffed him."

"Another policewoman found lying on the sidewalk a drunk male who became belligerent. The policewoman 'kinda charmed the guy' and persuaded him to go to the detoxification center."

"Another policewoman was handling an incident 'beautifully' ... as she worked to persuade a drunk to go home with his wife. Then a male officer interceded, putting his hands on the drunk and started some pushing and shoving. The patrolman ended up arresting the man and getting credit for an arrest."

Hearing Slated On Demotion

Earl Thomason, who has fought a losing battle to keep his job as principal of Mary E. Silveira School in the Dixie School District, hasn't given up his fight yet.

Thomason has requested the school district board to conduct an "open rehearing" on his reassignment to teaching duties. The board will consider the request at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the administration building.

The board in February demoted Thomason to teacher, and reaffirmed that decision during reconsideration of the matter last month.

Pat Opposed Tapes Release

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pat Nixon considered the White House tapes related to Watergate like "private love letters" and did not believe President Nixon should release them, People magazine said yesterday.

People said Mrs. Nixon told Helene Drown, a longtime friend, the tapes could be compared with "private love letters" meant for "one person alone."

Mrs. Nixon also indicated she shared Nixon's distrust of news media by telling Mrs. Drown "It's right out of 'The Merchant of Venice.' They're after the last pound of flesh," People said.

Segretti Hires Literary Agent

FREDERICK, Md. (UPI) — Political trickster Donald Segretti has hired a New York literary agent to handle publication of his "dirty tricks" accounts, a radio station said yesterday.

WFMD said the Scott Meredith Literary Agency has tentatively agreed to handle publishing arrangements. Sid Meredith of the agency was quoted as saying that no contract has been signed and the agency has not received any part of the manuscript.

Segretti served a six-month prison term for conviction on three misdemeanor charges stemming from the 1972 presidential primary in Florida.

Several Bills Aimed At Easing Woes Of Sex Attack Victims

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Californaa lawmakers this week will consider a raft of rival proposals designed to reduce embarassment suffered by rape victims and to end farm labor strife.

The legislature also will grapple with measures aimed at requiring President Nixon to pay state taxes on any future income and fulfill Gov. Ronald Reagan's dream of bridling state government's growing expenditures.

This will be the last week of sessions for the Assembly before the June 4 election, in which all 80 Assembly seats are being contested. The Senate, which has 20 of its 40 seats up for grabs, will recess May 30 for the election.

Thirteen various measures dealing with rape will be considered tomorrow in the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee.

A major Senate-passed bill (SB1678) by Sen. Alan Robbins, D-North Hollywood, is designed to eliminate the need for a rape victim to reveal her past sexual experiences in a trial.

The bill would make specific instances of the victim's previous sexual contacts with persons other than the accused attacker inadmissable as evidence in rape trials.

Robbins has estimated as many as 80,000 rapes go unreported in California each year because women fear being required to reveal intimate contacts with other persons in court.

Most of the other rape bills were drafted by the committee's staff and authored officially by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles.

Among other things, the bills would require a defense attorney to establish strong justification before going into evidence of the victim's prior sexual history and severely restrict use by the jury of information about the woman's previous sexual acts.

Six rival bills designed to quell farm labor problems will be heard by the Assembly Labor Relations Committee Wednesday. Most of the bills create a state commission to conduct secret elections to determine union representation.

Some of the bills ban secondary boycotts—a provision vehemently opposed by the United Farm Workers Union. Others have election provisions that would purportedly help the UFW's organizing.

No action is expected Wednesday. However, it will be the first full hearing by the Assembly this year on the longunresolved issue.

The measures on Nixon's taxes and Reagan's hopes on state expenditures were to be considered late today by the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee.

One bill by Assemblyman William T. Bagley of San Rafael, a Republican candidate for controller, provides that all federal officials—particularly Nixon — domiciled in California automatically shall be state residents for state income tax purposes.

Under current law, Nixon has been allowed to claim he is a nonresident of California even though he votes in the state. The Bagley bill would close this "loophole." Nixon has paid taxes on California -derived income, however.

Several other Bagley bills before the committee are designed to carry out the concept of Prop. 1, Reagan's defeated initiative to limit state taxation.

Perhaps the most important bill of the package would require the legislature to pass a new tax for any proposal costing the state more than $1 million.

Record In Rice Production Seen

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California rice farmers are seeding 440,000 acres of paddies this spring for what is expected to be the largest crop in state history.

State agriculture and industry officials report acreage this year is up 37,000 acres over the 403,000 planted in 1973 and this boost combined with continued high yields should push production to 24 million hundredweight (100-pound) bags.

The previous record production was 23 million hundredweight set in 1968.

Segretti served a six-month prison term for conviction on three misdemeanor charges stemming from the 1972 presidential primary in Florida.

Several Bills Aimed At Easing Woes Of Sex Attack Victims

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Californaa lawmakers this week will consider a raft of rival proposals designed to reduce embarassment suffered by rape victims and to end farm labor strife.

The legislature also will grapple with measures aimed at requiring President Nixon to pay state taxes on any future income and fulfill Gov. Ronald Reagan's dream of bridling state government's growing expenditures.

This will be the last week of sessions for the Assembly before the June 4 election, in which all 80 Assembly seats are being contested. The Senate, which has 20 of its 40 seats up for grabs, will recess May 30 for the election.

Thirteen various measures dealing with rape will be considered tomorrow in the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee.

A major Senate-passed bill (SB1678) by Sen. Alan Robbins, D-North Hollywood, is designed to eliminate the need for a rape victim to reveal her past sexual experiences in a trial.

The bill would make specific instances of the victim's previous sexual contacts with persons other than the accused attacker inadmissable as evidence in rape trials.

Robbins has estimated as many as 80,000 rapes go unreported in California each year because women fear being required to reveal intimate contacts with other persons in court.

Most of the other rape bills were drafted by the committee's staff and authored officially by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles.

Among other things, the bills would require a defense attorney to establish strong justification before going into evidence of the victim's prior sexual history and severely restrict use by the jury of information about the woman's previous sexual acts.

Six rival bills designed to quell farm labor problems will be heard by the Assembly Labor Relations Committee Wednesday. Most of the bills create a state commission to conduct secret elections to determine union representation.

Some of the bills ban secondary boycotts—a provision vehemently opposed by the United Farm Workers Union. Others have election provisions that would purportedly help the UFW's organizing.

No action is expected Wednesday. However, it will be the first full hearing by the Assembly this year on the longunresolved issue.

The measures on Nixon's taxes and Reagan's hopes on state expenditures were to be considered late today by the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee.

One bill by Assemblyman William T. Bagley of San Rafael, a Republican candidate for controller, provides that all federal officials—particularly Nixon — domiciled in California automatically shall be state residents for state income tax purposes.

Under current law, Nixon has been allowed to claim he is a nonresident of California even though he votes in the state. The Bagley bill would close this "loophole." Nixon has paid taxes on California -derived income, however.

Several other Bagley bills before the committee are designed to carry out the concept of Prop. 1, Reagan's defeated initiative to limit state taxation.

Perhaps the most important bill of the package would require the legislature to pass a new tax for any proposal costing the state more than $1 million.

Record In Rice Production Seen

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California rice farmers are seeding 440,000 acres of paddies this spring for what is expected to be the largest crop in state history.

State agriculture and industry officials report acreage this year is up 37,000 acres over the 403,000 planted in 1973 and this boost combined with continued high yields should push production to 24 million hundredweight (100-pound) bags.

The previous record production was 23 million hundredweight set in 1968.

Roth Says Opponents Hedging On Issue Of Political Reform

CHICO (UPI) — William Matson Roth of Ross, Democratic candidate for governor, today accused two front-running rivals of running to cover on the issue of political reform.

Roth said in remarks prepared for Chico State University that Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., and Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti "hedge when it comes to active support" of Prop. 9, the political reform initiative on the June ballot.

"They have called for campaign reforms after using office staffs for campaigning, accepting corporation contributions, and urging continued use of a multitude of tax avoiding committee," he said.

Roth said he fully supports the measure.

The wealthy San Francisco business executive told students to "not be fooled by politicians in both parties who give lip service to reform but run for cover when action is needed."

Roth also said a "revolution of imagination" is needed to keep democracy strong, and urged the students to "break through the groupie mentality of the media and learn fully how our system works and how to change it."

He said the "revolution" does not mean working in "left field" nor does it mean working within the present system.

"It does mean changing the system in the only way it can and should be done," he said "by playing coalition politics."

"Playing it in the good sense that the Democratic party under Franklin Roosevelt did — helping to bring together the disadvantaged, the workers, the farmers and the committed," Roth said.

Roth also said he favored decriminalization of marijuana and lowering the drinking age to 18.

Roth was on a campaign swing through Sacramento River towns in the northern Central Valley.

In Red Bluff, he told a rally of supporters that central coordination is needed to stop pollution of the environment.

He called for formation of a new environmental protection board which would have the final say in all environmental matters. The board would now do the work done by the Office of Noise Control, Air Resources Board, Transportation Board, Solid Waste Management Board and Water Resources Board, he said.

EVEN DOG HAIR USED

Spinning Activities Are No Yarn

"HEY, WAIT until you brush me," might be the thought of Moby-Dog, a Samoyed owned by a neighbor of Mrs. John Miklos of Novato. Mrs. Miklos uses the dog's hair brushings to spin, dye and weave or knit into various items. The hair of a Samoyed works up much like mohair, Mrs. Miklos says. The spindle she is using is one like those used by the Navajo Indians. She also spins and weaves sheep wool and brushings of other long-haired dogs, and Angora cat and goat hair. (Photos by Bob Hax)

By DOROTHY NEWELL

Wool from all sorts of animals and dyes made from natural plants and vegetables go into the yarn made by Mrs. John Miklos of Novato.

Starting from scratch, Mrs. Miklos gathers sheep's wool and dog hair brushings. She finds Samoyed, Collie, Poodle or any long-haired dog, Angora cat and goat hair are the best to spin, dye and weave.

She even tried human hair but it didn't work.

Diane Miklos says she prefers "peasantry type of art." A native of Minnesota, she was graduated from the University of Minnesota, where she majored in art and natural science. She also received a degree in occupational therapy at California State University, San Jose.

She teaches "artsy crafts" to kindergarten children through the fifth grade and also teaches students at Sonoma State College working toward elementary teaching credentials.

Mrs. Miklos likes to spin wool before it is washed, as the lanolin is retained and provides a smoother yarn. She buys some of her sheep wool from a store in San Francisco, and she noted that it is interesting to see the wool before it is cleaned. For instance, some of it has pine needlses and red soil in it before it is combed.

THE MIKLOS daughters, Kari, 10, and Kris, 16, raised sheep as a 4-H project, and Mrs. Miklos has spun the wool from them.

She has found that teasel, a prickly herb covered with stiff hooked bracts, has a double use. She uses them for combing the wool and also as a dye which makes the yarn yellow.

She described some of the many natural plants that she uses for dye and the colors that result in the wool:

The staghorn lichen from the Sierra will color the wool lime or chartreuse; walnut hulls and bark of trees, brown or black; tansy ragwort flowers, a warm yellow; the root of dock, orange to rust; marigolds and zinneas, gold and plae green, coreopsis, which Mrs. Miklos grows in her garden, gold to brass; lichens, which grow in the shady part of the deck and on the rocks of the Miklos home, pale yellow, chartreuse, grey green and also goes into the pinks; burr clover, yellow and horsetails, which grow near creeks, turns the wool a soft greyish-lime green.

The yucca cactus has a small bug on it called a cochineal, which colors the wool purple, and household vegetables which can be used are carrot tops, turmeric, onion skins, parsley and tomato vines, Diane Miklos said.

TO PREPARE the dye, she uses alum and cream of tartar to set the colors, using three parts to one, and the dye material one-to-one to the wool. The wool must be dampened and be the same temperature as the dye, she said.

She also advised that the Scottish people use lichens for their Harris tweeds and rather than alum and cream of tartar, they soak the wool in urine. The Navajo Indians use sheep urine to hold the dye in wool, she said.

MRS. JOHN Miklos holds one of the vests she has made from "scratch" in her home in Novato. The sweater vest is made from sheep wool and dog hair brushings. Colors are golden and yellow made from the dye of onion skins, acacia and carrots tops. The center of the vest is purple made with a dye using cochineal bugs found on yucca plants. On the sofa behind Mrs. Miklos are several pillows she has made, including one that is hand loomed.

Barbara N. Buettner Will Marry

The engagement of Barbara N. Buettner of Greenbrae to Stephen A. Bracken of Nephi, Utah, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Buettner of Greenbrae.

A graduate of Redwood High School, Barbara attended Brigham Young University and spent a semester with the BYU study abroad travel program in Salzburg, Austria. Barbara is the sister of Holly and Brook Buettner.

Stephen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwain R. Bracken of Nephi, attended Snow College in Ephraim and Brigham Young University. He is employed by J. and L. Feeding, Inc., in Provo. He is the brother of Mark, John, Matthew, Rebecca, Deborah and Mary Ann Bracken.

The couple will be married June 15 at Oakland Temple, Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

MANY OF the natural plants and vegetables used in dyeing wool are displayed by Diane Miklos, who is dying her own wool in the vat. Sierra staghorn liche, tansy ragwort, hulls of walnuts and onion skins are among the plants and vegetables used for the dyes, making the various colors for yarn to knit into sweaters and to weave.

Few Recalled IUD's Were Used In Marin

By JOAN LISETOR

Planned Parenthood of Marin has not used any of the new copper intrauterine contraceptive devices, which have been withdrawn from the market because of a risk of infection, and the Marin County Public Health Department's Family Planning Clinic has not yet made a decision what to do about the 10 it has inserted.

The federal Food and Drug Administration, announcing the recall of the IUDs, said the recall does not apply to those that have been inserted. The copper IUDs are being recalled because of complaints from physicians that packages appeared to have defective seals and lacked assurance of sterility, according to the manufacturer, G.D. Searle and Co. of Skokie, Ill.

The FDA said that nonsterility does not necessarily mean that the IUDs are contaminated, but they could carry the risk of infection.

According to Dr. Theodore D. Hiatt of the county Family Planning Clinic, only sterilized copper IUDs, called CU-7s, were used. A representative from the laboratory inspected the CU-7s on hand at the clinic last week and took back those with broken seals, he said.

Dr. Hiatt said no more CU-7s would be used until the situation is clarified. Referring to women who already have CU-7s, he said, "If she hasn't had a problem yet, she probably won't have. We haven't yet decided whether to remove them because we haven't had a conference yet."

Planned Parenthood did not use the CU-7s because they have not been approved by its national office, according to Mary Buck of the Marin office.

EVEN DOG HAIR USED

Spinning Activities Are No Yarn

"HEY, WAIT until you brush me," might be the thought of Moby-Dog, a Samoyed owned by a neighbor of Mrs. John Miklos of Novato. Mrs. Miklos uses the dog's hair brushings to spin, dye and weave or knit into various items. The hair of a Samoyed works up much like mohair, Mrs. Miklos says. The spindle she is using is one like those used by the Navajo Indians. She also spins and weaves sheep wool and brushings of other long-haired dogs, and Angora cat and goat hair. (Photos by Bob Hax)

By DOROTHY NEWELL

Wool from all sorts of animals and dyes made from natural plants and vegetables go into the yarn made by Mrs. John Miklos of Novato.

Starting from scratch, Mrs. Miklos gathers sheep's wool and dog hair brushings. She finds Samoyed, Collie, Poodle or any long-haired dog, Angora cat and goat hair are the best to spin, dye and weave.

She even tried human hair but it didn't work.

Diane Miklos says she prefers "peasantry type of art." A native of Minnesota, she was graduated from the University of Minnesota, where she majored in art and natural science. She also received a degree in occupational therapy at California State University, San Jose.

She teaches "artsy crafts" to kindergarten children through the fifth grade and also teaches students at Sonoma State College working toward elementary teaching credentials.

Mrs. Miklos likes to spin wool before it is washed, as the lanolin is retained and provides a smoother yarn. She buys some of her sheep wool from a store in San Francisco, and she noted that it is interesting to see the wool before it is cleaned. For instance, some of it has pine needlses and red soil in it before it is combed.

THE MIKLOS daughters, Kari, 10, and Kris, 16, raised sheep as a 4-H project, and Mrs. Miklos has spun the wool from them.

She has found that teasel, a prickly herb covered with stiff hooked bracts, has a double use. She uses them for combing the wool and also as a dye which makes the yarn yellow.

She described some of the many natural plants that she uses for dye and the colors that result in the wool:

The staghorn lichen from the Sierra will color the wool lime or chartreuse; walnut hulls and bark of trees, brown or black; tansy ragwort flowers, a warm yellow; the root of dock, orange to rust; marigolds and zinneas, gold and plae green, coreopsis, which Mrs. Miklos grows in her garden, gold to brass; lichens, which grow in the shady part of the deck and on the rocks of the Miklos home, pale yellow, chartreuse, grey green and also goes into the pinks; burr clover, yellow and horsetails, which grow near creeks, turns the wool a soft greyish-lime green.

The yucca cactus has a small bug on it called a cochineal, which colors the wool purple, and household vegetables which can be used are carrot tops, turmeric, onion skins, parsley and tomato vines, Diane Miklos said.

TO PREPARE the dye, she uses alum and cream of tartar to set the colors, using three parts to one, and the dye material one-to-one to the wool. The wool must be dampened and be the same temperature as the dye, she said.

She also advised that the Scottish people use lichens for their Harris tweeds and rather than alum and cream of tartar, they soak the wool in urine. The Navajo Indians use sheep urine to hold the dye in wool, she said.

Mrs. Miklos uses three portable looms, a Navajo, an early American loom and a Turkish loom, which she takes to her classes. When she uses her spinning wheel, the children are fascinated because it spins so much faster than by hand. "It's like an industrial revolution," she remarked.

Other arts and crafts that Mrs. Miklos makes are dried apple dolls, stoneware ceramics and paintings.

MRS. JOHN Miklos holds one of the vests she has made from "scratch" in her home in Novato. The sweater vest is made from sheep wool and dog hair brushings. Colors are golden and yellow made from the dye of onion skins, acacia and carrots tops. The center of the vest is purple made with a dye using cochineal bugs found on yucca plants. On the sofa behind Mrs. Miklos are several pillows she has made, including one that is hand loomed.

Barbara N. Buettner Will Marry

The engagement of Barbara N. Buettner of Greenbrae to Stephen A. Bracken of Nephi, Utah, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Buettner of Greenbrae.

A graduate of Redwood High School, Barbara attended Brigham Young University and spent a semester with the BYU study abroad travel program in Salzburg, Austria. Barbara is the sister of Holly and Brook Buettner.

Stephen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwain R. Bracken of Nephi, attended Snow College in Ephraim and Brigham Young University. He is employed by J. and L. Feeding, Inc., in Provo. He is the brother of Mark, John, Matthew, Rebecca, Deborah and Mary Ann Bracken.

The couple will be married June 15 at Oakland Temple, Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

ON THE AGENDA

Coupons Flowing Into Alaskan Town To Build New Gymnasium

DEAR HELEN:

We would like to express our gratitude to you for printing our plea for Betty Crocker Coupons, which we are saving toward a gymnasium here in Galena, Alaska. We can never hope to adequately express our thanks to the many wonderful people who have responded.

Coupons arrive each day from all over the "Lower 48." Some grade schools and women's clubs are even making us their special projects!

Many people enclose letters of support with their coupons, and we are trying to answer them as soon as possible.

Although the coupon drive had been started in our village back in 1973, the total number collected was only about 8,000. Now, thanks to your readers, we have collected nearly half a million!

General Mills has been most generous in granting us an extension on collections until August, 1975 — and our goal is 20 million coupons! This will not pay for the entire gymnasium, but it will contribute $100,000 toward the final goal.

Again, our thanks to you and all your wonderful readers — we are really overwhelmed by the generosity of all these people. At the end of our project, the village of Galena will have a gymnasium for students and villagers alike! — OFFICERS OF THE GALENA SPORTS ASSOCIATION

DEAR READERS:

Since you've been so enthusiastic about the Galena gymnasium project, let's make the collection of some additional 19,000,000 Betty Crocker Coupons for our special goal.

You've put several other collections (for hospitals and life-saving equipment) over the top. Now, here's a chance to help healthy kids — and their parents —remain healthy and sound.

Ask your friends and relatives to save their unwanted coupons and send them with yours to: Galena Sports Association, P.O. Box 64, Galena, Alaska, 99741.

I'm betting you'll make our quota by August, 1975, and I've never yet been wrong about my readers! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My daughter wants a career in writing, and she's good. But he says the big magazines won't buy from unknowns: You have to be famous or notorious before you can sell articles to these "slicks."

She's determined she is going to try for the "confession" magazines. I don't even like her reading them, much less writing for them. I tell her they have their own dirt-peddling writers and she shouldn't get involved wtih this slush.

As a writer, what's your opinion? — ANTI-PORNO MOM

DEAR MOM:

"Confession" magazines are not porno! Stories in the better confessions are as moral as . . . well, TV soap operas — with the bad guys getting their "just desserts," and good either "triumphing over all" or suffering mightily to show how black the villain is.

As for markets: Your daughter is wrong in thinking the "slicks" won't consider unknown writers. If she is good enough, she'll be accepted — but she must be very, very good for she'll have much competition. Meanwhile . . . Hundreds of now-famous authors came up via the "confession magazine" ladder. This is an honorable way to learn while you earn, and you'd be surprised how many freelancers try it. (And how selective are the editors — they won't buy shoddy material.) If your daughter plans to make writing her career, these bread-and-butter markets are her best bet. And even so, she'll get her share of rejection slips. I wish her luck — and a tough hide. — H.

ANNE SITTENAUER serenades her husband of 50 years, Joseph L. Sittenauer, with an organ rendition of "Love's Old Sweet Song" at their Novato home.

Anne, Joseph Sittenauer Celebrate In Novato After 50 Married Years

The former Anne Theis and Joseph Sittenauer grew up on farms in Kansas prior to their marriage 50 years ago at St. Joseph's Church in Wathena, Kan.

Then the couple ran their own farm, raising grain until Sittenauer went into carpentry, a profession he continued until his retirement in Novato in 1969. Now he puts his skill to use one day a week making special furniture for the handicapped children at Marindale School in Terra Linda.

Although no longer farming, they grow vegetables and flowers in the garden of their Novato home, and Mrs. Sittenauer cans the fruits from their fruit trees. She also makes jams and jellies and cans pickles from the vegetable garden.

The couple came to Marin from Kansas in 1948, settling in San Rafael until 1960 when they moved to their Novato home. Both are active in the Novato Senior Citizens.

Marking their 50 years of marrige recently, they repeated their marriage vows at Our Lady of Loretto Catholic Church in Novato.

Attending the couple at the Novato ceremony were Mrs. Emil Schneider of Wathena, sister of the bride, and Bernard Sittenauer of Achison, brother of the bridegroom.

Also in the golden wedding ceremony were the couple's granddaughter and grandson, Cynthis Sittenauer of Oxnard Philip Sittenauer Jr. of Novato, and their only great grandchild, Scott Sitenauer, son of the Michel Sittenauers of Milwaukee, Wis.

The couple's children held a reception for the Sittenauers at Moose Lodge in Novato. Their sons and daughters are Louis Sittenauer of Novato, Mrs. James Keenan of Corte Madera, Joseph Sittenauer of San Mateo, Gergory Sittenauer of Oxnard, and Mrs. J.W. Penders of Chula Vista. The couple also have 17 grandchildren.

Also attending the ceremony were Mrs. Sittenauer's other sisters and brothers, Mrs. Vice Ireland of Portland, Ore., Mrs. Matt Sittenauer of Atchison, Herbet Pitt of Castro Valley, Laurence Theis of Folsom; and Bernard Theis of Danville. Her brother Charles Theis of Wathena could not attend. Sittenauer's brother Isador Sittenauer of Atchison also came for the celebration.

Dust, Dirt, Grime Menace To Furs

Dust, dirt and grime are a menace to furs. Furs should be cleaned and glazed at least once a season. Some women think air-conditioning or cedar closets provide adequate storage for furs, but only professional cold storage can keep the skins from drying out and losing their natural beauty.

"A fur garment is the most expensive part of a woman's wardrobe in the beginning," maintains New York furrier Harry Treu, "but when you divide the cost by the number of years you can wear it, furs are almost a bargain."

Corduroys Gain Fashion Ground

Corduroys are on the fashion ascendancy this year. They may even steal some thunder from the ubiquitous blue jean. They're versatile and appear in all the summer pastels.

They're kept fresh and crisp by proper laundering. Turn corduroys inside out to protect the nap, zip up all zippers, and launder in cool water.

Knowledge Series Speakers Named

Charlene Kelzer, program director of the Marin Young Women's Christian Association, and feminist counselor Pat Gallagher of San Anselmo will lead the discussion at 7:30 tonight for the Knowledge is Power series at the Marin YWCA in San Rafael. Their topic will be "Living With Monogamy."

Mrs. Kelzer, a family counselor, also conducts self-awareness classes for the Family Service Agency of Marin.

MONEY MATTERS

Secretary May Seek Loan To Complete College Plan

By ROGERT EDWARDS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

I have been working as a secretary for the past 20 years, and I want to complete seven courses in college to earn an AB degree. I need a loan for living and college expenses. I do have some stock. What kind of loan would be best for me? — S.M.

Check first with the financial aid counselor at the college you plan to attend. Education loans range from those guaranteed by the government to private plans sponsored by banks and other lenders, usually at low interest, if available.

I couldn't advise selling or holding your stock without knowing the details of your portfolio, but you could use it as collateral for a loan to reduce interest rates. Look also at any cash-value insurance you may own. Insurance loans frequently carry interest rates of 5 or 6 per cent.

I WOULD like some help making out a budget. — M.S.

Three elements are essential in developing a spending plan and making it work for you.

Determine from your check stubs and other records how and where you are spending your money now. Divide spending into 12 to 14 categories — food, housing, transportation, clothing, etc.

Analyze current spending and decide which categories are out of line. Then, divide all of your available income among the categories, including debt repayment and savings or investment.

Keep track to make sure actual spending matches your planned spending. From time to time you will want to change the pattern. Without a record you can't effectively manage current and future spending.

IS IT NECESSARY to obtain the services of a lawyer to handle federal inheritance taxes? A lawyer told us that his fee, as set by the bar association, would be the same percentage of the taxable estate as if the estate had gone through probate. — W.O.

A lawyer is not required to complete the federal estate tax return any more than a CPA must compute and file individual income tax returns. While the federal estate tax return appears formidable, a local IRS office can and will answer your specific questions; the office will not fill out the return for you.

If you would like to have a lawyer do it, courts have ruled that fee schedules set by bar associations are not enforceable; you can shop for variation in fees.

WHEN I bought a new car last month, my trade-in didn't cover the down payment. The dealer arranged with a firm down the street to lend me the difference, then he financed the car through the manufacturer's credit company. Is borrowing to pay a down payment legal? — B.F.

Borrowing the cash was legal enough, but your judgment may be open to question. If you can't come up with enough trade-in value on your old car plus enough cash to make a one-third payment down, you probably cannot afford to buy a new car.

Instead, you might consider a used car with less optional equipment (including a standard rather than increased horsepower engine), or simply wait until you accumulate the money needed for the new-car down payment. Otherwise, you may be overextended on credit.

Reunion Comes To End For Sampietro Family

A history-making reunion for the Sampietro family of San Rafael, Petaluma and Milan, Italy ended recently when Salvatore Sampietro, his wife Lena, and sister Maria boarded the airplane to return home to Italy.

Salvatore came to visit his 85-year-old brother Ben in Petaluma, whom he had not seen in 62 years, and who now lives in a convalescent home. He also visited his brother Frank Sampietro and his wife in San Rafael, where the three visitors from Italy were houseguests for six weeks.

During the six weeks, the three brothers and their sister and families had many gatherings, and the Frank Sampietros toured the visitors to points of interest around the Bay Area and to Reno. Frank, a former owner of the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito, said that his brother Ben came to California from Italy in 1912 and sent money back to Frank to come in 1921. Ben became owner and operated a large dairy ranch in Hicks Valley for many years, and his sons Albert and Ildo and their families now live in Petaluma. Ben had never returned to Italy to visit his brother Salvatore, a retired umbrella maker, but Frank returned to see Salvatore in 1967.

In 1968 Maria Sampietro, their sister, came to visit her two brothers in San Rafael and Petaluma.

Relatives and friends celebrated the departure of Salvatore, Lena and Maria Sampietro for Italy last week with a large party at the Frank Sampietro home in San Rafael, complete with Italian foods and accordion music and singing.

ANNE SITTENAUER serenades her husband of 50 years, Joseph L. Sittenauer, with an organ rendition of "Love's Old Sweet Song" at their Novato home.

Anne, Joseph Sittenauer Celebrate In Novato After 50 Married Years

The former Anne Theis and Joseph Sittenauer grew up on farms in Kansas prior to their marriage 50 years ago at St. Joseph's Church in Wathena, Kan.

Then the couple ran their own farm, raising grain until Sittenauer went into carpentry, a profession he continued until his retirement in Novato in 1969. Now he puts his skill to use one day a week making special furniture for the handicapped children at Marindale School in Terra Linda.

Although no longer farming, they grow vegetables and flowers in the garden of their Novato home, and Mrs. Sittenauer cans the fruits from their fruit trees. She also makes jams and jellies and cans pickles from the vegetable garden.

The couple came to Marin from Kansas in 1948, settling in San Rafael until 1960 when they moved to their Novato home. Both are active in the Novato Senior Citizens.

Marking their 50 years of marrige recently, they repeated their marriage vows at Our Lady of Loretto Catholic Church in Novato.

Attending the couple at the Novato ceremony were Mrs. Emil Schneider of Wathena, sister of the bride, and Bernard Sittenauer of Achison, brother of the bridegroom.

Also in the golden wedding ceremony were the couple's granddaughter and grandson, Cynthis Sittenauer of Oxnard Philip Sittenauer Jr. of Novato, and their only great grandchild, Scott Sitenauer, son of the Michel Sittenauers of Milwaukee, Wis.

The couple's children held a reception for the Sittenauers at Moose Lodge in Novato. Their sons and daughters are Louis Sittenauer of Novato, Mrs. James Keenan of Corte Madera, Joseph Sittenauer of San Mateo, Gergory Sittenauer of Oxnard, and Mrs. J.W. Penders of Chula Vista. The couple also have 17 grandchildren.

Also attending the ceremony were Mrs. Sittenauer's other sisters and brothers, Mrs. Vice Ireland of Portland, Ore., Mrs. Matt Sittenauer of Atchison, Herbet Pitt of Castro Valley, Laurence Theis of Folsom; and Bernard Theis of Danville. Her brother Charles Theis of Wathena could not attend. Sittenauer's brother Isador Sittenauer of Atchison also came for the celebration.

Dust, Dirt, Grime Menace To Furs

Dust, dirt and grime are a menace to furs. Furs should be cleaned and glazed at least once a season. Some women think air-conditioning or cedar closets provide adequate storage for furs, but only professional cold storage can keep the skins from drying out and losing their natural beauty.

"A fur garment is the most expensive part of a woman's wardrobe in the beginning," maintains New York furrier Harry Treu, "but when you divide the cost by the number of years you can wear it, furs are almost a bargain."

Corduroys Gain Fashion Ground

Corduroys are on the fashion ascendancy this year. They may even steal some thunder from the ubiquitous blue jean. They're versatile and appear in all the summer pastels.

They're kept fresh and crisp by proper laundering. Turn corduroys inside out to protect the nap, zip up all zippers, and launder in cool water.

Knowledge Series Speakers Named

Charlene Kelzer, program director of the Marin Young Women's Christian Association, and feminist counselor Pat Gallagher of San Anselmo will lead the discussion at 7:30 tonight for the Knowledge is Power series at the Marin YWCA in San Rafael. Their topic will be "Living With Monogamy."

Mrs. Kelzer, a family counselor, also conducts self-awareness classes for the Family Service Agency of Marin.

MONEY MATTERS

Secretary May Seek Loan To Complete College Plan

By ROGERT EDWARDS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

I have been working as a secretary for the past 20 years, and I want to complete seven courses in college to earn an AB degree. I need a loan for living and college expenses. I do have some stock. What kind of loan would be best for me? — S.M.

Check first with the financial aid counselor at the college you plan to attend. Education loans range from those guaranteed by the government to private plans sponsored by banks and other lenders, usually at low interest, if available.

I couldn't advise selling or holding your stock without knowing the details of your portfolio, but you could use it as collateral for a loan to reduce interest rates. Look also at any cash-value insurance you may own. Insurance loans frequently carry interest rates of 5 or 6 per cent.

I WOULD like some help making out a budget. — M.S.

Three elements are essential in developing a spending plan and making it work for you.

Determine from your check stubs and other records how and where you are spending your money now. Divide spending into 12 to 14 categories — food, housing, transportation, clothing, etc.

Analyze current spending and decide which categories are out of line. Then, divide all of your available income among the categories, including debt repayment and savings or investment.

Keep track to make sure actual spending matches your planned spending. From time to time you will want to change the pattern. Without a record you can't effectively manage current and future spending.

IS IT NECESSARY to obtain the services of a lawyer to handle federal inheritance taxes? A lawyer told us that his fee, as set by the bar association, would be the same percentage of the taxable estate as if the estate had gone through probate. — W.O.

A lawyer is not required to complete the federal estate tax return any more than a CPA must compute and file individual income tax returns. While the federal estate tax return appears formidable, a local IRS office can and will answer your specific questions; the office will not fill out the return for you.

If you would like to have a lawyer do it, courts have ruled that fee schedules set by bar associations are not enforceable; you can shop for variation in fees.

WHEN I bought a new car last month, my trade-in didn't cover the down payment. The dealer arranged with a firm down the street to lend me the difference, then he financed the car through the manufacturer's credit company. Is borrowing to pay a down payment legal? — B.F.

Borrowing the cash was legal enough, but your judgment may be open to question. If you can't come up with enough trade-in value on your old car plus enough cash to make a one-third payment down, you probably cannot afford to buy a new car.

Instead, you might consider a used car with less optional equipment (including a standard rather than increased horsepower engine), or simply wait until you accumulate the money needed for the new-car down payment. Otherwise, you may be overextended on credit.

Reunion Comes To End For Sampietro Family

A history-making reunion for the Sampietro family of San Rafael, Petaluma and Milan, Italy ended recently when Salvatore Sampietro, his wife Lena, and sister Maria boarded the airplane to return home to Italy.

Salvatore came to visit his 85-year-old brother Ben in Petaluma, whom he had not seen in 62 years, and who now lives in a convalescent home. He also visited his brother Frank Sampietro and his wife in San Rafael, where the three visitors from Italy were houseguests for six weeks.

During the six weeks, the three brothers and their sister and families had many gatherings, and the Frank Sampietros toured the visitors to points of interest around the Bay Area and to Reno. Frank, a former owner of the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito, said that his brother Ben came to California from Italy in 1912 and sent money back to Frank to come in 1921. Ben became owner and operated a large dairy ranch in Hicks Valley for many years, and his sons Albert and Ildo and their families now live in Petaluma. Ben had never returned to Italy to visit his brother Salvatore, a retired umbrella maker, but Frank returned to see Salvatore in 1967.

In 1968 Maria Sampietro, their sister, came to visit her two brothers in San Rafael and Petaluma.

Relatives and friends celebrated the departure of Salvatore, Lena and Maria Sampietro for Italy last week with a large party at the Frank Sampietro home in San Rafael, complete with Italian foods and accordion music and singing.

Once A Year

Once every season you should remove old wax from floors and apply new.

MRS. H. WAYNE KIRK
Junior Theater

Cathy Kirk Heads Junior Theater Unit

Cathy C. Kirk of San Rafael is the new president of the Junior Theater of Marin Auxiliary. She has served as first vice president in the four years she has been a member.

Auxiliary members do much of the work involved with the Youth-In-Arts programs for Marin school children at the Civic Center and in the schools. They staff the Youth-In-Arts office, handle reservations and usher at the Civic Center programs.

Mrs. Kirk was born in Santa Cruz and grew up in Ross, where she attended Katharine Branson School. She also attended the University of California at Berkeley. Her husband, H. Wayne Kirk is an attorney. They are parents of Elisabeth, 5, Christopher, 3, and twins, Jeremy and Ian, 2 months old. Her hobbies are needlepoint, sewing, gardening, tennis and bicycle riding.

Mrs. Kirk is also a member of the Marin County Alumnae Club of Pi Beta Phi sorority and the Altar Guild of the Church of the Redeemer in San Rafael.

Other officers are Mmes. Jackson Stromberg of Mill Valley, first vice president; Richard Wolfe of San Rafael, second vice president; Don Sandy of San Rafael, secretary; and John Kelly of San Rafael, treasurer.

Auxiliary Installs

Mrs. Alfred Gilmour of Tiburon has been elected financial secretary of the Women's Auxiliary of the University of the Pacific School of Dentistry. She and the other officers from throughout the Bay Area were installed Wednesday at a luncheon at the Gilmour home in Tiburon.

Reception Will Honor Old-Timers

The San Rafael Improvement Club will commemorate the city's Centennial Celebration by entertaining a group of San Rafael's oldest living residents and descendants of pioneer families at a champagne reception Thursday at the clubhouse.

Some 200 to 300 guests, invited from a list compiled by the Marin County Historical Society, are expected to attend.

They will be received between 6:30 and 8 p.m. by the cochairmen, Improvement Club president Mrs. Ragnar Thaning and vice president Mrs. Harold A. Arthur, who will be assisted by Mmes. L. L. Walsh, Richard E. Keating and Miss Eloise Mays.

Hostesses have been asked to dress in 19th Century gowns or floor-length formal dresses, Mrs. Thaning said. Three serving tables will be decorated with old fashioned spring bouquets arranged by Mrs. Kenneth G. Walkmeister, decorations chairman.

Two 19th Century gowns loaned by Mrs. Keating and an old christening gown from Mrs. Walsh's family collection will be on display on the club's stage.

Also on display will be a miniature of the clubhouse as it appeared when it was an exhibit building at the 1915 Panama-Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco. The building was later purchased by the Improvement Club, brought across the Bay by barge and remodeled on its site at Fifth Avenue and H Street.

Sweets and punch will be served by Mrs. Norman K. Reinhard and committee members Mmes. Robert Swart, Fred W. Meyer, Clay E. Budar, Norris M. Rawles, H. R. Melone, James E. Whitney, Richard E. Mittelstaedt, Art Aviron and Miss Virginia Shattuck.

Hostesses will be the chairman Mrs. Peter Andersen and Mmes. John R. Verzi, Bryce W. Anderson, Lewis A. Clapp, Leiton J. Elder, Marjorie W. Sutton, J. Victor Earll, Earl W. Dixon, Paul A. Hammer and Joseph F. Stone.

THE GRANDCHILDREN and great-grandchildren of Mexican land grant families and 19th Century civic leaders will be among those signing the guest book, which will be circulated by Mrs. Harold G. Hacke and Mrs. Anselm R. Wessell.

They will include Henry H. Wilkins of Ross, grandson of San Rafael's first town clerk, Hepburn Wilkins. He will attend with his wife, the former Elizabeth Anderson, a member of an oldtime Dominican area family.

Mrs. George M. Anderson, great granddaughter of Joseph B. Rice, pioneer San Rafael businessman who was elected to the first board of trustees a century ago, will attend with her husband. Mrs. Anderson is the San Rafael Centennial Committee's historian. Julia Street was named in honor of her great-grandmother, Joseph Rice's wife, Julia.

The grandson another founding trustee, William J. Miller of Corte Madera is expected to attend with his daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Stan de Greeve. Miller, an area vice president of the Marin County Historical Society, is also the great-grandson of James Miller, whose home ranch is now Marinwood.

A fourth generation Marinite, William M. Vanderbilt and his wife are among those attending. His grandfather was a long-time headmaster at the old Mount Tamalpais Military Academy.

The great-grandson of San Rafael's first subdivider, J.O.B. Short, Kenneth E. Hawkins and his wife will be on hand. Also invited is Mrs. Bernard F. Darby of Glendale, a descendent of John Lucas, nephew and heir of Don Timoteo Murphy, who owned a 22,000 Mexican land grant that extended well beyond San Rafael's present city limits. Lucas Valley was named for the family.

ALSO EXPECTED are Miss Irene Pacheco, descendent of Mexican land grantee Ignacio Pacheco, whose vast ranch joined Murphy's north of Marinwood; Miss Kathleen Donnelly, retired San Rafael school teacher and longtime principal of the old Coleman School, and Miss Catherine Timony, a retired San Rafael teacher who was born in Lucas Valley 89 years ago.

Other guests will be Mrs. J. E. (Elsie) Mazzini, president of the Marin County Historical Society, and her cousin Adolph (Dutch) Koenig, great-grandchildren of Don Domingo Sais, a Mexican land grantee who owned the lands that were to become San Anselmo and part of San Rafael.

They will be joined by a cousin, Mrs. Violet Haller, a descendent of Don Domingo's brother, Jose Nazario (Charley) Sais.

Also attending will be Mrs. Charles Marcus, daughter of San Rafael's pioneer merchant and city councilman Jacob (Jake) Albert; V. Joe Coppa, son of an early day San Rafael restaurant and inn keeper, and his wife, and Miss Marie Caletti, whose father owned a store on B Street.

Brothers Manuel T. Freitas and former Marin County Superior Court Judge Carlos R. Freitas, sons of the banking land baron Manuel T. Freitas Sr., will attend with their wives.

JUDGE AND Mrs. Jordan L. Martinelli will also be guests. The judge is the grandson of the town's pioneer Jordan family and son of the late State Sen. Ennio B. Martinelli. Mrs. Martinelli is a member of the city's Cochrane family.

West Marin's Mexican land grant families Briones and Garcia will be represented by descendents Mrs. Earl Grady and J. Warren Crane, both of San Rafael, who will attend with their spouses. Mrs. Grady is a member of the centennial committee's parade committee.

Many attending the reception will go on to the 8 p.m. performance of Jubilee, the centennial musical history of San Rafael, at San Rafael High School.

2 Girls Will Attend 'Dig' In Wyoming

Two Rancho Cotate High School coeds will spend part of their summers at Girl Scout archeological and camping areas in Wyoming.

Lynn Appleton, 14, will spend two weeks beginning June 24 at National Center West near Ten Sleep, Wyo., with 35 other Girl Scouts participating in "Dig Mankind."

The girls will be hiking over 15,000 acres to different excavation sites which in the past has uncovered evidence of human migration down the eastern side of the Rockies, Lynn said.

A freshman at Rancho Cotate, she has been a Girl Scout for eight years. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Appleton of Cotati.

Susan Camotta of Rohnert Park, a 17-year-old junior at Rancho Cotate, will take part in a "Tote'n Trek" 13-day camping and hiking expedition at National Center West, beginning Aug. 10.

Susan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Camotta, has been a Girl Scout for nine years. She will also serve as an arts and crafts director at Girl Scout Neighborhood Six Camp this summer at Penngrove Park, Penngrove.

Susan is an officer in Explorer Photography Post 23 of Rohnert Park and Jobs Daughters, Bethel 13, Santa Rosa.

Nursery School Children To Tour

Elizabeth Terwilliger will conduct a tour for children of the Novato Parents Nursery School at 1 p.m., Wednesday.

The 3 to 5-year-old children will meet at the water treatment plant at Stafford Lake, where Mrs. Terwilliger will show the children creek life on Novato Creek and introduce them to edible miner's lettuce, according to Mrs. Steven Cerruti of the school.

MRS. H. WAYNE KIRK
Junior Theater

Cathy Kirk Heads Junior Theater Unit

Cathy C. Kirk of San Rafael is the new president of the Junior Theater of Marin Auxiliary. She has served as first vice president in the four years she has been a member.

Auxiliary members do much of the work involved with the Youth-In-Arts programs for Marin school children at the Civic Center and in the schools. They staff the Youth-In-Arts office, handle reservations and usher at the Civic Center programs.

Mrs. Kirk was born in Santa Cruz and grew up in Ross, where she attended Katharine Branson School. She also attended the University of California at Berkeley. Her husband, H. Wayne Kirk is an attorney. They are parents of Elisabeth, 5, Christopher, 3, and twins, Jeremy and Ian, 2 months old. Her hobbies are needlepoint, sewing, gardening, tennis and bicycle riding.

Mrs. Kirk is also a member of the Marin County Alumnae Club of Pi Beta Phi sorority and the Altar Guild of the Church of the Redeemer in San Rafael.

Other officers are Mmes. Jackson Stromberg of Mill Valley, first vice president; Richard Wolfe of San Rafael, second vice president; Don Sandy of San Rafael, secretary; and John Kelly of San Rafael, treasurer.

Auxiliary Installs

Mrs. Alfred Gilmour of Tiburon has been elected financial secretary of the Women's Auxiliary of the University of the Pacific School of Dentistry. She and the other officers from throughout the Bay Area were installed Wednesday at a luncheon at the Gilmour home in Tiburon.

IMPROVEMENT CLUB FETE

Reception Will Honor Old-Timers

The San Rafael Improvement Club will commemorate the city's Centennial Celebration by entertaining a group of San Rafael's oldest living residents and descendants of pioneer families at a champagne reception Thursday at the clubhouse.

Some 200 to 300 guests, invited from a list compiled by the Marin County Historical Society, are expected to attend.

They will be received between 6:30 and 8 p.m. by the cochairmen, Improvement Club president Mrs. Ragnar Thaning and vice president Mrs. Harold A. Arthur, who will be assisted by Mmes. L. L. Walsh, Richard E. Keating and Miss Eloise Mays.

Hostesses have been asked to dress in 19th Century gowns or floor-length formal dresses, Mrs. Thaning said. Three serving tables will be decorated with old fashioned spring bouquets arranged by Mrs. Kenneth G. Walkmeister, decorations chairman.

Two 19th Century gowns loaned by Mrs. Keating and an old christening gown from Mrs. Walsh's family collection will be on display on the club's stage.

Also on display will be a miniature of the clubhouse as it appeared when it was an exhibit building at the 1915 Panama-Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco. The building was later purchased by the Improvement Club, brought across the Bay by barge and remodeled on its site at Fifth Avenue and H Street.

Sweets and punch will be served by Mrs. Norman K. Reinhard and committee members Mmes. Robert Swart, Fred W. Meyer, Clay E. Budar, Norris M. Rawles, H. R. Melone, James E. Whitney, Richard E. Mittelstaedt, Art Aviron and Miss Virginia Shattuck.

Hostesses will be the chairman Mrs. Peter Andersen and Mmes. John R. Verzi, Bryce W. Anderson, Lewis A. Clapp, Leiton J. Elder, Marjorie W. Sutton, J. Victor Earll, Earl W. Dixon, Paul A. Hammer and Joseph F. Stone.

THE GRANDCHILDREN and great-grandchildren of Mexican land grant families and 19th Century civic leaders will be among those signing the guest book, which will be circulated by Mrs. Harold G. Hacke and Mrs. Anselm R. Wessell.

They will include Henry H. Wilkins of Ross, grandson of San Rafael's first town clerk, Hepburn Wilkins. He will attend with his wife, the former Elizabeth Anderson, a member of an oldtime Dominican area family.

Mrs. George M. Anderson, great granddaughter of Joseph B. Rice, pioneer San Rafael businessman who was elected to the first board of trustees a century ago, will attend with her husband. Mrs. Anderson is the San Rafael Centennial Committee's historian. Julia Street was named in honor of her great-grandmother, Joseph Rice's wife, Julia.

The grandson another founding trustee, William J. Miller of Corte Madera is expected to attend with his daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Stan de Greeve. Miller, an area vice president of the Marin County Historical Society, is also the great-grandson of James Miller, whose home ranch is now Marinwood.

A fourth generation Marinite, William M. Vanderbilt and his wife are among those attending. His grandfather was a long-time headmaster at the old Mount Tamalpais Military Academy.

The great-grandson of San Rafael's first subdivider, J.O.B. Short, Kenneth E. Hawkins and his wife will be on hand. Also invited is Mrs. Bernard F. Darby of Glendale, a descendent of John Lucas, nephew and heir of Don Timoteo Murphy, who owned a 22,000 Mexican land grant that extended well beyond San Rafael's present city limits. Lucas Valley was named for the family.

ALSO EXPECTED are Miss Irene Pacheco, descendent of Mexican land grantee Ignacio Pacheco, whose vast ranch joined Murphy's north of Marinwood; Miss Kathleen Donnelly, retired San Rafael school teacher and longtime principal of the old Coleman School, and Miss Catherine Timony, a retired San Rafael teacher who was born in Lucas Valley 89 years ago.

Other guests will be Mrs. J. E. (Elsie) Mazzini, president of the Marin County Historical Society, and her cousin Adolph (Dutch) Koenig, great-grandchildren of Don Domingo Sais, a Mexican land grantee who owned the lands that were to become San Anselmo and part of San Rafael.

They will be joined by a cousin, Mrs. Violet Haller, a descendent of Don Domingo's brother, Jose Nazario (Charley) Sais.

Also attending will be Mrs. Charles Marcus, daughter of San Rafael's pioneer merchant and city councilman Jacob (Jake) Albert; V. Joe Coppa, son of an early day San Rafael restaurant and inn keeper, and his wife, and Miss Marie Caletti, whose father owned a store on B Street.

Brothers Manuel T. Freitas and former Marin County Superior Court Judge Carlos R. Freitas, sons of the banking land baron Manuel T. Freitas Sr., will attend with their wives.

JUDGE AND Mrs. Jordan L. Martinelli will also be guests. The judge is the grandson of the town's pioneer Jordan family and son of the late State Sen. Ennio B. Martinelli. Mrs. Martinelli is a member of the city's Cochrane family.

West Marin's Mexican land grant families Briones and Garcia will be represented by descendents Mrs. Earl Grady and J. Warren Crane, both of San Rafael, who will attend with their spouses. Mrs. Grady is a member of the centennial committee's parade committee.

Many attending the reception will go on to the 8 p.m. performance of Jubilee, the centennial musical history of San Rafael, at San Rafael High School.

2 Girls Will Attend 'Dig' In Wyoming

Two Rancho Cotate High School coeds will spend part of their summers at Girl Scout archeological and camping areas in Wyoming.

Lynn Appleton, 14, will spend two weeks beginning June 24 at National Center West near Ten Sleep, Wyo., with 35 other Girl Scouts participating in "Dig Mankind."

The girls will be hiking over 15,000 acres to different excavation sites which in the past has uncovered evidence of human migration down the eastern side of the Rockies, Lynn said.

A freshman at Rancho Cotate, she has been a Girl Scout for eight years. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Appleton of Cotati.

Susan Camotta of Rohnert Park, a 17-year-old junior at Rancho Cotate, will take part in a "Tote'n Trek" 13-day camping and hiking expedition at National Center West, beginning Aug. 10.

Susan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Camotta, has been a Girl Scout for nine years. She will also serve as an arts and crafts director at Girl Scout Neighborhood Six Camp this summer at Penngrove Park, Penngrove.

Susan is an officer in Explorer Photography Post 23 of Rohnert Park and Jobs Daughters, Bethel 13, Santa Rosa.

Nursery School Children To Tour

Elizabeth Terwilliger will conduct a tour for children of the Novato Parents Nursery School at 1 p.m., Wednesday.

The 3 to 5-year-old children will meet at the water treatment plant at Stafford Lake, where Mrs. Terwilliger will show the children creek life on Novato Creek and introduce them to edible miner's lettuce, according to Mrs. Steven Cerruti of the school.

Basic Fashions For New Season

To start a new season:

The short dress — for day in wool or sweater knit, especially those with tucking and stitching on top.

The two-piece dress. For day it's often a two-piece sweater dress. At night, the easy two-piece dress glitters.

Cardigan jackets day and night — belted or loose.

SUNLIT SCENE — "House at the Beach," showing a dazzling expanse of rolling white sand punctuated by sharply angled rooftops and colorful beach umbrellas, is included in a show of paintings by Ned Pankin.

ART REVIEW

Pankin's Works Vary In Quality

By ADA GARFINKEL

Ned Pankin's paintings, now on display at Marin General Hospital, vary in quality.

He has a fine sense of color. And when he uses it to create a finished work, his palette provides us with delightful vistas which read as intimate gardens, open landscapes, and water scenes.

But other works, where sketched-in squiggles of black indicate waves and shrubs, with only a thin wash of pigment surrounding them, seem more like underpaintings. And in "Sunset," a watercolor, the washes of color, blending with the black creates an unpleasant muddiness.

"Fishing Boats," "House on the Beach," and "Light Patterns" are Pankin's most successful paintings for their control of space and sensuousness of color.

"Wine Country" in which interesting paint application and overlapping details occur, is marred by a sharp diagonal plane at the left which leads the eye out of the picture.

Pankin's effects of brilliant light and atmosphere, his mosaic-like dabs of color, and his asymmetrical balance emphasize his affinity for French post-impressionist painting.

This exhibit will continue daily through May 30. Marin General Hospital is located at 250 Bon Air Road, Greenbrae.

Arguments In Ellsberg Case Begin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Watergate special prosecutor argued today that in the final analysis the break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist was simply a case of "law and order."

Defendants in the case contended that they were acting, although perhaps overzealously, under broad authority from President Nixon to stop leaks of highly secret national security matters.

The arguments came at the start of four days of pretrial hearings by U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell concerning whether "national security" matters overrode constitutional guarantees against unauthorized search and seizure in the break-in on Labor Day weeked of 1971.

The question is legally significant, because the government must prove intent to commit a crime.

"That's what this case is all about — law and order," associate special prosecutor William H. Merrill said during the opening arguments.

John D. Ehrlichman, once Nixon's No. 2 man; Charles W. Colson, a former Nixon consultant; and G. Gordon Liddy, a former White House aide —all linked with the White House "plumbers" —were indicted March 7 along with Bernard L. Barker, Felipe De Diego and Eugenio Martinez.

They were accused of conspiracy to violate the civil rights of Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, who treated Ellsberg, the man who said he gave reporters the secret Pentagon Papers on the Vietnam war.

Colson argued last month that "national security considerations ... were of concern to the defendants at the time of the Fielding break-in." He quoted Nixon as telling him several times in June and July 1971, "in effect, 'I don't give a damn how it is done, do whatever has to be done to stop these leaks ...'"

Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski said Friday that even though they claimed a general mandate to investigate leaks, "not one of the defendants has attempted to contradict the President's assertion that he had no prior knowledge of the break-in."

Gesell told lawyers April 19 that he wanted "to try to nail down ... whether or not the President exercised his authority, if he has it —and my assumption at this point is that he does in the field of foreign affairs —to direct an investigation in disregard of the Fourth Amendment."

'The Men Of Marin' Is A Cohesive Unit

By VERA M. OLMSTED

The county's only all-male chorus, "The Men of Marin," assembled a diverse mixture of choral and organ music for their concert last night at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo.

The group, directed by Wilbur F. Russell, is composed of approximately two dozen singers of varying ages and talents who emerge as a surprisingly well-disciplined and cohesive unit.

Interest focused on guest soloist Florence Bierman and the evening's most audacious work, Brahms' "Alto Rhapsody" (audacious because the "Alto Rhapsody" is scored for orchestra).

It was strange to hear one of the 19th century's most glorious choral works accompanied by organ rather than instruments.

Once the initial shock wore off, the performance was quite successful. Although the lack of orchestra meant the entire beauty of the works could not be expressed, the organ is capable of a great variety of tone color and dynamic shadings, and Mr. Russell explored the possibilities intelligently.

Miss Bierman has a generous, creamy voice, good control and poised self-confidence which communicated itself to the audience.

The first two stanzas of "Alto Rhapsody" are for alto solo; the male chorus is heard for the first time at the beginning of the third stanza.

Its entry was tentative and overly loud, but most of the problems were soon smoothed out. And nothing could diminish the beauty of the music and the deep and moving quality of the tender and poignant prayer of supplication as Miss Bierman's voice soared over the chorus.

Miss Bierman sang again later and was particularly pleasing in Schubert's "Im Fruhling" and "Gretchen am Spinnrade," which were lightly and deftly accompanied by Russell at the piano.

The male chorus sang a goodly number of accompanied and a cappella works ranging from traditional to popular. Some sounded mushy, with modulations escalating into the unknown. But the majority of them, like "Poor Man Lazarus," came out clean and rhythmic, and the satisfaction and enthusiasm of director and chorus was infectious.

Britain Eyes Defense Cuts

WELLINGTON, New Zealang (AP) — Britain's Labor government expects to decide this October on defense cuts even bigger than those made in 1968, says a ranking defense official.

Will Rodgers, British minister of state for defense, made the comment on a trip through the Far East to collect the views of friendly governments on Britain's military presence in the area. He already has visited Malaysia and Singapore and will go on to Australia.

Rodgers said the 1968 defense cuts, which substantially reduced Britain's ground commitments east of Suez, "did not involve the savings of the size we are talking about now."

Cost-Of-Living Plea On Agenda

A recommendation that North Marin County Water District employees be granted 8.5 per cent cost of living raises will be considered by the district board at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the district office, 999 Atherton Avenue.

Auditor Sage L. Morris estimated the cost of the proposed raise at $57,800.

The board also will consider granting cost of living pay raises every six months.

Retirement Center Payment On Agenda

A proposal to lower the amount which the Community Church Retirement Center pays annually to the City of Mill Valley in lieu of property taxes will be discussed by the city council today at 8 p.m. in city hall.

Representatives of the center, known as the Redwoods, told the council at its last meeting that the low and moderate income project is in financial trouble and can no longer make the $18,000 a year payment.

Cleve Leads Symphony In A Dazzling Performance

By EMILY J. ROSS

George Cleve, knight-in-shining-armor-from-San-Jose come to the rescue of the San Francisco Symphony in its hour of need, dazzled the Saturday night crowd at the Marin Veterans' Memorial Theater in a concert illuminated by the group's kinetic togetherness.

Beethoven's Eighth Symphony is heard so seldom that one is led to believe that it sits between the Seventh and Ninth Symphonies like a buffering piece of felt between two valuable plates.

Far from it. Cleve and his keyed-up troops led it out of confinement for the romp of its uninhibited life. Some of its themes might seem naive or fatuous in the hands of a conductor who thopught it his duty to trundle it out for historical value; but Cleve, substituting for ailing Seiji Ozawa, cast aside that pale approach in favor of nonstop joie de vivre.

First and last movement were whirlwinds of energy. And does every symphony have to have a "slow movement?" A moment of morbidity to chasten the spirit? Here's one that does not.

The lumbering tempo of the minuet seemed deliciously apt. That accented upbeat, comical as it returns over and over again exactly the same, was a moment to wait for happily, not because it was so awfully witty, but because it expressed the unabashed heartiness and candor of the symphony.

Guest artist Maureen Forrester made a suitably noble and tragic figure as she declaimed the bitter last thoughts of a dying queen in Berlioz's "Death of Cleopatra." Miss Forrester and the orchestra made much of its strange beauties and somewhat static drama. Her French diction and their mood-diction clarified the stolid text and Berlioz's shifting context.

(Unhappily, Cleopatra's last moments, so graphically told on stage, were marred by a hapless blunder offstage. A soloist (anonymous) could be distinctly heard warming up for the Strauss that was to follow.)

Taking sides for or against Richard Strauss's tone poems may be a valid preoccupation; they may not be flawless artistic creations and the concept is perhaps dated. But the San Francisco symphony plays them very well, and "Till Eulenspiegel" is the tightest, best-paced of them all.

Its little story, which may well fade into insignificance alongside of Puss-in-Boots, is skillfully and colorfully told through very imaginative instrumentation. The orchestra fell into the narrative idiom naturally; clarinet, horn, violin, drummers, all solo squeaks, taunts, threats and laughs were perfectly executed. No use arguing — it was thrilling.

Charles Ives was much gratified by the approval manifested by a San Francisco audience when his "Washington's Birthday" (from his "Holidays" Symphony) was performed there in 1931. On Saturday, its effect in Marin was modest. It was pleasantly disturbing in its bleak first scene, tenderly crafted by the strings. It was endearing in the modified rowdiness of the country dance, the familiar quotations from American tunes, dreamlike blurrings and overlappings of themes. Although Ives said that one Jew's harp would not do, that he required anywhere from 12 to 100, we had to be content with one and were left to guess what the effect might have been if the symphony's budget could have been stretched to hire even 12 players of this relatively specialized instrument for those brief measures.

As a solo, the part was almost inaudible. The brave young man who played it doubled on the bells, where he showed a fine, light touch.

Court Ruling Is Urged On Nixon Tape Subpoena

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Republican member asked the House Judiciary Committee today to let the courts decide whether President Nixon must surrender tapes subpoenaed by the committee.

Rep. Harold Droehlich of Wisconsin, a conservative, said in a letter to Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., that neither the committee nor the President should be the final arbiter over whether the panel's subpoena demands are valid.

Rodino has shunned that course, arguing the House's power to impeach is drawn directly from the Constitution and cannot be subverted by an order from the judiciary.

Froehlich said Nixon's reason for refusing to obey the subpoenas "is utterly lacking in legal merit." Nixon has said the panel already has "the full Watergate story."

On the other hand, he said, Nixon could assert legal grounds, including his Fourth Amendment right of privacy and his Fifth Amendment right against self incrimination.

The committee has issued two subpoenas for Watergate related tapes—one for 42 tapes and the second, last week, for 11 more. Nixon refused to comply with the first one, submitting transcripts instead, and has not responded to the second one.

Presidential assistant Patrick Buchanan said today he feels it would be unwise for Nixon to hand over additional confidential information to the Judiciary Committee because of leaks of some materials already provided.

Interviewed on the NBC-TV Today Show, Buchanan repeated the assertion that the transcripts provided the full story and other tapes are "hardly likely" to alter the thrust of the transcripts—that "the President of the United States is not guilty of any impeachable offense."

Pankin's Works Vary In Quality

By ADA GARFINKEL

Ned Pankin's paintings, now on display at Marin General Hospital, vary in quality.

He has a fine sense of color. And when he uses it to create a finished work, his palette provides us with delightful vistas which read as intimate gardens, open landscapes, and water scenes.

But other works, where sketched-in squiggles of black indicate waves and shrubs, with only a thin wash of pigment surrounding them, seem more like underpaintings. And in "Sunset," a watercolor, the washes of color, blending with the black creates an unpleasant muddiness.

"Fishing Boats," "House on the Beach," and "Light Patterns" are Pankin's most successful paintings for their control of space and sensuousness of color.

"Wine Country" in which interesting paint application and overlapping details occur, is marred by a sharp diagonal plane at the left which leads the eye out of the picture.

Pankin's effects of brilliant light and atmosphere, his mosaic-like dabs of color, and his asymmetrical balance emphasize his affinity for French post-impressionist painting.

This exhibit will continue daily through May 30. Marin General Hospital is located at 250 Bon Air Road, Greenbrae.

Arguments In Ellsberg Case Begin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Watergate special prosecutor argued today that in the final analysis the break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist was simply a case of "law and order."

Defendants in the case contended that they were acting, although perhaps overzealously, under broad authority from President Nixon to stop leaks of highly secret national security matters.

The arguments came at the start of four days of pretrial hearings by U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell concerning whether "national security" matters overrode constitutional guarantees against unauthorized search and seizure in the break-in on Labor Day weeked of 1971.

The question is legally significant, because the government must prove intent to commit a crime.

"That's what this case is all about — law and order," associate special prosecutor William H. Merrill said during the opening arguments.

John D. Ehrlichman, once Nixon's No. 2 man; Charles W. Colson, a former Nixon consultant; and G. Gordon Liddy, a former White House aide —all linked with the White House "plumbers" —were indicted March 7 along with Bernard L. Barker, Felipe De Diego and Eugenio Martinez.

They were accused of conspiracy to violate the civil rights of Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, who treated Ellsberg, the man who said he gave reporters the secret Pentagon Papers on the Vietnam war.

Colson argued last month that "national security considerations ... were of concern to the defendants at the time of the Fielding break-in." He quoted Nixon as telling him several times in June and July 1971, "in effect, 'I don't give a damn how it is done, do whatever has to be done to stop these leaks ...'"

Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski said Friday that even though they claimed a general mandate to investigate leaks, "not one of the defendants has attempted to contradict the President's assertion that he had no prior knowledge of the break-in."

Gesell told lawyers April 19 that he wanted "to try to nail down ... whether or not the President exercised his authority, if he has it —and my assumption at this point is that he does in the field of foreign affairs —to direct an investigation in disregard of the Fourth Amendment."

Hay Scow Marks Parks Dedication

By MARY LEYDECKER

San Rafael's Centennial celebration took a nautical turn as a group of enthusiastic if slightly undersized "Indians" arrived aboard an old hay scow during the dedication of the city's new park on San Rafael Canal.

The schooner Alma made the trip from the Maritime Museum at the foot of Hyde Street in San Francisco to the San Rafael Canal in an uneventful three hours, using her modern engine instead of sails because it was such a calm morning.

The 83-year-old hay scow, only survivor of a huge fleet of ships that sailed the Bay before World War I, is now tied up at San Rafael Yacht Club. It will be open for viewing from 9 a.m. through Friday.

The arrival of the ship was a highlight in the dedication of Beach Park, an attractive little oasis of sand, picnic and play equipment, a gazebo and plants, amidst the apartments and businesses of the Canal area.

Forty-three men, women and children boarded the Alma in San Francisco for the trip across the Bay. A large contingent of Indian Y-Guides, mostly very wiggly 7-year-olds, and their fathers were aboard.

After skipper Cy Lee of Millbrae warned the little Indians to stay out of the rigging and explained where the heads were located, the Alma sailed out on a calm Bay with alternating bright skies and dark clouds overboard.

Lee, a seasoned seaman who volunteers for his duties aboard the state-owned Alma, apologized that there was not enough wind for the old ship's sails to be used.

Although the Bay was as smooth as silk, the 7-year-olds found some excitement when the Alma hit the wake of other boats.

"That was a good one," a boy called out as a wave broke in mist over the ship's bow.

The elders aboard, including John Carr of the Centennial committee and a pretty model dressed in a long dress, quickly moved to drier territory, though.

As the trip progressed, two young girls quietly chatted as they sat on the deck, seemingly oblivious to their surroundings; some food and drink was broken out, and a picnic atmosphere prevailed.

Just off the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge, Lee realized he was way ahead of schedule, and he ordered the motor cut to maintain a snail's pace. With the slackening of the boat's pace, the little boys aboard moved up their speed and darted here and there playing tag until told to stop.

Then the Alma headed in toward San Rafael, up the canal and past luxurious homes, some not-so-luxurious businesses and many modern apartments to the turning basin.

"Give me some room, El Toro," Lee called through his bullhorn to a youth and his dog in a small sailboat.

"Smash him down," suggested one of the youngsters as the little boat hung close to the Alma.

Despite the little sailboats in the basin, a slight wind that came up and passengers who wouldn't sit down so the skipper could see, the Alma managed to turn and dock at the new park.

San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department employees quickly put finishing touches on new steps so the passengers and crew could disembark.

"The best part was out on the bay," said one little Indian with a yawn.

Meanwhile at the park, about 150 persons, a few with umbrellas because of sprinkles that fell, listened to a schoolband and city officials.

City Councilman Jack G. Nixon told the crowd how San Rafael Canal once stretched to a lumber mill which stood at about First and Shaver streets in San Rafael.

"What would it be like today if we had a creek that would carry boats all the way through San Rafael?" he asked.

Mayor C. Paul Bettini called the park one of the first steps in improving the canal area, saying "this is the city's contribution" and calling on property owners to follow suit with sprucing up the area.

Throughout the ceremonies, youngsters played on the new equipment in the park. Afterwards, a troop of Brownies served refreshments.

'San Rafael Illustrated' Receives Good Marks

By PAUL CANE

"San Rafael Illustrated" may not win an Academy Award for best historical documentary, but it would be hard to convince the local citizens who saw the film Saturday that it doesn't deserve some kind of recognition.

"Excellent!" "Superb!" "Remarkably Well done!" were typical comments from those who saw the 60-minute Centennial film produced and created by more than 100 students from Terra Linda and San Rafael high schools.

Costumed high school girls ushered city council members, school board officials, and other resident citizens to seats for the premiere showing at the Montecito Theater.

Under the guidance of director David Swingle, a film instructor in the high school district, the students shot thousands of feet of film. They put in approximately 5,000 hours filming, editing, writing, and sound-dubbing most of them in marathon late-night sessions to create the film in observance of San Rafael's 100th birthday.

"Wow, was it time consuming," said Jennifer Simmons, one of the student workers. "It was my major activity for the past month, requiring taking time out from other things — like classes," she said with a laugh. "But it was worth it, definitely."

According to Swingle, the film was made with a $4,300 grant from the Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. Copies of it will be made in the future for showing to civic groups and school classes.

Other screenings during Centennial week will be continuous showings tomorrow from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at Davidson Junior High School; and Thursday, at 8:30, 9:30, and 10:45 a.m., and 1:15 p.m., at Terra Linda High School.

All of the film's current footage, including some spectacular aerial views, were shot in color. Some vintage black-and-white footage, rescued from old film collections, was tinted to give the illusion that it, too, had been taken in color. Scene fade-outs were well executed, and title headings for each chapter of the documentary were well done.

The historical research necessary for the script seemed extensive and visual aids like old newspaper clippings and old still photographs accompanied the narrator's account of San Rafael's historical highlights.

The music was outstanding, from the quaint organ tunes before the show, to light-hearted piano rags during 19th Century scenes, to dramatic passages from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony accompanying sensational color footage of the San Rafael Courthouse fire.

Scenes were not presented in chronological order, but rather by topic. The film touched on such topics as transportation, fires, schools and the effects of war on the city.

The film was not merely a transcription of events, but a pointed commentary on the city and society, past and present. Regarding the Spanish discovery of what was to become California, the narrator said the sailors came to the New World "seeking new lands to exploit."

In another example, a discussion of San Rafael transportation woes was called "Bay Area Not-So-Rapid Transit."

But the most pointed comment on the future of San Rafael came at the end, when a panoramic aerial shot of undeveloped scenic hillside faded into a view of clustered mountain apartments. The narrator asked somberly, "Will time, neglect and expediency control our destiny?"

San Quentin Calm Over The Weekend

One San Quentin inmate escaped last night from the prison honor farm, but the rest of the troubled penitentiary had a relatively calm weekend, a prison spokesman said today.

About two-thirds of the 3,500 inmates remained locked in their cells today, in the wake of violence Wednesday and Thursday that saw one inmate fatally stabbed, eight others knifed and one injured by a fall.

William D. Nyberg, prison information officer, said prison authorities wereto confire today on how to return the main body of the prisoners to normal routine.

The escaper was Gerald G. Carson, 45, who was discovered missing from the prison farm at the 10 p.m. bed check. He was sentenced from San Francisco on first-degree robbery on Nov. 2, 1972.

Meanwhile, Charles Smith, 45, who was stabbed in both lungs on Wednesday, was transferred Saturday evening to Marin General Hospital after his condition became critical, Nyberg reported. The rest of the wounded men remained in satisfactory or good condition in the prison hospital, he said.

Hollis Heads North Bay Chapter Of Dimes Drive

Virgil S. Hollis, Marin County superintendent of schools, will head the North Bay chapter of the National Foundation (March of Dimes) for its fiscal year beginning June 1.

Hollis replaces Ruth L. Johnson of San Anselmo, who has been chairman of the Marin — and since reorganization, North Bay — chapter for 20 years.

Mrs. Johnson, however, is not retiring from March of Dimes participation. She will be secretary.

The new officers were elected at the chapter's annual dinner meeting Friday evening at the Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club. Featured speaker was Elaine Whitelaw, national director of volunteer services for the foundation, who outlined plans now developing for a massive program of research and education in the drive to eliminate birth defects.

Besides Hollis and Mrs. Johnson, newly elected officers are: James O'Brien of Vallejo, vice chairman, and Samuel Brown of Dillon Beach treasurer.

Europe Economy Subject of Talk

The World Affairs Council of Marin will present a discussion of economic problems and political changes in Western Europe on June 2 at 4 p.m. The talk will be at the Ross home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Smith, 81 Fernhill Road.

Dr. Frederick A. Breier, professor of Economics, at the University of San Francisco will be guest speaker. He will focus on the impact of inflation and other economic difficulties on European political developments.

Reservations should be made by calling council headquarters.

Committee Role To Be Discussed

The Novato City Council will discuss the city plan review committee's role at a joint meeting at 9:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Novato Community House.

During the recent council election campaign, the committee was under fire from businessmen for being arbitrary and acting on matters beyond its authority.

The council will begin its regular business session at 8 p.m.

Performance Set By Church Group

Members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Santa Venetia will present "Fiddler on the Roof" at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the new Mormon Meeting House, 220 North San Pedro Road.

The cast, orchestra, chorus and dancers are church members from San Rafael, Novato and Petaluma.

Elayne Reid will direct. Dr. Stanley Kraczek is the producer, Lorna Burdette, musical director and James Postak, stage manager. Sharon Cooney and Coleen Carter are choreographers.

Students Plan Music Recital

Pre-college music students will present their fifth recital of the season May 26 at 4 p.m. in Angelica Hall on the Dominican College campus in San Rafael.

Playing selections from Handel, Vivaldi, Bach and Kreisler will be San Rafael High School students: Peter Kupfer and Leslie Rice, violin; Debbie Hausmann, Elizabeth Hausmann, Tiffani Oswald and Mark Giambastiani, piano, and Laura Jean Clark, flute, all of San Rafael.

Students from Terra Linda High School participating are Denny Mehocich, Denise Cossette, Marissa Pasquale, Toni Pasquale, Timothy Dale, Robert Delhey, Mary Kerr and Jeri Dep, violin; Meg Eldridge, viola, and Lisa Repair, Kim Kidd and Karen Kidd, piano. Anthony Rios of Novato will play the violin.

Artists' Works To Be Auctioned

The works of eight Marin County artists currently are on display at the Crown Zellerbach Gallery in San Francisco and will be auctioned at the 20th annual KQED-Channel 9 auction June 1 through June 9.

The two-week show is being held in the lobby gallery at 1 Bush Street. Hours are weekdays from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Local artists are: Robert W. Richards of Novato; Maggie Leitner of San Rafael; Ira Kamin, Kim Schwarcz and Dennis Beall all of Sausalito; Eleanore Bender of San Anselmo; Fred Berensmeier of Lagunitas and Else Gonella of Mill Valley.

Paintings Exhibit

Batik paintings by Jane Santucci of San Anselmo are on exhibit in the main lobby of the Kaiser Foundation Hospital, 99 Monticello Road in San Rafael through May 31.

McGuire, Caylor In Congress Races

There is a scramble in both political parties for the congressional seat formerly held by William S. Mailliard.

Redistricting has complicated the scramble, and has made more likely the election of a Democrat in November. "Silk stocking" San Francisco neighborhoods of the old Sixth District have been replaced by heavily Democratic low-income neighborhoods in the new district (which will become the Fifth).

This situation has focused principal attention on the race for the June 4 Democratic nomination.

THE MAN with the big campaign fund, and apparently the front runner, is John Burton, who now serves in the California Assembly and whose brother, Philip, is congressman from another San Francisco district.

Pitted against him are Alan Douglas French, a young San Franciscan who ran unsuccessfully against Mailliard two years ago; Alan F. Reeves, who is making his first bid for elective office in California but was an unsuccessful candidate for an at-large congressional post from Ohio some years ago, and Terrence V. McGuire of San Rafael, brother of Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire. This is T. V. McGuire's first-ever bid for elective office.

Burton has solid support of union leaders. (French has complained that even the Carpenters Union, to which he belongs, is afraid to support him.) Burton is for compulsory unionization of all public employees, with the right to strike. The other three have all come out against it.

Except for Burton, the candidates lack legislative experience. But Burton's record in the state Assembly is more an albatross around his neck than a recommendation. He is of the type of professional politician widely discredited in America this year.

Reeves is politically knowledgeable and has held various consultant positions with federal government branches. He is former western regional director for manpower for the Defense Department.

But T. V. McGuire brings the freshest look to the race. He has "done his homework" and can speak knowledgeably on the important issues — energy conservation, taxation, government spending.

We think T. V. McGuire deserves the votes of Marin Democrats as a man who would represent the county's interests and bring a sensible approach to large national interests.

ON THE REPUBLICAN side, the primary contenders are Thomas O. Caylor, Jean Margaret Wall, and Sean McCarthy.

Caylor is an international trade consultant and former newspaper columnist and magazine editor. He has been active in many San Francisco and Northern California civic affairs, has served on several foreign trade missions, and is especially knowledgeable in the fields of trade and economics.

Miss Wall is a San Francisco attorney specializing in Workmen's Compensation cases. McCarthy is a son of former state Sen. John F. McCarthy. His only previous political activity has been as a protestor against the Vietnam War — after his return from army service in Vietnam.

Caylor's qualifications for congressional office far outweigh those of either of his opponents, making the choice for Republicans an easy one.

'Mere Technicalities' Work Both Ways

WASHINGTON — Law-and-order fetishists across the country are upset about the Supreme Court again — this time not their old whipping boy, the Warren court, but the new, improved Nixon court.

The court has thrown out hundreds of convictions obtained by Mr. Nixon's Justice Department because Mr. Nixon's attorney general, John Mitchell, played fast and loose with the law governing wiretaps. Thus a whole battalion of drug-pushers and other entrepreneurs in organized crime will go free — all because of what the government argued was a mere "technicality."

THERE ARE A LOT of crimes being investigated and tried in our country these days which this particular government insists are not crimes at all, because of mere technicalities.

You may recall that John Ehrlichman, Mr. Nixon's erstwhile domestic affairs aide, told the Senate Watergate committee almost a year ago that the break-in at Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office — surely a crime if committed without a good excuse — was perfectly acceptable since it was done in the name of "national security."

Broadly speaking, it was his pretense that the President can do anything, regardless of the laws, if he sticks the "national security" label on it. In line with that, there has been a lot of retrospective label-sticking, as borne out by the partial transcripts of White House conversations the President mistakenly let us all read.

Well after the fact, Mr. Nixon has even written a letter to the judge in the Ellsberg break-in conspiracy trial to confirm that he did indeed give his agents a general franchise in the national security field. The judge had asked for specific evidence that the defendants acted directly on national security instructions from the president. But considering the fix he already has gotten himself into, Mr. Nixon's letter did not admit that he had personally authorized such a break-in. Ehrlichman, Charles Colson, G. Gordon Liddy and their three Cuban-American codefendants still cling to the reed of national security, but under these circumstances it is a weak one.

It is a weak one, in fact, whether or not Mr. Nixon is willing to certify that he paid the burglars' plane and taxi fare. It is so weak because it has been bent and broken so often, especially by this administration. As exercised, it no longer means a thing — except, usually, that the government wants to pull another break-in or install another bug for which it has no legal authority.

THE POINT that matters about the Supreme Court finding against John Mitchell's wiretap evidence, and about the claim of "national security" justification for burglarizing the psychiatrist, is that the government increasingly makes a habit of tromping on the Constitution. That applies specifically to the Fourth Amendment, which says, "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized."

The high court seven years ago affirmed that that language covers tapping and other such surveillance. Now the law conforms, requiring the attorney general himself to approve all taps except those involving national security.

But Mitchell, highly annoyed by any controls at all on tapping, improperly delegated his authority, and hundreds of taps thus were ruled illegal. For the really tricky cases, the White House resorted to the national security pretext and, for the trickiest of all, it bypassed the Justice Department entirely, sending out its own secret detectives.

The abuses so long alleged and now so conclusively proven demand that Congress follow up its impeachment proceedings by tightening the laws on surveillance and elminating "national security" as a convenient detour around those laws.

There should be no tapping in this country, for any reason, without a court order obtained on the sworn application of a high official who will be held directly responsible for its validity. There should be no police activity except by legally created police agencies, and the chief officers of those agencies must be directly accountable for all their doings. The "national security" exception should be abolished, period.

A year or two ago, some Americans could argue in good faith that these vast loopholes in the law served a legitimate purpose. No longer.

Mideast Settlement Could Greatly Increase U.S. Stature

THE SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME IN MIDEAST: If Kissinger diplomacy can get a Syrian-Israeli disengagement — as now seems within reach — four significant consequences will be evident:

1—The United States will have proved itself the most influential nation in the entire Middle East, a trusted friend of both the Arabs and Israelis.

2—It will enable Egypt's President Anwar Sadat to publicly and formally transform his past reliance upon Moscow into a new alliance with the United States.

3—It will enhance the prospects of a permanent peace settlement and remove the greatest danger of a military confrontation between the Soviet Union and the United States.

4—It will demonstrate that the burdens of Watergate do not prevent the president from successfully carrying through crucial and delicate foreign negotiations.

THE ROLE OF ANDREI GROMYKO. The Russians, for their part, have been seeking to block disengagement, and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, traveling behind and around Secretary of State Kissinger, has been busy at his work.

But the Kremlin has stepped back from pledging to Syria massive and direct military assistance without which Syria could not effectively renew the war.

Why? The best guess is that because of fear of war with China, Moscow could not risk having major forces tied down in the Middle East.

CHINA'S GROWING NUCLEAR ARSENAL. The time may well have passed when the Russians could wipe out China's nuclear facilities by sudden attack. Already Peking has sufficient nuclear missiles plus bombers and fighter bombers to survive a pre-emptive strike — and hit back. The Chinese are due to have a 5,000-mile intercontinental missile before the end of this year.

WATERGATE WORDS AT FLOOD TIDE. Richard Nixon, Martha Mitchell, Elliot Richardson, John W. Dean III, Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward of the Washington Post, Dan Rather of CBS, James W. McCord, Howard Hunt and Jeb Stuart Magruder all have one thing in common. They are producing books about their Watergate experiences or their views thereon. At latest count 60 Watergate books are either now in the stores or in prospect. The president's transcripts have become a best seller in paperback.

CLAMOR FOR RESIGNATION CONTINUES. But some dissenting voices are beginning to be heard. The Chattanooga (Tenn.) News-Free Press argues that "presidents should not be shouted out of office" and the Miami Herald sees the impeachment process as the "legal . . . orderly . . . decisive" way of resolving Mr. Nixon's responsibility.

The ballot is the constitutional way of electing a president, and impeachment is the constitutional way of removing a president.

HOW INCUMBENT CONGRESSMEN FAVOR THEMSELVES. There are two ways:

They vote themselves free mail service and during the three months before congressional elections are able to inundate constituents with propaganda material favorable to their side.

They provide themselves with radio and television recording facilities which enable them to send out programs, touting how good they are, to stations in their states and districts. They pay a minimum service charge; the taxpayers pay the rest.

Shouldn't these services be available to political opponents or withdrawn from incumbents during the campaigns?

Bravo to the Marin Figure Skating Club for their fine presentation, "The Enchanted City" May 4-6. This is the third time in five years that I have had the pleasure of seeing these young people perform and have seen such improvement in these five years. At this latest show, many of them skated like professionals.

The costumes were delightful and it was hard to realize I was not at a professional ice show. I understand most of the mothers of the skaters made the costumes.

The whole show was well coordinated and the various scenes of San Francisco were cleverly protrayed.

My hat off to these wonderful, dedicated youngsters.

Reasons For Banning Rock Springs Parking

We regret the misunderstanding over the water district's position on parking in Rock Springs Meadow on Mt. Tamalpais.

In 1972 the Mountain Play Association was allowed to use the meadow for parking for the last time pending a study of the entire watershed by a group of consultants from the University of California. The consultants' report, completed this year, recommends against parking in the meadow.

The vegetation cover in the meadow has deteriorated due to direct damage by cars to vegetation and the surface soil. The subsoil is being compacted by one of the most effective soil compacting machines known — the rubber tired vehicle. . . Gradual compaction by automobiles for many years has reduced the ability of the soil to absorb rainfall. This, along with the surface damage, has resulted in more rapid runoff and surface erosion from the meadow. Rock Springs Meadow is the headwaters of Cataract Creek, one of the most important tributaries to Alpine Reservoir. This tributary is the most severely eroded of any major tributary to the District's mountain reservoirs. This is largely due to what is happening to Rock Springs Meadow. . .

This year, as in prior years, the Mountain Play Association used the MMWD "Quarry" parking lot above the Mountain Theatre, shuttle buses were used, and many people hiked to the Mountain Play. . .

Use Boat Tax Revenues To Create More Noise?

I wish Michael Wornum could have been on my back porch in Black Point Sunday afternoon when two unmuffled racing boats, sounding like a jet plane at a hundred feet, were using the Petaluma River for their practice runs. Mr. Wornum's proposal to use the property tax from boat owners to build more boating facilities, sounds like a typical hack politican's effort to bribe a block of votes with the tax code (unfathomable tangle that it is from all past such favors).

The county supervisors have approved the expansion of the Black Point launching facility for the benefit of the boat owners, but they don't enforce any noise limits for the benefit of residents. If Mr. Wornum goes to the Assembly, and we get a Reagan-appointed supervisor in his seat, Marin will have taken two steps backward in solving the problems of conflicting interests in a complex society.

Water Board Obligated To Appeal Decision

I believe your coverage of Judge Warren McGuire's decision on the water hook-up moratorium left much to be desired. While the judge's position was clear in your article, the dilemma of the water board was evidently too complicated for your writer to grasp.

If water board members do not fight for appeal of McGuire's decision, they will be disregarding completely the overwhelming opposition of Marin residents to massive water projects.

With all due respect to Judge McGuire, he won't be the first lower court judge whose decision is overturned on appeal. In the meantime, board members elected by the people must not disregard the will of the voters expressed so clearly in the fate of Measure B in 1971 and Measure E in 1973.

John Burton Crying Poverty All The Way To The Bank

Some politicians seem to assume people will swallow the baloney they throw to the citizenry no matter how thick it is cut.

Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, for example.

In what must be one of the more hollow cries heard this election season, Burton is claiming poverty in his congressional campaign, and painting the specter of a heavily financed Republican drive to defeat him.

According to his campaign committee, "once again, John Burton is depending solely upon grass roots financial support to cover the costs of his campaign. This year he has created a $5-a-month club to make it easier for all of us."

Another piece of puffery from Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, argues that Burton's "consistent opposition to the special interests, most notably his efforts to eliminate the oil depletion loophole, has gained John the enmity of powerful economic forces. As a result, the Republican Party has earmarked more than $200,000 to prevent his election to Congress.

"We do not expect to match the Republicans dollar for dollar," Brown said, "but if he is not outspent by more than 2 to 1, John will win."

THAT'S THE RHETORIC. How about the facts? How about the fact Burton reported some $50,000 in contributions in his first campaign finance statement covering January and February.

And it hardly sounds like "grass roots" that Burton so far has reported 14 contributors who gave $1,000 each, one who gave $2,000 and one $3,000.

Contrast these heavy figures with the fact none of the three Republicans in the race even filed campaign finance reports for the first part of the year. They did not have to because they had nothing to report. And contrast Burton's report with the fact that Republican Thomas O. Caylor, his party's leading contender against Burton, is running so poor that his Marin headquarters had to wait days to scrape together enough money for a third telephone line.

THE DEMOCRATIC Central Committee of Marin, never a model of efficiency, long has had five members from the First Supervisorial District. Real live voting members. Five of them, count them.

Guess what? There are supposed to be only four! Some committee officers even knew of the discrepancy, or would have if they had read their mail from the county elections office. It clearly noted the district was entitled to four, not five members.

One of the five recently resigned, but the committee nevertheless has been running about trying to fill the slot.

THE MARIN FEDERATED Republican Women apparnetly have not read that the position of district attorney in California is nonpartisan. They invited only two of the three candidates for the job in Marin, and refused to admit the one who is a Democrat. Shoddy pool!

WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .

"Just flew down to Pimlico, Md., to see the great Preakness race. Bucked a headwind but not as strong a one as the horse I bet on bucked. Forty thousand people there, counting senators and congressmen.

"Lucky for me I ran into an old friend. Through his influence he got me in the inclosure where the Republicans were, otherwise I would have had to stay in the center field with the Democrats." — May 11, 1929.

McGuire, Caylor In Congress Races

There is a scramble in both political parties for the congressional seat formerly held by William S. Mailliard.

Redistricting has complicated the scramble, and has made more likely the election of a Democrat in November. "Silk stocking" San Francisco neighborhoods of the old Sixth District have been replaced by heavily Democratic low-income neighborhoods in the new district (which will become the Fifth).

This situation has focused principal attention on the race for the June 4 Democratic nomination.

THE MAN with the big campaign fund, and apparently the front runner, is John Burton, who now serves in the California Assembly and whose brother, Philip, is congressman from another San Francisco district.

Pitted against him are Alan Douglas French, a young San Franciscan who ran unsuccessfully against Mailliard two years ago; Alan F. Reeves, who is making his first bid for elective office in California but was an unsuccessful candidate for an at-large congressional post from Ohio some years ago, and Terrence V. McGuire of San Rafael, brother of Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire. This is T. V. McGuire's first-ever bid for elective office.

Burton has solid support of union leaders. (French has complained that even the Carpenters Union, to which he belongs, is afraid to support him.) Burton is for compulsory unionization of all public employees, with the right to strike. The other three have all come out against it.

Except for Burton, the candidates lack legislative experience. But Burton's record in the state Assembly is more an albatross around his neck than a recommendation. He is of the type of professional politician widely discredited in America this year.

Reeves is politically knowledgeable and has held various consultant positions with federal government branches. He is former western regional director for manpower for the Defense Department.

But T. V. McGuire brings the freshest look to the race. He has "done his homework" and can speak knowledgeably on the important issues — energy conservation, taxation, government spending.

We think T. V. McGuire deserves the votes of Marin Democrats as a man who would represent the county's interests and bring a sensible approach to large national interests.

ON THE REPUBLICAN side, the primary contenders are Thomas O. Caylor, Jean Margaret Wall, and Sean McCarthy.

Caylor is an international trade consultant and former newspaper columnist and magazine editor. He has been active in many San Francisco and Northern California civic affairs, has served on several foreign trade missions, and is especially knowledgeable in the fields of trade and economics.

Miss Wall is a San Francisco attorney specializing in Workmen's Compensation cases. McCarthy is a son of former state Sen. John F. McCarthy. His only previous political activity has been as a protestor against the Vietnam War — after his return from army service in Vietnam.

Caylor's qualifications for congressional office far outweigh those of either of his opponents, making the choice for Republicans an easy one.

'Mere Technicalities' Work Both Ways

WASHINGTON — Law-and-order fetishists across the country are upset about the Supreme Court again — this time not their old whipping boy, the Warren court, but the new, improved Nixon court.

The court has thrown out hundreds of convictions obtained by Mr. Nixon's Justice Department because Mr. Nixon's attorney general, John Mitchell, played fast and loose with the law governing wiretaps. Thus a whole battalion of drug-pushers and other entrepreneurs in organized crime will go free — all because of what the government argued was a mere "technicality."

THERE ARE A LOT of crimes being investigated and tried in our country these days which this particular government insists are not crimes at all, because of mere technicalities.

You may recall that John Ehrlichman, Mr. Nixon's erstwhile domestic affairs aide, told the Senate Watergate committee almost a year ago that the break-in at Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office — surely a crime if committed without a good excuse — was perfectly acceptable since it was done in the name of "national security."

Broadly speaking, it was his pretense that the President can do anything, regardless of the laws, if he sticks the "national security" label on it. In line with that, there has been a lot of retrospective label-sticking, as borne out by the partial transcripts of White House conversations the President mistakenly let us all read.

Well after the fact, Mr. Nixon has even written a letter to the judge in the Ellsberg break-in conspiracy trial to confirm that he did indeed give his agents a general franchise in the national security field. The judge had asked for specific evidence that the defendants acted directly on national security instructions from the president. But considering the fix he already has gotten himself into, Mr. Nixon's letter did not admit that he had personally authorized such a break-in. Ehrlichman, Charles Colson, G. Gordon Liddy and their three Cuban-American codefendants still cling to the reed of national security, but under these circumstances it is a weak one.

As a result, the Republican Party has earmarked more than $200,000 to prevent his election to Congress.

"We do not expect to match the Republicans dollar for dollar," Brown said, "but if he is not outspent by more than 2 to 1, John will win."

THAT'S THE RHETORIC. How about the facts? How about the fact Burton reported some $50,000 in contributions in his first campaign finance statement covering January and February.

And it hardly sounds like "grass roots" that Burton so far has reported 14 contributors who gave $1,000 each, one who gave $2,000 and one $3,000.

Contrast these heavy figures with the fact none of the three Republicans in the race even filed campaign finance reports for the first part of the year. They did not have to because they had nothing to report. And contrast Burton's report with the fact that Republican Thomas O. Caylor, his party's leading contender against Burton, is running so poor that his Marin headquarters had to wait days to scrape together enough money for a third telephone line.

THE DEMOCRATIC Central Committee of Marin, never a model of efficiency, long has had five members from the First Supervisorial District. Real live voting members. Five of them, count them.

Guess what? There are supposed to be only four! Some committee officers even knew of the discrepancy, or would have if they had read their mail from the county elections office. It clearly noted the district was entitled to four, not five members.

One of the five recently resigned, but the committee nevertheless has been running about trying to fill the slot.

THE MARIN FEDERATED Republican Women apparnetly have not read that the position of district attorney in California is nonpartisan. They invited only two of the three candidates for the job in Marin, and refused to admit the one who is a Democrat. Shoddy pool!

WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .

"Just flew down to Pimlico, Md., to see the great Preakness race. Bucked a headwind but not as strong a one as the horse I bet on bucked. Forty thousand people there, counting senators and congressmen.

"Lucky for me I ran into an old friend. Through his influence he got me in the inclosure where the Republicans were, otherwise I would have had to stay in the center field with the Democrats." — May 11, 1929.

CAPITOL QUIPS

The loss of our illusions is the only loss from which we never recover. — Ouida.

We have comforts that kings might consider luxuries, yet it is real punishment for us to stay at home; we have wealth and occupation, but little of that peace of mind surpassing wealth which the sage finds in meditation. — Joseph Collins.

One Candidate Gets Caboose; Another Borrows From Wife

Supervisor Michael Wornum, aspirant for Marin's Assembly seat in Sacramento, plans to keep a little memento of his campaign — win or lose. The remembrance is a vintage caboose he is using as his headquarters in Greenbrae.

Funny thing about that caboose: half the $3,000 price is being paid by Wornum and the other half with campaign donations funneled through his committee.

WHILE ON CAMPAIGN donations, financial statements filed last week by local candidates provide some interesting insights:

Jack Felson, also running for the Assembly, donated $15,000 to his own campaign. You might remember that he's the candidate who urged all others not to accept donations of more than $100.

With a wad like that in his sock, I can see why.

Dist. Atty. Bruce Bales, meanwhile, reported a $100 gift from the legal firm of Hallinan, Blum and Grode. The firm is headed by Patrick Hallinan, son of Vincent Hallinan and a frequent defender of those accused of narcotics violations.

I'd say the old man didn't send his son to school just to eat lunch.

Then there's the candidate for county clerk, Howard Hanson, who received a $5,000 "loan" from his wife.

THAT BLITZ of Silvestri for Assembly signs in San Rafael ground to a half last week as city officials told the young attorney he was violating a city ordinance.

San Rafael, like several other cities in Marin, does not permit signs in public rights-of-way, such as over sidewalks.

The signs were plastered, stapled, nailed and spiked hither and yon by a Bay Area firm, which obviously is not renowned for its aesthetic discretion.

Meantime, Polly Smith of Tiburon, who is running for the Marin Municipal Water District, is continuing her fight to open all candidates' nights to the public.

She first rejected an offer from the Marin Coalition since its meeting was not open. Last week she turned down the Marin County Committee on Political Education. That's the Marin County Labor Council's political mouthpiece.

ASSESSOR BERT BROEMMEL, with his usual timely perfection, again has mailed assessment notices just weeks before the June election, much to the jangled nerves of some incumbents.

If Broemmel's estimated 12.2 per cent increase in property values holds up, the county coffers can expect an additional $2.5 million in revenue next year (based on the current $2.58 tax rate).

That should cover inflation. So now's the time to pin down Supervisors Wornum and Arnold Baptiste, both running for office, about holding down the tax rate.

Elsewhere at Civic Center, a committee of supervisors has been meeting privately with department heads to discuss salaries. With the salaries some are getting, I'd be reluctant to discuss them publicly, too.

THE MIND I LIVE IN

Going For Little Walk Is Different At Five

By ROB TREICHLER

Nine to fivers would call it goofing off. A writer type knows it for what it is, and that's chasing the muse, or the search for inspiration. I took some time off to walk to the school playground with the 5-year-old this afternoon. If I had taken along golf clubs to hit a few balls, that wouldn't be goofing off; that would be unwinding.

Any parent knows it is terribly frustrating to take a 5-year-old anywhere, especially a normally curious and active 5-year-old.

I didn't take Kim, however. I went with her, and that makes all the difference in the world.

IT'S NOT THE TYPE of thing an adult could live on, and that's a pity. There's no schedule to walking with kids, and no way to fit that kind of life in with the life we've come to expect of ourselves.

We walked, of course, because that's the way children travel. When we take them, it's often by car, even though it's only four blocks, because "we just haven't the time to walk."

Adults logically plan logical routes. On those rare occasions when you walk, the straightest, quickest, most efficient distance is the way you travel.

But if you're five, there are important things to see and explore. There's a house that had a fire, and the workmen had left a pile of charred wood in the driveway, and were all too happy to wave and shout from the rooftop to a little girl surveying "all the terrible damage." There was a house with a speed boat in the garage "pretty and covered with sparklies" which was worth a quick peek. Certainly worthy of more than casual mention would be Mary Beth's house, and Jerry's, and Gino's and Tina's, and the one where the mean dog lady lives.

PLAYGROUNDS HAVE monkey bars, swings, slides and other kids, all of whom quickly forget how to pump a swing "scary high" whenever a push-over adult arrives on the scene to do the job for them. "Push me. . . push me mister! Higher, higher!"

A Wednesday afternoon in May is a good time to learn that your 5-year-old can swing from rung to rung on a horizontal ladder, and even do skippsies — missing every other rung, swinging ape fashion five feet off the ground. You make a mental note not to tell Mommy, or she'll learn her heart can also do skippsies.

Monkey bars are castles, forts and play houses, and there is even a way to go to sleep in them when playing house, with legs draped over one bar and arms over another. "Resting", she calls it.

There is only one speed at which children use a playground, and that's full ahead. Playground is the only spectator sport that is physically tiring. Sitting in a gently rocking swing, you watch the kids run from slide to monkey bars to balance beam to swing rings, and it's all nothing but fun.

Eventually the 45 pound bundle suffers from energy crisis. It's piggy back time, because hopping, skipping and missing sidewalk cracks have depleted all the reserves. One nice thing about five; no need to conserve energy, time or resources for the immediate or distant future.

BUT WHEN YOU'RE FIVE, and then some, there's a world of schedules and deadlines and all those terribly important things that are supposed to fit into all the prescribed slots, and you suddenly feel the need to hurry home by the quickest and straightest possible route.

Somewhere, you've lost something, and there's a terrible sense of great loss.

FOOD SERVICE MANAGERS

We are looking for people with growth potential like ours — our rapid growth has created a need for trained managers to operate and supervise present and planned restaurants.

We have a lot to offer. A good starting salary and the chance to earn more with additional responsibilities. An attractive benefits program that includes vacations, comprehensive life and medical insurance, even a profit sharing program.

If you enjoy working with people, have leadership ability, and a professional attitude to manage a unit, we are interested in you.

We have good people and they helped us become a leading restaurant chain. Now we are looking for more good people to help us build for the future.

For Local appointment call our toll-free operator:
(800) 652-1628
Or send resume in confidence to Straw Hat Pizza Palace; 6400 Village Parkway; Dublin, CA 94566. Attention: Personnel Department.

WEATHER OUTLOOK

Residents of Marin and Southern Sonoma can look forward to a cooler-than-normal late May and early June this year, according to the National Weather Service. The outlook is also for above normal precipitation in the area from May 16 to June 15. Last year there was no rain in the corresponding period. Highest temperature for the 30 days was 104 on June 8, followed by 101 on June 9, the only two days during which the mercury topped 100. (UPI Map)

Soviet Spring Planting Lags

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Planting of spring crops in the Soviet Union is running behind last year's pace but apparently is "near normal," an Agriculture Department report indicates.

The agency's Foreign Agriculture Service said in a report that 156.4 million acres of spring crops had been planted in the Soviet Union by May 6 including 93.4 million acres of grain.

Officials said the spring seeding was about a week behind the "excellent" pace last year, and about 3-4 days behind 1972. However, this year's pace was about 4 to 5 days ahead of the rate reported in 1970 and 1971.

Candidates Night For Division One

A candidate's night for hopefuls in the Division One race for the Marin Municipal Water District board will be at 8 p.m. today at Lagunitas School in the San Geronimo Valley.

Seeking to represent Division One, which includes San Geronimo Valley, Marinwood, Terra Linda, Santa Venetia and Sleepy Hollow, are Richard J. Boylan, Betty M. Forry, Winifred S. Frederick, Graham McPhail Jr. and Rufus Blanchard Alwin.

Protestants Paralyze N. Ireland

BELFAST (UPI) — Armed Protestants paralyzed Northern Ireland today in the most powerful display of civil disobedience in the province's recent history.

Thousands of hijacked cars and trucks blocked all main roads and railway lines. Gangs carrying clubs forced pedestrians off the sidewalks in Belfast.

In the eastern section of the city, residents said Protestants were patrolling the streets with rifles and pistols and sniper positions were being set up to protect roadblocks.

Police said trees chopped down during the night littered rural roads and highways and that some communities were completely cut off from the outside world.

Milk and bread producers said they were being forced to halt deliveries because their truck drivers feared for their safety. Electricity officials said power supplies slumped to the critical 40 per cent level.

The Ulster Workers' Council (UWC) which claims 300,000 militant followers, called a "total strike" to force new elections to reverse current government policies of sharing power with the Roman Catholic minority.

Men wearing the paramilitary uniform of the Protestant Ulster Defense Association (UDA) started throwing up the barricades at midnight.

The move followed the government's declaration of a state of emergency Sunday, giving it the right to call in troops to operate factories and plants.

Government officials did not react immediately to the challenge. But government sources said the Protestant militants' action took Northern Ireland Catholic-Protestant strife closer to a showdown than it has been in five years of violence.

The latest of the 1,022 persons to die in the fighting was Catholic Joe Shaw, 22, married to a Protestant and shot to death in his Protestant-dominated neighborhood Saturday night.

The general strike call culminated six days of Protestant industrial walkouts that closed four of the Province's five power stations and brought it close to a blackout. Business and industry also slowed down.

Police said uniformed men hijacked vehicles and blocked four major highways into Bangor, a resort 10 miles east of Belfast late Sunday and turned back traffic in all directions. Other UDA men "commandeered" private automobiles for use as roadblocks in the Protestant stronghold of east Belfast, site of UDA headquarters.

Impact Statement Asked In Dredging

Directors of Tomales Bay Association are asking the Army Corps of Engineers to require an environmental impact statement and a hearing before the Coastal Commission before any dredging is permitted in Lagunitas Creek.

Wilson Turner, association president, said today the directors voted to make the request after hearing that Waldo Giacomini, Point Reyes Station dairyman, has applied for permission to dredge the stream, which is also known as Papermill Creek.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Quacks Usually Found Behind Stories About 'Miracle' Cures

A Detroit reader writes: "Is it true that European physicians have medicines that will dissolve gallstones and shrink an enlarged prostrate gland? The fellow who told me about this said American doctors will not use these medications because they are big on surgery. We'll be in Europe this summer, and I wondered if it was worth my while to try to find some of these drugs."

One of the first tricks used by quacks and doctors of questionable integrity is to discredit ethical and reliable physicians. First of all, a doctor will recommend surgery only when it is necessary and after he has tried conservative measures.

MORE THAN two years ago, the Mayo Clinic published reports on a chemical capable of dissolving gallstones. The drug, which is called chenodeoxycholic acid, worked on a few people, but it had to be taken for at least six months. The investigators believed more research was needed before the drug could be recommended. In my opinion, it is easier to have the diseased gallbladder and its stones removed surgically. Dissolving the stones leaves the diseased gallbaldder, a situation that at best, offers temporary improvement.

Using medicine, a hormone as a rule, to shrink an enlarged prostate is of very little value in the usual and most common form of enlargement which is due to age. The situation is different when the enlargement is due to an infection. Prostatic massage, plus antibiotics or sulfonamides, lead to shrinkage as the infection subsides.

A PHYSICIAN'S reputation depends on his ability to cure his patients with safe, easy, and effective remedies. Surgery is not needed or advised when medicines do the trick. Obviously, there are rotten apples in all professions, but we should not blame the 97 per cent of physicians who are honest and dedicated men and women.

Several refugee physicians I know of sell medicines that were brought in from Germany, France or Italy. These charlatans embellish their tales by telling how they smuggled them into the United States at great risk. On two occasions, when patients have shown me the tablets, I found that they were made by American pharmaceutical companies.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

BIRTHDAY BALLOONS

C. D. writes: Since I blew up some balloons for my child's birthday party, I've had pain in one ear. Did I damage it?

REPLY

Examination will be needed to answer this question. Blowing into the balloons increased pressure within the nose and throat. Some of the secretions may have been forced into the eustachian tube and from there into the inner ear. The air may be trapped in the ear cavity or inflammation may exist.

SWALLOWED GLASS

L. T. writes: If a piece of glass is accidentally swallowed, how long does it remain in the system?

REPLY

For about 24 hours, unless it gets stuck somewhere along the approximately 26 feet of the intestinal tract. There is no need for concern so long as symptoms do not occur.

Cubans Picket Red Consulate

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — About 30 anti-Castro Cubans marched outside the Soviet consulate yesterday, carrying such signs as "Russians: Hands off Cuba" and "Nixon: Cuba is Not Negotiable."

Andres Garcia addressed the pickets over a portable sound system and denounced Article II of the U.S.-Cuba antihijacking agreement of 1973.

He said anti-Castro Cubans believe the article is or could be aimed at them.

Garcia said he is a delegate to the Cuban exile Abdala movement.

Leased Housing Budget On List

A leased housing program budget for the coming fiscal year is up for approval by Marin County Housing Authority directors at a meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at 47 Paul Drive, San Rafael.

The board also will meet in closed session to review applications for the job of legal counsel to the authority.

Soviet Spring Planting Lags

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Planting of spring crops in the Soviet Union is running behind last year's pace but apparently is "near normal," an Agriculture Department report indicates.

The agency's Foreign Agriculture Service said in a report that 156.4 million acres of spring crops had been planted in the Soviet Union by May 6 including 93.4 million acres of grain.

Officials said the spring seeding was about a week behind the "excellent" pace last year, and about 3-4 days behind 1972. However, this year's pace was about 4 to 5 days ahead of the rate reported in 1970 and 1971.

Candidates Night For Division One

A candidate's night for hopefuls in the Division One race for the Marin Municipal Water District board will be at 8 p.m. today at Lagunitas School in the San Geronimo Valley.

Seeking to represent Division One, which includes San Geronimo Valley, Marinwood, Terra Linda, Santa Venetia and Sleepy Hollow, are Richard J. Boylan, Betty M. Forry, Winifred S. Frederick, Graham McPhail Jr. and Rufus Blanchard Alwin.

Protestants Paralyze N. Ireland

BELFAST (UPI) — Armed Protestants paralyzed Northern Ireland today in the most powerful display of civil disobedience in the province's recent history.

Thousands of hijacked cars and trucks blocked all main roads and railway lines. Gangs carrying clubs forced pedestrians off the sidewalks in Belfast.

In the eastern section of the city, residents said Protestants were patrolling the streets with rifles and pistols and sniper positions were being set up to protect roadblocks.

Police said trees chopped down during the night littered rural roads and highways and that some communities were completely cut off from the outside world.

Milk and bread producers said they were being forced to halt deliveries because their truck drivers feared for their safety. Electricity officials said power supplies slumped to the critical 40 per cent level.

The Ulster Workers' Council (UWC) which claims 300,000 militant followers, called a "total strike" to force new elections to reverse current government policies of sharing power with the Roman Catholic minority.

Men wearing the paramilitary uniform of the Protestant Ulster Defense Association (UDA) started throwing up the barricades at midnight.

The move followed the government's declaration of a state of emergency Sunday, giving it the right to call in troops to operate factories and plants.

Government officials did not react immediately to the challenge. But government sources said the Protestant militants' action took Northern Ireland Catholic-Protestant strife closer to a showdown than it has been in five years of violence.

The latest of the 1,022 persons to die in the fighting was Catholic Joe Shaw, 22, married to a Protestant and shot to death in his Protestant-dominated neighborhood Saturday night.

The general strike call culminated six days of Protestant industrial walkouts that closed four of the Province's five power stations and brought it close to a blackout. Business and industry also slowed down.

Police said uniformed men hijacked vehicles and blocked four major highways into Bangor, a resort 10 miles east of Belfast late Sunday and turned back traffic in all directions. Other UDA men "commandeered" private automobiles for use as roadblocks in the Protestant stronghold of east Belfast, site of UDA headquarters.

Impact Statement Asked In Dredging

Directors of Tomales Bay Association are asking the Army Corps of Engineers to require an environmental impact statement and a hearing before the Coastal Commission before any dredging is permitted in Lagunitas Creek.

Wilson Turner, association president, said today the directors voted to make the request after hearing that Waldo Giacomini, Point Reyes Station dairyman, has applied for permission to dredge the stream, which is also known as Papermill Creek.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Quacks Usually Found Behind Stories About 'Miracle' Cures

A Detroit reader writes: "Is it true that European physicians have medicines that will dissolve gallstones and shrink an enlarged prostrate gland? The fellow who told me about this said American doctors will not use these medications because they are big on surgery. We'll be in Europe this summer, and I wondered if it was worth my while to try to find some of these drugs."

One of the first tricks used by quacks and doctors of questionable integrity is to discredit ethical and reliable physicians. First of all, a doctor will recommend surgery only when it is necessary and after he has tried conservative measures.

MORE THAN two years ago, the Mayo Clinic published reports on a chemical capable of dissolving gallstones. The drug, which is called chenodeoxycholic acid, worked on a few people, but it had to be taken for at least six months. The investigators believed more research was needed before the drug could be recommended. In my opinion, it is easier to have the diseased gallbladder and its stones removed surgically. Dissolving the stones leaves the diseased gallbaldder, a situation that at best, offers temporary improvement.

Using medicine, a hormone as a rule, to shrink an enlarged prostate is of very little value in the usual and most common form of enlargement which is due to age. The situation is different when the enlargement is due to an infection. Prostatic massage, plus antibiotics or sulfonamides, lead to shrinkage as the infection subsides.

A PHYSICIAN'S reputation depends on his ability to cure his patients with safe, easy, and effective remedies. Surgery is not needed or advised when medicines do the trick. Obviously, there are rotten apples in all professions, but we should not blame the 97 per cent of physicians who are honest and dedicated men and women.

Several refugee physicians I know of sell medicines that were brought in from Germany, France or Italy. These charlatans embellish their tales by telling how they smuggled them into the United States at great risk. On two occasions, when patients have shown me the tablets, I found that they were made by American pharmaceutical companies.

BIRTHDAY BALLOONS

C. D. writes: Since I blew up some balloons for my child's birthday party, I've had pain in one ear. Did I damage it?

REPLY

Examination will be needed to answer this question. Blowing into the balloons increased pressure within the nose and throat. Some of the secretions may have been forced into the eustachian tube and from there into the inner ear. The air may be trapped in the ear cavity or inflammation may exist.

SWALLOWED GLASS

L. T. writes: If a piece of glass is accidentally swallowed, how long does it remain in the system?

REPLY

For about 24 hours, unless it gets stuck somewhere along the approximately 26 feet of the intestinal tract. There is no need for concern so long as symptoms do not occur.

Cubans Picket Red Consulate

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — About 30 anti-Castro Cubans marched outside the Soviet consulate yesterday, carrying such signs as "Russians: Hands off Cuba" and "Nixon: Cuba is Not Negotiable."

Andres Garcia addressed the pickets over a portable sound system and denounced Article II of the U.S.-Cuba antihijacking agreement of 1973.

He said anti-Castro Cubans believe the article is or could be aimed at them.

Garcia said he is a delegate to the Cuban exile Abdala movement.

Fire Expands

GUADALUPITA, N. M. (UPI) — Five hundred firefighters battled today to contain a northern New Mexico forest fire that more than quadrupled in size to 5,000 acres yesterday because of strong, gusty winds.

BEST SHOWS FOR TONIGHT

Unusual on television tonight:

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 8 p.m. — Following the murder of a priest in a largely non-Catholic neighborhood, three courageous nuns convert a book store into a storefront community center in "Prayers Unanswered, Prayers Unheard," on the police drama series "The Rookies."

KQED (9), 8:15 p.m. — "The Place for No Story," a spectacular aerial portrait of California by Philip Greene, captures both the beauty of the land and the destruction man has wrought upon it on "The Special of the Week."

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 9 p.m. — George Peppard, Joan Collins and Judy Geeson star in "The Executioner," a suspenseful espionage drama of spies, counterspies, double agents and double dealings.

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 11:30 p.m. — David Janssen stars as the sheriff of a small Louisiana bayou town, terrorized by a modern day werewolf in "Moon of the Wolf," to be presented on the "Wide World of Entertainment." Barbara Rush, Bradford Dillman and John Beradino also star in the thriller.

Woman Coaches Winning Frog In Jump Contest

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (UPI) — There was lots of hollerin' and leapin' and when it was over yesterday the 46th annual Calaveras County Fair and Jumping Frog Jubilee had its first woman winner—in a manner of speaking.

It was a jumping bullfrog named "E. Dynamic Denny" that distinguished his female coach, Kaye Guzules of Santa Clara, Calif.

Her frog was short of the magic 20-foot, three-jump total, but its effort of 18 feet, 4¾ inches was about as good as those other jumping frogs Mark Twain wrote about in his famous short story.

"Denny" was the best of 1,620 frogs in his three leaps from a one foot-diameter circle. Better than even "John's Long Tom," a peppy croaker entered by Oregon Gov. Tom McCall, winner of the governor's division. "John's Long Tom" finished 27th yesterday among 69 finalists.

Gov. Ronald Reagan's "Jellybean VIII" washed out in Saturday's semifinals, finishing 20th in the governors' field of 31 entrants.

The one-time gold town was crammed with thousands of rubberneckers trying to see which frog might break the record leap total of 19 feet, 3⅛ inches, set in 1966.

A bullfrog named "Farrannini" placed second yesterday with a total of 16 feet, 11⅝ inches. He was entered by Gene Fasano of Belmont, Calif.

Jeff Haynes' of Los Altos was awarded third place with "Fleetwood," who leaped 16 feet, 7⅝ inches.

Goldwater View On Resignation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., believes President Nixon would change his mind about resigning rather than putthe nation through the "televised horror" of impeachment, Newsweek magazine reported yesterday.

"As of this moment, he is not about to resign," Goldwater said. "But if he begins to see that there is no way out, I think that rather than put the country through two or three months of televised horror, he should seriously consider stepping down."

Goldwater was asked if he would be part of a GOP delegation asking Nixon to resign. "I know of no reason now, in the middle of May, for me or anyone else to go and ask him," he said. "If I became convinced that this should be done, I would have no qualms about doing it. But I don't think the time is here yet."

Detroit Reports Peaceful Weekend

DETROIT (UPI) — For 48 hours and 10 minutes this weekend, Detroit recorded no homicides —a feat not accomplished in 13 months.

The uncommon weekend of peace began Friday at 3:55 p.m. (EDT) when a homicide was recorded and ended yesterday afternoon when police reported the gunshot slaying of Philip Garett, 25, who was felled by a bullet in the back fired from a car as he walked down a west side street.

Acuff's Warning On Impeachment

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Country music singer Roy Acuff says if any congressman or senator from Tennessee votes for impeachment of President Nixon without concrete evidence Acuff will personally campaign against him.

"If impeachment is voted without genuine, subetantial, concrete evidence as in a court od law, clearly establishing guilt on an impeachable offense under the direct rules of the constitution," Acuff said "I will personally campaign against any and allTennessee congressmen and senators — Republican or Democrat —who vote for it."

"It is no time for responsible people to remain silent. It is time for all with convictions, national pride and concern to speak up," Acuff said.

THE UNEXPLAINED

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT

Consider The UFO—Some People Believe They Are Not Fiction

In October 1973, a U.S. Army helicopter over Ohio met a UFO that whisked it 2,000 feet straight up, though at the time the helicopter's controls were set in the dive position. Fact or fiction?

In the same month two fishermen in Mississippi were taken aboard a UFO by "crab men" who subjected them to some sort of physical examination, then released them. One of the men later passed a lie detector test. Fact or fiction?

Beings from aboard a UFO showed a New Hampshire housewife a "star map" which she later drew under hypnosis and which showed actual stars the woman couldn't at the time have known existed. Fact or fiction?

These, and other cases like them, are reported by husband-wife team, Roy and Judy Blum, who started looking into UFO's, they say, with open minds. They claim to still have them.

"My mind's very open as to the final interpretation of the UFO phenomenon," said Blum in an interview. A 42-year-old New Yorker, former Fullbright scholar and Russian language expert, he has written three novels, including two science fiction works well received by the critics.

But his latest book, "Beyond Earth: Man's Contact with UFO's," isn't fiction but fact, he says. He submits the evidence and the reader makes up his own mind. Consider some of the evidence.

On the night of Oct. 18, 1973, Army Capt. Lawrence J. Coyne, 36, was piloting a Huey helicopter with three other reservists aboard on a flight from Columbus to Cleveland, Ohio. Suddenly, at an altitude of 2,500 feet, the captain and crew saw a red light approaching on a collision course. Coyne, a veteran of 20 years of military flying, put the helicopter into a dive to avoid hitting or being hit by the object.

The helicopter dropped 2,000 feet. Meanwhile, the mystery object appeared to stop momentarily about 500 feet above the helicopter.

"We never saw anything like it before," said Coyne. "It was a cigar-shaped craft with a glowing steady red light on its leading edge. A green light emitted from the rear of the craft filled our cabin with a green glow. It was eerie."

What was even more eerie was that when the UFO "streaked away" Coyne discovered that the helicopter had risen some 2,000 feet from the low point reached in its dive, though none of the crew had felt the gravitational pull normally felt when a helicopter rises.

This case, say Roy and Judy Blum, has been investigated by the U.S. Army and other researchers and the only "normal" explanation offered was the casual suggestion by one astronomer that the helicopter crew may have been "hallucinated."

On Oct. 11, 1973, in the now-celebrated case of the crab men of Pasgagoula, 42-year-old Charles Hickson and 19-year-old Calvin Parker said they were accosted by a UFO while fishing, "floated" aboard it by creatures with leathery skin and pincers for hands, and subjected to a head-to-toe examination by a "giant eye."

The Blums quote a report of a lie detector test, taken by Hickson, two weeks after the experience, in which the polygraphist concluded that Hickson "believed" he was telling the truth.

But was the truth that the experience, though real, occurred only in the minds of the two men?

To this question, Roy Blum replied: "I believe that their experience was the result of an external stimulus." He refused to speculate about the nature of the stimulus.

However, the Blums aren't so coy in their book where it's made plain that they favor the theory that UFO's are spacecraft. And, they suggest, we may have a pretty good clue where some of them came from.

The Blums cite research by an Ohio grade three schoolteacher, Marjorie Fish, on a "star map" drawn under hypnosis in 1963 by Mrs. Betty Hill of Portsmouth, N.H. Mrs. Hill, with her now deceased husband, Barney, allegedly was taken aboard a UFO, examined by "humanoids," and released. The map was said to be a reproduction of one which the UFO commander had shown Betty Hill, indicating a certain planetary system as his craft's home base.

Mrs. Fish claims to have identified the stars in the map as parts of actual constellations which, in some cases, were unknown to astonomers when the map was drawn.

"No astronomer on earth beteween 1961 and 1964 could have known that," Dr. Allen Hynek, head of the astronomy department at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., is reported to have said of certain features of the map.

The UFO's home base, according to the map, is a planet orbiting one of two stars, identified as Zeta Renticula One and Two. Both are a mere 30 light years from earth (a light year being the distance that light, at a speed of 186,000 miles per second, travels in one year.)

That's a long trip. But, as Roy and Judy Blum see it, evidently not too far for somebody who really wants to pay you a visit.

Soviet Author Tells Of Threats

NEW YORK (UPI) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the novelist expelled from the Soviet Union, yesterday told how the KGB, the Soviet police, threaten dissidents.

In an article written for Time magazine, Solzhenitsyn said in 1972 the KGB used letters forged with his handwriting to correspond with Vassili Orekhov, the director of the Russian National Association, an emigre orgnization based in Brussels that deals with czarist military history.

"At first, the letters contained only innocent requests for information about the first World War," Solzhenitsyn said. "Then followed a suggestion, purportedly from me, that Orekhov come to Prague or send a representative."

"Apparently the aim was to arrest some Russian emigres from the West who were visiting Prague and to construct around them a criminal case that would have demonstrated that I had links with emigre organizations."

Fire Expands

GUADALUPITA, N. M. (UPI) — Five hundred firefighters battled today to contain a northern New Mexico forest fire that more than quadrupled in size to 5,000 acres yesterday because of strong, gusty winds.

BEST SHOWS FOR TONIGHT

Unusual on television tonight:

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 8 p.m. — Following the murder of a priest in a largely non-Catholic neighborhood, three courageous nuns convert a book store into a storefront community center in "Prayers Unanswered, Prayers Unheard," on the police drama series "The Rookies."

KQED (9), 8:15 p.m. — "The Place for No Story," a spectacular aerial portrait of California by Philip Greene, captures both the beauty of the land and the destruction man has wrought upon it on "The Special of the Week."

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 9 p.m. — George Peppard, Joan Collins and Judy Geeson star in "The Executioner," a suspenseful espionage drama of spies, counterspies, double agents and double dealings.

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 11:30 p.m. — David Janssen stars as the sheriff of a small Louisiana bayou town, terrorized by a modern day werewolf in "Moon of the Wolf," to be presented on the "Wide World of Entertainment." Barbara Rush, Bradford Dillman and John Beradino also star in the thriller.

Woman Coaches Winning Frog In Jump Contest

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (UPI) — There was lots of hollerin' and leapin' and when it was over yesterday the 46th annual Calaveras County Fair and Jumping Frog Jubilee had its first woman winner—in a manner of speaking.

It was a jumping bullfrog named "E. Dynamic Denny" that distinguished his female coach, Kaye Guzules of Santa Clara, Calif.

Her frog was short of the magic 20-foot, three-jump total, but its effort of 18 feet, 4¾ inches was about as good as those other jumping frogs Mark Twain wrote about in his famous short story.

"Denny" was the best of 1,620 frogs in his three leaps from a one foot-diameter circle. Better than even "John's Long Tom," a peppy croaker entered by Oregon Gov. Tom McCall, winner of the governor's division. "John's Long Tom" finished 27th yesterday among 69 finalists.

Gov. Ronald Reagan's "Jellybean VIII" washed out in Saturday's semifinals, finishing 20th in the governors' field of 31 entrants.

The one-time gold town was crammed with thousands of rubberneckers trying to see which frog might break the record leap total of 19 feet, 3⅛ inches, set in 1966.

A bullfrog named "Farrannini" placed second yesterday with a total of 16 feet, 11⅜ inches. He was entered by Gene Fasano of Belmont, Calif.

Jeff Haynes' of Los Altos was awarded third place with "Fleetwood," who leaped 16 feet, 7⅝ inches.

Goldwater View On Resignation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., believes President Nixon would change his mind about resigning rather than putthe nation through the "televised horror" of impeachment, Newsweek magazine reported yesterday.

"As of this moment, he is not about to resign," Goldwater said. "But if he begins to see that there is no way out, I think that rather than put the country through two or three months of televised horror, he should seriously consider stepping down."

Goldwater was asked if he would be part of a GOP delegation asking Nixon to resign. "I know of no reason now, in the middle of May, for me or anyone else to go and ask him," he said. "If I became convinced that this should be done, I would have no qualms about doing it. But I don't think the time is here yet."

Detroit Reports Peaceful Weekend

DETROIT (UPI) — For 48 hours and 10 minutes this weekend, Detroit recorded no homicides —a feat not accomplished in 13 months.

The uncommon weekend of peace began Friday at 3:55 p.m. (EDT) when a homicide was recorded and ended yesterday afternoon when police reported the gunshot slaying of Philip Garett, 25, who was felled by a bullet in the back fired from a car as he walked down a west side street.

Acuff's Warning On Impeachment

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Country music singer Roy Acuff says if any congressman or senator from Tennessee votes for impeachment of President Nixon without concrete evidence Acuff will personally campaign against him.

"If impeachment is voted without genuine, subetantial, concrete evidence as in a court od law, clearly establishing guilt on an impeachable offense under the direct rules of the constitution," Acuff said "I will personally campaign against any and allTennessee congressmen and senators — Republican or Democrat —who vote for it."

"It is no time for responsible people to remain silent. It is time for all with convictions, national pride and concern to speak up," Acuff said.

Consider The UFO—Some People Believe They Are Not Fiction

In October 1973, a U.S. Army helicopter over Ohio met a UFO that whisked it 2,000 feet straight up, though at the time the helicopter's controls were set in the dive position. Fact or fiction?

In the same month two fishermen in Mississippi were taken aboard a UFO by "crab men" who subjected them to some sort of physical examination, then released them. One of the men later passed a lie detector test. Fact or fiction?

Beings from aboard a UFO showed a New Hampshire housewife a "star map" which she later drew under hypnosis and which showed actual stars the woman couldn't at the time have known existed. Fact or fiction?

These, and other cases like them, are reported by husband-wife team, Roy and Judy Blum, who started looking into UFO's, they say, with open minds. They claim to still have them.

"My mind's very open as to the final interpretation of the UFO phenomenon," said Blum in an interview. A 42-year-old New Yorker, former Fullbright scholar and Russian language expert, he has written three novels, including two science fiction works well received by the critics.

But his latest book, "Beyond Earth: Man's Contact with UFO's," isn't fiction but fact, he says. He submits the evidence and the reader makes up his own mind. Consider some of the evidence.

On the night of Oct. 18, 1973, Army Capt. Lawrence J. Coyne, 36, was piloting a Huey helicopter with three other reservists aboard on a flight from Columbus to Cleveland, Ohio. Suddenly, at an altitude of 2,500 feet, the captain and crew saw a red light approaching on a collision course. Coyne, a veteran of 20 years of military flying, put the helicopter into a dive to avoid hitting or being hit by the object.

The helicopter dropped 2,000 feet. Meanwhile, the mystery object appeared to stop momentarily about 500 feet above the helicopter.

"We never saw anything like it before," said Coyne. "It was a cigar-shaped craft with a glowing steady red light on its leading edge. A green light emitted from the rear of the craft filled our cabin with a green glow. It was eerie."

What was even more eerie was that when the UFO "streaked away" Coyne discovered that the helicopter had risen some 2,000 feet from the low point reached in its dive, though none of the crew had felt the gravitational pull normally felt when a helicopter rises.

This case, say Roy and Judy Blum, has been investigated by the U.S. Army and other researchers and the only "normal" explanation offered was the casual suggestion by one astronomer that the helicopter crew may have been "hallucinated."

On Oct. 11, 1973, in the now-celebrated case of the crab men of Pasgagoula, 42-year-old Charles Hickson and 19-year-old Calvin Parker said they were accosted by a UFO while fishing, "floated" aboard it by creatures with leathery skin and pincers for hands, and subjected to a head-to-toe examination by a "giant eye."

The Blums quote a report of a lie detector test, taken by Hickson, two weeks after the experience, in which the polygraphist concluded that Hickson "believed" he was telling the truth.

But was the truth that the experience, though real, occurred only in the minds of the two men?

To this question, Roy Blum replied: "I believe that their experience was the result of an external stimulus." He refused to speculate about the nature of the stimulus.

However, the Blums aren't so coy in their book where it's made plain that they favor the theory that UFO's are spacecraft. And, they suggest, we may have a pretty good clue where some of them came from.

The Blums cite research by an Ohio grade three schoolteacher, Marjorie Fish, on a "star map" drawn under hypnosis in 1963 by Mrs. Betty Hill of Portsmouth, N.H. Mrs. Hill, with her now deceased husband, Barney, allegedly was taken aboard a UFO, examined by "humanoids," and released. The map was said to be a reproduction of one which the UFO commander had shown Betty Hill, indicating a certain planetary system as his craft's home base.

Mrs. Fish claims to have identified the stars in the map as parts of actual constellations which, in some cases, were unknown to astonomers when the map was drawn.

"No astronomer on earth beteween 1961 and 1964 could have known that," Dr. Allen Hynek, head of the astronomy department at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., is reported to have said of certain features of the map.

The UFO's home base, according to the map, is a planet orbiting one of two stars, identified as Zeta Renticula One and Two. Both are a mere 30 light years from earth (a light year being the distance that light, at a speed of 186,000 miles per second, travels in one year.)

That's a long trip. But, as Roy and Judy Blum see it, evidently not too far for somebody who really wants to pay you a visit.

Soviet Author Tells Of Threats

NEW YORK (UPI) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the novelist expelled from the Soviet Union, yesterday told how the KGB, the Soviet police, threaten dissidents.

In an article written for Time magazine, Solzhenitsyn said in 1972 the KGB used letters forged with his handwriting to correspond with Vassili Orekhov, the director of the Russian National Association, an emigre orgnization based in Brussels that deals with czarist military history.

"At first, the letters contained only innocent requests for information about the first World War," Solzhenitsyn said. "Then followed a suggestion, purportedly from me, that Orekhov come to Prague or send a representative."

"Apparently the aim was to arrest some Russian emigres from the West who were visiting Prague and to construct around them a criminal case that would have demonstrated that I had links with emigre organizations."

SENIORS CELEBRATE CENTENNIAL

Evolution Battle Is Still Raging

DAYTON, Tenn. (UPI) — The controversy over the teaching of evolution still rages in Tennessee and the debate shifted over the weekend to the old brick courthouse wtere John T. Scopes was convicted in the famous "monkey trial" nearly 50 years ago.

The latest arguments are over a 1973 Tennessee law requiring the state public school textbooks to include all theories of evolution as well as the Biblical version.

Scopes, who died in 1970 at Shreveport, La., was hauled into court in 1925 for teaching Darwin's theory that man evolved from monkeys. He was defended by Clarence Darrow and prosecuted by William Jennings Bryan.

The weekend debate was sponsored by the University of Tennessee Philosophy Department and the Rhea County Historical Society. The debaters were professors.

"The most recent Tennessee legislatioon violates one of the most cherished freedoms —the freedom of religion," said Frederick Le Clereque, associate professor of law and assistant director of the legal clinic of the University of Tennessee.

"The founding fathers, great men like Thomas Jefferson and James Madison, intended the First Amendment to build a wall of separation between church and state," Clereque said.

"The Tennessee textbook law breaches this wall of separation by introducing religious doctrines in the classroom," said the author of an article on creationist textbook laws in the Vanderbilt University law review.

Robert O'Bannon, associate professor of biologz at Lee College at Cleveland, Tenn., and lecturer on the Bible and the sciences, contended textbooks should either include all theories of man's evolution or ignore every theory of the evolution of man.

"The creation-evolution issue is not an argument between religion and science, in that both theories of origin are incapable of being affirmed or denied by traditional scientific methodology," O'Bannon said.

Charles F. Ogilvie, associate professor of history at the University of Tennessee at Martin and author of a book on the Scopes trial, argued that any "religious indoctriniation" must be avoided in the tax supported schools.

"The U.S. Constitution demands governmental neutrality on religion," Ogilvie said, "And numerous laws and court decisions have made it clear that religious indoctrination both direct and indirect, is out of place in the tax-supported schools.

"What continues to be debated is whether the requirement of neutrality prohibits also instruction that is anti-religious, either directly or by implication, or both," Ogilvie said.

Milk Sales Barely Hit By Boycott

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A California Milk Advisory Board spokesman says the week-long fluid milk boycott, which ended Saturday, failed to score a major impact on state milk consumption.

"At this point," said Kenneth Holl, "we are under the impression that the boycott has had a very limited influence on sales."

He said a survey of Bay Area supermarkets and chain stores showed milk consumption did not drop during the boycott.

Official statistics for the week were not yet available.

Eight California consumer groups launched the boycott on Mother's Day to protest price increases granted by the state Department of Food and Agriculture. They asked consumers to "fight and switch" by buying powdered milk rather than fluid milk.

The groups hoped to put buying-power pressure on milk producers, processors and retailers and possibly get a price rollback.

Lucy Fried, coordinator of the Los Angeles-based Coalition for Economic Survival, said the boycott was a "smashing success" politically because milk prices had become an issue.

"By the time the primary election is here there won't be a candidate around who won't come out in support of a milk price rollback," she said.

Holl said it would be about 60 days before anyone would have figures to assess the boycott.

"If there had been a massive turnaround in milk sales during the boycott, we would have heard about them," Holl added.

Brezhnev Is Seeking Summit With Sadat

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet Party Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev is seeking an early summit with Egypt's President Anwar Sadat to ease their severely strained relations, diplomatic sources said today.

The Kremlin has taken the initiative toward conciliation to win back some of its lost influence in the Middle East and to counter a feared American advance in the region, they said.

The Soviets were said to be anxious to restore communications with Cairo before the Middle East peace negotiations get underway in Geneva where Moscow intends to play an active role.

Overtures were made last week by Russia's new Ambassador to Cairo Vladimir Polyakov who went out of his way to deny that a crisis existed between their two countries.

Polyakov, asked about the possibility of a high level meeting, told newsmen that such meetings "are in line with the interests of the Arab and Soviet people."

Brezhnev was said to be anxious to speak to Sadat in Moscow, but a Cairo meeting, possibly with one of the Soviet key leaders was not ruled out, the sources said.

But, if President Nixon were to visit the Middle East including Cairo as reported in Washington —Brezhnev himself might make the trip to balance the American move.

The rift between Cairo and Moscow is weighing heavily on Kremlin policy makers, according to the sources. The Kremlin was said to be worried that Russia's future role in the Middle East would be heavily undercut if Egypt maintains a hostile line and makes its policy shift toward the United States permanent.

Sadat already has indicated he is prepared to mend the rift with Moscow on the basis of Soviet non-interference and Egyptian non-alignment.

The informants let it be understood that at this stage the Kremlin would be willing to accept Sadat's terms to break the isolation from Egypt.

Moscow has been trying to line up a counter bloc in the Middle East based on Syria, Iraq and more recently Libya, but apparently feels this is not the answer to securing her influence in the Middle East in the long run.

Sadat now is in a comparatively strong position to negotiate with Moscow against the background of his fast improving relations and cooperation with the United States.

Happy Flyers Celebrating

MID-ICE CRASH — Philadelphia Flyers' Bill Clement (white jersey) and Boston Bruins' Gregg Sheppard collided at mid-ice in the first period yesterday at Philadelphia during the Stanley Cup playoff finale. (AP Wirephoto)

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Kate Smith, Bernie Parent and home ice were great advantages but the Philadelphia Flyers say there is really only one way to win the Stanley Cup—hard work.

The Flyers rolled up their sleeves yesterday and did a job on the Boston Bruins, taking a 1-0 decision to win the best-of-seven series four games to two and become the first National Hockey League expansion team to win the Stanley Cup.

"We didn't beat Boston by fighting," said winger Dave Schultz, the most penalized player in the league. "We beat Boston by good, honest hard work. They didn't realize what hard work is until we showed them. We kept giving that second effort."

The Flyers, who earned a reputation as the "Broad Street Bullies" while becoming the most penalized club in the NHL, used their tight-checking aggressive tactics to hold off the Bruins and make Rick MacLeish's first period goal stand up.

Flyers' goaltender Parent stopped 30 Boston and earned the Conn Smythe trophy as the Most Valuable Player in the playoffs but he really was tested only a few times.

"Sometimes there are only four or five times when you have to make good saves in a game, like today," he said. "Sometimes there are 11 or 12. We got the breaks today but the way you get the breaks is by working."

Defenseman Ed Van Impe, who has been with the Flyers since their inception in 1967, agreed with Parent.

"We worked too hard to lose it now," he said. "Hard work has to pay off. You can't just be lucky, you have to be good. Our sense of good is hard work."

The combination of the Flyers' hustling, bustling workman-like effort with the home-ice advantage and an appearance by Miss Smith added up to a huge mountain for the Bruins to climb.

The Flyers won all nine of their playoff games played at the Spectrum and have compiled an amazing 37-3-1 record in the 41 games at which Miss Smith's rendition of "God Bless America" has been played.

It was the Bruins who came out smoking early, however, firing 16 shots at Parent in the first period. But the Flyers made one of their eight first period shots count.

MacLeish tipped in a blue line shot by Andre Dupont at 14:38 and the fans settled in for a tense hockey game.

The Flyers tested Gilbert with a number of on-target drives, but the young goaltender was equal to the task, stopping everything shot at him and keeping the Bruins in contention.

Boston's hopes for some late-game heroics were dashed at 17:38 of the third period when defenseman Bobby Orr was whistled for holding in what Guidolin called "one of the worst calls in hockey."

Flyers' Coach Fred Shero said he didn't know his club had won the title until his players "began jumping onto the ice."

Then bedlam broke loose. Flyer Captain Bobby Clarke and Parent skated slowly around the ice, the coveted cup cradled in their arms and tears rolling down their cheeks.

The celebration carried over into the dressing room where the jubilant Flyers, wearing only their underwear, were joined in the champagne drinking by their wives, probably the first time women had joined a victory locker room celebration.

Parent was in tears and star defenseman Barry Ashbee, who nearly lost an eye when struck in the face by a puck in the semifinal series against New York, wore dark glasses and a contented smile. Gary Dornhoeffer, the wing who underwent surgery earlier this week on a separated shoulder, nearly passed out due to excessive medication but insisted on being with his team.

PAYING OFF

Caldwell's Big Trade

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — After some 40 games you'd have to say last winter's trade involving Willie McCovey and Mike Caldwell is working out just fine for both the San Diego Padres and the San Francisco Giants.

During yesterday's doubleheader split that took more than seven hours to complete, the standout players were Caldwell for the Giants and McCovey for the Padres.

Caldwell, a young left-hander who was 5-14 with San Diego last year, went the distance on a six hitter for his seventh victory of the year in the opener as the Giants won 8-2.

In the nightcap, McCovey hit the 15th grandslam of his career to tie Hank Aaron for the National League record and the Padres went on from there for a 12-inning, 10-7 victory and a split.

The only two runs Caldwell gave up to his former teammates in the first game were unearned and as a resultm he now hasn't allowed an earned run in his last 22 1-3 innings. Even better, he has given up only one earned run over the last 30 1-3 innings and only two runs over 48 1-3 innings.

"I don't feel I'm doing anything different now than in the past," Caldwell said. "Maybe my mental attitude about pitching is better. Also, it could be that the defense on the Giants seems to play its best when I'm pitching."

McCovey hit his grandslam off Tom Bradley in the fifth to give the Padres a 5-3 lead, then left in favor of Nate Colbert.

The big slugger, who also homered in his old home park on Saturday when the Giants won 4-2, wasn't around for the post-game question-and-answer period but he left word with a friend in the clubhouse that he was pleased with his accomplishment.

"It's always nice to hit a grandslam," McCovey said, "but I don't put too much stock in the feat since it's not something you can plan and work for.

San Diego officials claim McCovey's acquisition and play is one of the reasons why the club has drawn 342,408 home fans in 22 dates. That's about 150,000 more at this stage than in any previous year.

As for Caldwell, the Giants would be in deep trouble without his work, considering Bradley is only a 4-4 pitcher and Ron Bryant, last year's 24- game winner, has yet to win in 1974.

The Giants are off before meeting Atlanta in a twi-night doubleheader tomorrow.

Indy Track Officials In Meeting On Race Lineup

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Officials met today to thrash out an agreement on the lineup for Sunday's Indianapolis "500" auto race which would head off theatened legal action against the Indianapolis Motor Speedway by owners of cars which had no chance to qualify.

Nine car owners who filed the original protest late Saturday when qualifications ended before their cars had an opportunity to make the field had an early meeting scheduled with attorney Wright Hugus Jr. That was to be followed by a meeting of Hugus with Speedway vice president Joe Cloutier and chief steward Tom Binford.

At the latter meeting, Hugus said they would discuss his proposal for a 12th row of cars to start the race, with some of the non-qualified cars competing for the final three positions.

"I would hope this will be followed by a mutual announcement of an agreement," Hugus said.

Hugus, as spokesman for teams with non-qualified cars, said Sunday he would file a class action suit today unless the Speedway and the United States Auto Club reopened the time trials so at least six machines get a chance to make the field for the million-dollar race.

Entrants of nonqualified cars were given until 1 p.m. EDT to submit a petition to United States Auto Club signed by entrants of 33 cars now in the field and two alternates saying they agree to reopening the track for qualifications. If they are successful, Chief Steward Tom Binford said he would "reeconsider" extending the time trials.

Some car owners, especially those with the slowest cars in the field, said flatly they would not sign, because they would risk having their cars "bumped" by faster ones if qualifications are resumed.

That would leave attorney Wright Hugus Jr., representing the Roy Woods racing team and a spokesman for nonqualified teams, with the only alternative of going to court. He said he would.

At the conclusion of the time trials late Saturday, with A.J. Foyt assured of the pole position for the third time, entrants for nine cars filed a protest saying their drivers had no opportunity to make the field.

The protest was denied by USAC on grounds the qualifying line was broken by a car that got into the lineup for the second time. It made the field with rookie Johnny Parsons Jr. at the wheel, but he did not attempt to qualify the first time.

Thus, a series of controversies that started on the first Saturday of the time trials continued.

The car of defending "500" champion Gordon Johncock was impounded after its successful qualifying run Saturday but was cleared for the race hours later after a test showed its engine size met specifications.

Twenty-one cars were qualified Saturday, two were "bumped" by faster machines and another was withdrawn. As a result of heavy rains on both qualifying Saturdays, the time allotted for the trials was reduced from 14 hours to about 6 ½.

Tanner, Dark Agree: Pennant Chase To Commence June 14

CHICAGO (UPI) — As far as Oakland Manager Al Dark is concerned, the 1974 pennant chase will not begin until June 14.

Chicago White Sox Manager Chuck Tanner is in full agreement.

Dark, whose A's bombed the Sox 8-3 yesterday after losing 3-2 Saturday, said the early part of the baseball season is designed to give players "lots of time to rest and not too much time to get involved with long stretches of play."

The win pulled Oakland within three percentage points of the first place Sox in the American League West but Dark was looking at it in perspective.

"The real tough months are from the middle of June until the beginning of September," Dark said. "This is the time that a team with a good pitching staff can begin to pull away. Until that time, there are lots of off days, rain-outs and virtually no doubleheaders."

But beginning on June 14, Oakland plays 26 consecutive games. It is during this stretch, Dark says, that "much of the outcome for the '74 season will be decided."

Dark advised his opponents not to be misled by the won-lost records of his pitching staff. Vida Blue and Ken Holtzman, 2-5 and 3-5, are much better than their records indicate, he said.

"There is no doubt in my mind that they will come around by the middle of June," Dark said. "Any team can use just three starters and one good bullpen man for the first two months of the season. That is because of all the off days. But from that moment on, a team that is going to pull ahead can only do so with a top notch pitching staff, and I believe we have that staff."

Tanner, at the same time, claimed the success of his team will depend on the number of players he can use, although he does not dispute Dark's pitching philosophy.

"It is my desire to use every player on any team," Tanner said. "You never know when someone has to go into a game, and if he is always sitting on the bench, he is worthless to you."

The Sox got into trouble in the very first inning yesterday when Stan Bahnsen issued four walks and gave up a bases-loaded homer to Angel Mangual. Jim Hunter coasted to his seventh win in beating the Sox for the 15th time in his career.

Bahnsen lost for the third time in eight decisions and failed to finish out the third inning.

Redwood's Elder Stars In Track

SANTA ROSA — Whether they were running, jumping or throwing, Marin County athletes turned in outstanding performances here Saturday in the Division III high school track and field meet.

Darrell Elder of Redwood High School led the way by setting records in the shot put (58-4¼) and discus (187-3½), and Marinites captured three other victories and a bundle of second and third-place finishes in the meet at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Top five in each event qualified for the Northern California meet Friday and Saturday at College of Marin, hosted by Terra Linda High.

New Orleans Backcourt Formidable

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The National Basketball Association's newest franchise today chose 17 veterans from an 85-man league pool, and the club's president claimed he now owns the best backcourt in professional basketball.

"We feel that's quite an accomplishment for our first day out," Fred Rosenfeld said.

The New Orleans club, presently without a nickname and a coach, signed Atlanta's "Pistol Pete" Maravich following a trade earlier this month and sent two or their draftees — Bob Kaufmann of Buffalo and Dean Meminger of New York — to the Hawks today as part of the deal.

Then the New Orleans team began choosing for itself.

"We took Stu Lantz from Detroit because we feel that a backcourt of Lantz wich Maravich gives us the kind of backcourt that we can claim to be the best in pro basketball," Rosenfeld said.

Besides Lantz and Maravich, the New Orleans club obtained Golden State Warriors' Jim Barnett to augment the backcourt.

The first roster of the new NBA franchise was highlighted by veterans with an average age of 28 and a tendency toward high scoring.

Dennis Awtrey, Chicago; Jim Barnett, Golden State; Walt Bellamy, Atlanta; John Block, Kansas City-Omaha; B. C. Coleman, Houston; Barry Clemens, Cleveland; Lamar Green, Phoenix; Nate Hawthorne, Los Angeles; Ollie Johnson, Portland; Bob Kauffman, Buffalo; Toby Kimball, Philadelphia; Steve Kuberski, Boston; Stu Lantz, Detroit; Dean Meminger, New York; Louis Nelson, Washington; Curtis Perry, Milwaukee, and Bud Stallworth, Seattle.

Redwood Wins 12th Consecutive

Redwood High School won its 12th straight baseball game Saturday night, a 13-3 trouncing of San Marin at Albert Field, to complete its championship Marin County Athletic League season with a 13-1 record.

Steve Spelman drove in five runs for the Giants with a two-run single in the first inning, a two-run triple in the third and an infield out in the fourth. Right-hander Ed Andersen picked up the victory to finish with a 9-0 record.

Happy Flyers Celebrating

MID-ICE CRASH — Philadelphia Flyers' Bill Clement (white jersey) and Boston Bruins' Gregg Sheppard collided at mid-ice in the first period yesterday at Philadelphia during the Stanley Cup playoff finale. (AP Wirephoto)

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Kate Smith, Bernie Parent and home ice were great advantages but the Philadelphia Flyers say there is really only one way to win the Stanley Cup—hard work.

The Flyers rolled up their sleeves yesterday and did a job on the Boston Bruins, taking a 1-0 decision to win the best-of-seven series four games to two and become the first National Hockey League expansion team to win the Stanley Cup.

"We didn't beat Boston by fighting," said winger Dave Schultz, the most penalized player in the league. "We beat Boston by good, honest hard work. They didn't realize what hard work is until we showed them. We kept giving that second effort."

The Flyers, who earned a reputation as the "Broad Street Bullies" while becoming the most penalized club in the NHL, used their tight-checking aggressive tactics to hold off the Bruins and make Rick MacLeish's first period goal stand up.

Flyers' goaltender Parent stopped 30 Boston and earned the Conn Smythe trophy as the Most Valuable Player in the playoffs but he really was tested only a few times.

"Sometimes there are only four or five times when you have to make good saves in a game, like today," he said. "Sometimes there are 11 or 12. We got the breaks today but the way you get the breaks is by working."

Defenseman Ed Van Impe, who has been with the Flyers since their inception in 1967, agreed with Parent.

"We worked too hard to lose it now," he said. "Hard work has to pay off. You can't just be lucky, you have to be good. Our sense of good is hard work."

The combination of the Flyers' hustling, bustling workman-like effort with the home-ice advantage and an appearance by Miss Smith added up to a huge mountain for the Bruins to climb.

The Flyers won all nine of their playoff games played at the Spectrum and have compiled an amazing 37-3-1 record in the 41 games at which Miss Smith's rendition of "God Bless America" has been played.

It was the Bruins who came out smoking early, however, firing 16 shots at Parent in the first period. But the Flyers made one of their eight first period shots count.

MacLeish tipped in a blue line shot by Andre Dupont at 14:38 and the fans settled in for a tense hockey game.

The Flyers tested Gilbert with a number of on-target drives, but the young goaltender was equal to the task, stopping everything shot at him and keeping the Bruins in contention.

Boston's hopes for some late-game heroics were dashed at 17:38 of the third period when defenseman Bobby Orr was whistled for holding in what Guidolin called "one of the worst calls in hockey."

Flyers' Coach Fred Shero said he didn't know his club had won the title until his players "began jumping onto the ice."

Then bedlam broke loose. Flyer Captain Bobby Clarke and Parent skated slowly around the ice, the coveted cup cradled in their arms and tears rolling down their cheeks.

The celebration carried over into the dressing room where the jubilant Flyers, wearing only their underwear, were joined in the champagne drinking by their wives, probably the first time women had joined a victory locker room celebration.

Parent was in tears and star defenseman Barry Ashbee, who nearly lost an eye when struck in the face by a puck in the semifinal series against New York, wore dark glasses and a contented smile. Gary Dornhoeffer, the wing who underwent surgery earlier this week on a separated shoulder, nearly passed out due to excessive medication but insisted on being with his team.

PAYING OFF

Caldwell's Big Trade

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — After some 40 games you'd have to say last winter's trade involving Willie McCovey and Mike Caldwell is working out just fine for both the San Diego Padres and the San Francisco Giants.

During yesterday's doubleheader split that took more than seven hours to complete, the standout players were Caldwell for the Giants and McCovey for the Padres.

Caldwell, a young left-hander who was 5-14 with San Diego last year, went the distance on a six hitter for his seventh victory of the year in the opener as the Giants won 8-2.

In the nightcap, McCovey hit the 15th grandslam of his career to tie Hank Aaron for the National League record and the Padres went on from there for a 12-inning, 10-7 victory and a split.

The only two runs Caldwell gave up to his former teammates in the first game were unearned and as a resultm he now hasn't allowed an earned run in his last 22 1-3 innings. Even better, he has given up only one earned run over the last 30 1-3 innings and only two runs over 48 1-3 innings.

"I don't feel I'm doing anything different now than in the past," Caldwell said. "Maybe my mental attitude about pitching is better. Also, it could be that the defense on the Giants seems to play its best when I'm pitching."

McCovey hit his grandslam off Tom Bradley in the fifth to give the Padres a 5-3 lead, then left in favor of Nate Colbert.

The big slugger, who also homered in his old home park on Saturday when the Giants won 4-2, wasn't around for the post-game question-and-answer period but he left word with a friend in the clubhouse that he was pleased with his accomplishment.

"It's always nice to hit a grandslam," McCovey said, "but I don't put too much stock in the feat since it's not something you can plan and work for.

San Diego officials claim McCovey's acquisition and play is one of the reasons why the club has drawn 342,408 home fans in 22 dates. That's about 150,000 more at this stage than in any previous year.

As for Caldwell, the Giants would be in deep trouble without his work, considering Bradley is only a 4-4 pitcher and Ron Bryant, last year's 24- game winner, has yet to win in 1974.

The Giants are off before meeting Atlanta in a twi-night doubleheader tomorrow.

Indy Track Officials In Meeting On Race Lineup

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Officials met today to thrash out an agreement on the lineup for Sunday's Indianapolis "500" auto race which would head off theatened legal action against the Indianapolis Motor Speedway by owners of cars which had no chance to qualify.

Nine car owners who filed the original protest late Saturday when qualifications ended before their cars had an opportunity to make the field had an early meeting scheduled with attorney Wright Hugus Jr. That was to be followed by a meeting of Hugus with Speedway vice president Joe Cloutier and chief steward Tom Binford.

At the latter meeting, Hugus said they would discuss his proposal for a 12th row of cars to start the race, with some of the non-qualified cars competing for the final three positions.

"I would hope this will be followed by a mutual announcement of an agreement," Hugus said.

Hugus, as spokesman for teams with non-qualified cars, said Sunday he would file a class action suit today unless the Speedway and the United States Auto Club reopened the time trials so at least six machines get a chance to make the field for the million-dollar race.

Entrants of nonqualified cars were given until 1 p.m. EDT to submit a petition to United States Auto Club signed by entrants of 33 cars now in the field and two alternates saying they agree to reopening the track for qualifications. If they are successful, Chief Steward Tom Binford said he would "reeconsider" extending the time trials.

Some car owners, especially those with the slowest cars in the field, said flatly they would not sign, because they would risk having their cars "bumped" by faster ones if qualifications are resumed.

That would leave attorney Wright Hugus Jr., representing the Roy Woods racing team and a spokesman for nonqualified teams, with the only alternative of going to court. He said he would.

At the conclusion of the time trials late Saturday, with A.J. Foyt assured of the pole position for the third time, entrants for nine cars filed a protest saying their drivers had no opportunity to make the field.

The protest was denied by USAC on grounds the qualifying line was broken by a car that got into the lineup for the second time. It made the field with rookie Johnny Parsons Jr. at the wheel, but he did not attempt to qualify the first time.

Thus, a series of controversies that started on the first Saturday of the time trials continued.

The car of defending "500" champion Gordon Johncock was impounded after its successful qualifying run Saturday but was cleared for the race hours later after a test showed its engine size met specifications.

Twenty-one cars were qualified Saturday, two were "bumped" by faster machines and another was withdrawn. As a result of heavy rains on both qualifying Saturdays, the time allotted for the trials was reduced from 14 hours to about 6 ½.

Tanner, Dark Agree: Pennant Chase To Commence June 14

CHICAGO (UPI) — As far as Oakland Manager Al Dark is concerned, the 1974 pennant chase will not begin until June 14.

Chicago White Sox Manager Chuck Tanner is in full agreement.

Dark, whose A's bombed the Sox 8-3 yesterday after losing 3-2 Saturday, said the early part of the baseball season is designed to give players "lots of time to rest and not too much time to get involved with long stretches of play."

The win pulled Oakland within three percentage points of the first place Sox in the American League West but Dark was looking at it in perspective.

"The real tough months are from the middle of June until the beginning of September," Dark said. "This is the time that a team with a good pitching staff can begin to pull away. Until that time, there are lots of off days, rain-outs and virtually no doubleheaders."

But beginning on June 14, Oakland plays 26 consecutive games. It is during this stretch, Dark says, that "much of the outcome for the '74 season will be decided."

Dark advised his opponents not to be misled by the won-lost records of his pitching staff. Vida Blue and Ken Holtzman, 2-5 and 3-5, are much better than their records indicate, he said.

"There is no doubt in my mind that they will come around by the middle of June," Dark said. "Any team can use just three starters and one good bullpen man for the first two months of the season. That is because of all the off days. But from that moment on, a team that is going to pull ahead can only do so with a top notch pitching staff, and I believe we have that staff."

Tanner, at the same time, claimed the success of his team will depend on the number of players he can use, although he does not dispute Dark's pitching philosophy.

"It is my desire to use every player on any team," Tanner said. "You never know when someone has to go into a game, and if he is always sitting on the bench, he is worthless to you."

The Sox got into trouble in the very first inning yesterday when Stan Bahnsen issued four walks and gave up a bases-loaded homer to Angel Mangual. Jim Hunter coasted to his seventh win in beating the Sox for the 15th time in his career.

Bahnsen lost for the third time in eight decisions and failed to finish out the third inning.

Redwood's Elder Stars In Track

SANTA ROSA — Whether they were running, jumping or throwing, Marin County athletes turned in outstanding performances here Saturday in the Division III high school track and field meet.

Darrell Elder of Redwood High School led the way by setting records in the shot put (58-4¼) and discus (187-3½), and Marinites captured three other victories and a bundle of second and third-place finishes in the meet at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Top five in each event qualified for the Northern California meet Friday and Saturday at College of Marin, hosted by Terra Linda High.

New Orleans Backcourt Formidable

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The National Basketball Association's newest franchise today chose 17 veterans from an 85-man league pool, and the club's president claimed he now owns the best backcourt in professional basketball.

"We feel that's quite an accomplishment for our first day out," Fred Rosenfeld said.

The New Orleans club, presently without a nickname and a coach, signed Atlanta's "Pistol Pete" Maravich following a trade earlier this month and sent two or their draftees — Bob Kaufmann of Buffalo and Dean Meminger of New York — to the Hawks today as part of the deal.

Then the New Orleans team began choosing for itself.

"We took Stu Lantz from Detroit because we feel that a backcourt of Lantz wich Maravich gives us the kind of backcourt that we can claim to be the best in pro basketball," Rosenfeld said.

Besides Lantz and Maravich, the New Orleans club obtained Golden State Warriors' Jim Barnett to augment the backcourt.

The first roster of the new NBA franchise was highlighted by veterans with an average age of 28 and a tendency toward high scoring.

Dennis Awtrey, Chicago; Jim Barnett, Golden State; Walt Bellamy, Atlanta; John Block, Kansas City-Omaha; B. C. Coleman, Houston; Barry Clemens, Cleveland; Lamar Green, Phoenix; Nate Hawthorne, Los Angeles; Ollie Johnson, Portland; Bob Kauffman, Buffalo; Toby Kimball, Philadelphia; Steve Kuberski, Boston; Stu Lantz, Detroit; Dean Meminger, New York; Louis Nelson, Washington; Curtis Perry, Milwaukee, and Bud Stallworth, Seattle.

Redwood Wins 12th Consecutive

Redwood High School won its 12th straight baseball game Saturday night, a 13-3 trouncing of San Marin at Albert Field, to complete its championship Marin County Athletic League season with a 13-1 record.

Steve Spelman drove in five runs for the Giants with a two-run single in the first inning, a two-run triple in the third and an infield out in the fourth. Right-hander Ed Andersen picked up the victory to finish with a 9-0 record.

Orlando Happy Over Franchise

Combined AP & UPI

ORLANDO, Fla. — "In the words of Hollywood, this is stupendous, colossal and fantastic," Orlando Mayor Carl Langford said upon learning his city has gained Saturday a World Football League franchise.

Yet with no name, no name players and less than two months until the first game, the team's biggest job may be attracting fans.

Already, sources say team owners are considering plans to reach fans in the hometowns of other teams beyond the Orlando area; travel agents are offering games in a package deal with a trip to nearby Walt Disney World.

NAPLES, Italy — Once on Saturday, but never on Sunday.

Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, playing in the Federation Cup women's tennis tournament here, won the deciding doubles match in Saturday's semi-finals but was beaten in the same situation in the finals yesterday.

Australia won the cup with a 2-1 victory over the United States which was climaxed when Evonne Goolagong and Janet Young defeated Walsh and Julie Heldman, 7-5, 8-6.

In singles earlier, Goolagong defeated Heldman, 6-1, 7-5, but Jeanne Evert evened things for the U.S. with a 2-6, 7-5, 6-4 triumph over Dianne Fromholtz.

The U.S. reached the finals by edging West Germany Saturday, 2-1, as the Walsh-Heldman duo downed Helga Masthoff and Katia Ebbinghaus, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1. That followed a Masthoff victory over Heldman, 6-2, 6-3, and an Evert triumph over Helga Hoesl, 6-4, 6-3.

Australia Saturday swept Great Britain, 3-0. Goolagong topped Virginia Wade, 6-4, 6-2; Fromholtz downed Glynis Coles, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2; and the Goolagong-Young duo whipped Wade-Susan Barker, 6-0, 6-2.

The Cup victory was the second straight for Australia, which has dominated since its inauguration in 1963.

were Ray Greene of San Rafael in the mile (4:17.8), Jeff Metteer of San Rafael in the 440-yard dash (49.2) and the San Marin mile relay team of Metteer, John Guth, Brad Kenville and Rob Clarke (3:26.2).

From Petaluma, Dan Aldridge won the 880 in a record 1:54.0, and John Sisler took the two-mile in a record 9:16.7 despite running into a spectator on the seventh lap.

Aldridge won a sizzling race in which Novato's George Cagle was second in 1:54.3 (best in Marin history) and Ty Hadley of Vintage (Napa) was third in 1:54.4.

Cagle also ran an all-time Marin best of 49.1 in the 440 trials before finishing third to Metteer in the finals in 49.8.

Green headed an outstanding mile field which saw Steve Locey of Tamalpais second in 4:23.4 and Dave Brainerd of Redwood fourth in 4:24.3.

Mike Johnson of Petaluma was third behind Elder in the shot in 52-0¾ and Mike Lamb of Tamalpais was fourth in the discus in 148-0.

Redwood's Mark Kilmer finished second in both the long jump (21-10½) and triple jump (43-6¼). Terra Linda's Harry Bolton was fifth in the long jump (20-7).

Another second place was gathered by Stuart Shepherd of Redwood in the pole vault (12-0). Jack Hagler of Redwood was third in the high jump (6-0).

Tamalpais' Shannon Bynum was third in the 220 (22.8), and in the two-mile, Tam's Kim Baez was fourth (9:39.6) and Drake's Larry Mastin fifth (9:43.8). Tam's Fred Adams was third in the 120-yard low hurdles.

San Jose Bows To Seattle In Soccer, 3-1

SEATTLE (UPI) — Pepe Fernandez scored the decisive goal in the Seattle Sounders' 3-1 North American Soccer League victory over the San Jose Earthquakes last night but he broke his leg in two places doing it. Saturday night San Jose edged visiting St. Louis, 3-2.

Fernandez' costly unassisted goal in the 78th minute of the game broke a 1-1 tie. San Jose's Paul Child had scored from Archie Roboostoff in the 71st minute before the crowd of 12,463. Sounder John Rowlands had scored in the 44th minute on a Fernandez assist.

Seattle scored it at the 78th minute with another goal by John Rowlands, this time with an assist by Hank Liotart.

Little Current Rests After Preakness Stakes Victory

NEW YORK (UPI) — Little Current, spectactular winner of the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico Saturday, rested quitely in his barn at Belmont Park today, awaiting the 106th running of the Belmont Stakes on June 8.

And not far away in the treeshaded stable area Cannonade, the Kentucky Derby winner who was third in the Maryland classic, quietly licked his wounds and also awaited the last of the Triple Crown classics.

Little Current's seven-length victory in the Preakness skyrocketed the colt to the top of the 3-year-old division—at least for the moment—and he already is the long-range favorite for the Belmont Stakes. The young horses have been beating one another all year long and none of them has been able to establish domination thus far. But until Little Current cut loose with a near record run in the Preakness with his 1:54 3-5 clocking coming with three-fifths of a second of Cannonero's stakes record, none of them had threatened a record either.

Neapolitan Way was closest to Little Current at the finish and a length ahead of Cannonade. This colt came out of the race with blood running freely from a cut on his left rear leg but trainer Larry Jennings expects Neapolitan Way to be ready for the Belmont Stakes also.

Other possible starters in the 1 ½ mile classic include Kin Run, Heir to the Line, Rube the Great and All Game. Hudson County, second in the Kentucky Derby but eighth in the Preakness, was a possibility, according to trainer Stanley "Skip" Shapoff.

Abdul-Jabbar Heads NBA All-Star Picks

NEW YORK (AP) — Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, winner of the Podoloff Trophy as the Most Valuable Player in the National Basketball Association, was named the NBA's first-team All-Star center for the fourth straight year, Commissioner Walter Kennedy announced.

But the massive Jabbar, 7-foot-2, finished second in the voting to New York guard Walt Frazier, who polled 15.291 of a possible 17 in the balloting, with each league city getting one full vote.

It was the third first-team selection for Frazier, a seven-year veteran. He led the Knicks in scoring with an average of 20.5 points per game, ranked fourth in the league in assists with 6.9, and made the NBA All-Defensive team for the sixth straight year.

Joining Abdul-Jabbar and Frazier on the first team were forwards John Havlicek of the champion Boston Celtics — also making his fourth consecutive first-team appearnce — and Rick Barry of the Golden State Warriors and guard Gail Goodrich of the Los Angeles Lakers.

Each member of the first team receives $500, while the second team gets $250.

No Bubbly For Somber Orr In Flyers' Quarters

By MILTON RICHMAN

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Bobby Orr suddenly remembered something he had to do.

He wanted to do it quietly and privately, too, with none of the media around to record it and make him out to be a big hero or something like that.

With only a towel draped around his midriff, Bobby Orr slipped past a group of newsmen talking to Phil Esposito in the dispirited dressing quarters of the beaten Boston Bruins and made his way through a back door leading to a small area next to the room where the Philadelphia Flyers were celebrating their Stanley Cup victory last evening.

DOOR OPEN

The door to that room was open and Orr spotted the Philadelphia player he was looking for—defenseman Joe Watson, a one-time member of the Bruins at whose marriage Orr had been best man.

Watson noticed Orr immdiately also.

Bobby Orr pumped his hand and congratulated him. They talked about old times and about Watson's wedding.

"How long ago was it?" Orr inquired.

"Five years ago," said Watson.

"I can't believe it," Orr said.

FIVE YEARS

"It's five years, alright," Watson insisted. "Five years almost to the day. Marianne and I were married May 17, 1969."

Orr shooked his head.

Now it was Joe Watson's turn to think of something. He wasn't being a very good host.

Here he was standing with a bottle of champagne in his hand and he hadn't offered any to Bobby Orr, not only his best man but the best hockey player in the entire universe.

Joe Watson would take care of that right now.

"Would you like a little drink, Bobby?" he asked, offering the bottle to the Bruins' defenseman.

Bobby Orr said no, thanks.

"Why not?" Joe Watson wrinkled his brow.

ONLY ORR

"I don't deserve it," said Bobby Orr.

Only Bobby Orr could say a thing like that. Nobody else in his right mind would. Bobby Orr meant what he said. he wouldn't take a drink from Joe Watson.

Over and over again in the Flyers' dressing room the triumphant Philadelphians lavished repeated praise upon goalie Bernie Parent, voted Most Valuable Player in the playoffs, and their hard working leader, Bobby Clarke, but virtually everyone of them had something to say about Orr's truly magnificent all-around performance.

ORR PRAISED

"He says he doesn't deserve it? said Clarke incredulously, when he heard of Orr's refusal to have some champagne. "He won two games for them by himself. How much more can he do?"

Terry Crisp, the Flyers' curly-haired center, had this to say about Orr:

"He worked as hard as any man I've ever seen. I wouldn't say I feel sorry for him. He wouldn't have felt sorry for us if we had lost, but I do feel respect and admiration for the man."

Good as Bobby Orr was, he wasn't good enough to keep the Flyers from becoming the first expansion team to win the Cup.

When it was all over, and the Flyers had beaten the Bruins, 1-0, Orr sipped beer from a wax container and said, "they worked harder than us and they beat us. It's as simple as that. They're number one, and we're number two.

"I know how those guys feel in that other room," he went on looking over toward the Flyers' quarters. "All summer long, people will see them and say 'they're go the Stanley Cup champions.' There's no feeling like it in the world. They worked their tails off and they deserved to win. They just worked harder than us, that's all."

Injured Jockey Still Critical

RUTLAND, Vt. (UPI) — Apprentice jockey Donald Baratini remained in critical condition at Rutland Hospital today from head injuries he suffered Friday night at Green Mountain Race Track.

Baratini was injured in the first race when his mount, Flying Master, fell and a second horse stumbled over them and also fell.

The second rider, Steve Kissielewski, 31, suffered a broken collarbone.

San Rafael Pair Wins In Doubles

CONCORD — Freshman Bob Greene and sophomore Mark Sabella of San Rafael High School are perhaps the youngest team to ever win the North Coast Section doubles tennis title.

Greene and Sabella, second seeded, defeated Bill Wee and Chris Kirley of Ygnacio Valley High (Concord) of the Diablo Valley Athletic League in the finals Saturday, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4. Wee and Kirley were top-seeded.

Doug Carlisle of Terra Linda High advanced to the finals of the singles before losing.

Greene and Sabella had byes in the first two rounds and won in the semi-finals, 6-4, 6-1, over a team from the Mission Valley Athletic League.

It was the first time the pair had played doubles together. They were singles players on the San Rafael High School team.

The tournament was played on the Willow Pass tennis courts.

I WAS A 116 GOLFER!
WITHIN 10 DAYS I SHOT 74!

My 10-day scores were 116-99-97-93-87-88-82-79-78-74! A total of 42 strokes off! My name is Allan Sadler. I'm 55 years old, had dozens of lessons, own 64 books on the "golf swing" and bought four different sets of clubs in five years. And hit thousands of balls on the range. The result? 116! I hated golf! But who can quit?

One morning I awakened at 4 o'clock, thinking of the "swing". Obviously, I thought, if all the books and pros are right, we'd all be playing good golf. But we aren't. Therefore, we're stupid. But this couldn't be true, either. A vital "something" had to be missing from this huge mass of instruction.

I'd studied the books and the actual swing of the top professionals — in person, in movies, on video tape. What was it the pros had in common? As you know, many of the greatest inventions are born in a flash of intuition, of understanding. And I, a 116 golfer, had that "flash" one dark morning. I got up, tested it in front of a mirror — and waited for dawn. I knew I had it! That "something" never mentioned by pros because they aren't aware of it!

For 10 days I tested this discovery — from driver to putter. It worked with each and every club in the bag. Drives were long and straight! Putts sank like crazy! And utterly simple! No thought of hip shift, knee action, etc., etc., ad nauseum. My friends call it a "magic move" and a magic move it is! Because every friend's handicap has plummeted! It has to be simple to go from 116 to 74 in 10 days! It is simple! So simple you'll wonder why you or some pro didn't think of it. Only one single thing to think of! And so very easy to do! The "magic move" of every top star of golf. The "magic move" you can make your very first time out! To cut your score drastically!

My booklet describes the "magic move" in detail. And, importantly, it tells you the "feel", the "sensation" of this phenomenal move. But the flight of your drives, the sinking of your putts will prove how right I am! You have to agree for a fellow to go from 116 to 74 that some miracle has happened! Remember, this is written by an ex-duffer who knows exactly how you feel. Not by a pro who devotes his life to golf!

Now you can make your own miracle. Your own "magic move". Your own consistently lower scores. For only $6. ($6.36 in Calif.!) Cash is o.k. In a hurry to slash your score? Add $1 for Rush or wait three weeks. How confident am I of this "magic move"? I fully guarantee your absolute satisfaction — or your money back! It's now so simple to play good golf — and costs about half a lesson! Send your order today. Remember, 10 times out and you'll clobber your handicap with the "Magic Move". Orlando Happy Over Franchise

Combined AP & UPI

ORLANDO, Fla. — "In the words of Hollywood, this is stupendous, colossal and fantastic," Orlando Mayor Carl Langford said upon learning his city has gained Saturday a World Football League franchise.

Yet with no name, no name players and less than two months until the first game, the team's biggest job may be attracting fans.

Already, sources say team owners are considering plans to reach fans in the hometowns of other teams beyond the Orlando area; travel agents are offering games in a package deal with a trip to nearby Walt Disney World.

For Walsh: It's Never On Sunday

NAPLES, Italy — Once on Saturday, but never on Sunday.

Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, playing in the Federation Cup women's tennis tournament here, won the deciding doubles match in Saturday's semi-finals but was beaten in the same situation in the finals yesterday.

Australia won the cup with a 2-1 victory over the United States which was climaxed when Evonne Goolagong and Janet Young defeated Walsh and Julie Heldman, 7-5, 8-6.

In singles earlier, Goolagong defeated Heldman, 6-1, 7-5, but Jeanne Evert evened things for the U.S. with a 2-6, 7-5, 6-4 triumph over Dianne Fromholtz.

The U.S. reached the finals by edging West Germany Saturday, 2-1, as the Walsh-Heldman duo downed Helga Masthoff and Katia Ebbinghaus, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1. That followed a Masthoff victory over Heldman, 6-2, 6-3, and an Evert triumph over Helga Hoesl, 6-4, 6-3.

Australia Saturday swept Great Britain, 3-0. Goolagong topped Virginia Wade, 6-4, 6-2; Fromholtz downed Glynis Coles, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2; and the Goolagong-Young duo whipped Wade-Susan Barker, 6-0, 6-2.

The Cup victory was the second straight for Australia, which has dominated since its inauguration in 1963.

TRACK

were Ray Greene of San Rafael in the mile (4:17.8), Jeff Metteer of San Rafael in the 440-yard dash (49.2) and the San Marin mile relay team of Metteer, John Guth, Brad Kenville and Rob Clarke (3:26.2).

From Petaluma, Dan Aldridge won the 880 in a record 1:54.0, and John Sisler took the two-mile in a record 9:16.7 despite running into a spectator on the seventh lap.

Aldridge won a sizzling race in which Novato's George Cagle was second in 1:54.3 (best in Marin history) and Ty Hadley of Vintage (Napa) was third in 1:54.4.

Cagle also ran an all-time Marin best of 49.1 in the 440 trials before finishing third to Metteer in the finals in 49.8.

Green headed an outstanding mile field which saw Steve Locey of Tamalpais second in 4:23.4 and Dave Brainerd of Redwood fourth in 4:24.3.

Mike Johnson of Petaluma was third behind Elder in the shot in 52-0¾ and Mike Lamb of Tamalpais was fourth in the discus in 148-0.

Redwood's Mark Kilmer finished second in both the long jump (21-10½) and triple jump (43-6¼). Terra Linda's Harry Bolton was fifth in the long jump (20-7).

Another second place was gathered by Stuart Shepherd of Redwood in the pole vault (12-0). Jack Hagler of Redwood was third in the high jump (6-0).

Tamalpais' Shannon Bynum was third in the 220 (22.8), and in the two-mile, Tam's Kim Baez was fourth (9:39.6) and Drake's Larry Mastin fifth (9:43.8). Tam's Fred Adams was third in the 120-yard low hurdles.

San Jose Bows To Seattle In Soccer, 3-1

SEATTLE (UPI) — Pepe Fernandez scored the decisive goal in the Seattle Sounders' 3-1 North American Soccer League victory over the San Jose Earthquakes last night but he broke his leg in two places doing it. Saturday night San Jose edged visiting St. Louis, 3-2.

Fernandez' costly unassisted goal in the 78th minute of the game broke a 1-1 tie. San Jose's Paul Child had scored from Archie Roboostoff in the 71st minute before the crowd of 12,463. Sounder John Rowlands had scored in the 44th minute on a Fernandez assist.

Seattle scored it at the 78th minute with another goal by John Rowlands, this time with an assist by Hank Liotart.

Foyt Installed As 5-1 Pick At Indy

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — A. J. Foyt was installed a 5-1 choice today by Reno oddsmaker North Swanson to win Sunday's Indianapolis 500.

Gordon Johncock, Bobby Unser and Wally Dallenbach were spotted at 8-1; Mario Andretti, Mike Hiss and Johnny Rutherford at 10-1; Mike Mosley and David Hobbs at 12-1; and Bill Vukovich, Al Unser and Garry Bettnehausen at 15-1.

Little Current Rests After Preakness Stakes Victory

NEW YORK (UPI) — Little Current, spectactular winner of the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico Saturday, rested quitely in his barn at Belmont Park today, awaiting the 106th running of the Belmont Stakes on June 8.

And not far away in the treeshaded stable area Cannonade, the Kentucky Derby winner who was third in the Maryland classic, quietly licked his wounds and also awaited the last of the Triple Crown classics.

Little Current's seven-length victory in the Preakness skyrocketed the colt to the top of the 3-year-old division—at least for the moment—and he already is the long-range favorite for the Belmont Stakes. The young horses have been beating one another all year long and none of them has been able to establish domination thus far. But until Little Current cut loose with a near record run in the Preakness with his 1:54 3-5 clocking coming with three-fifths of a second of Cannonero's stakes record, none of them had threatened a record either.

Neapolitan Way was closest to Little Current at the finish and a length ahead of Cannonade. This colt came out of the race with blood running freely from a cut on his left rear leg but trainer Larry Jennings expects Neapolitan Way to be ready for the Belmont Stakes also.

Other possible starters in the 1 ½ mile classic include Kin Run, Heir to the Line, Rube the Great and All Game. Hudson County, second in the Kentucky Derby but eighth in the Preakness, was a possibility, according to trainer Stanley "Skip" Shapoff.

Abdul-Jabbar Heads NBA All-Star Picks

NEW YORK (AP) — Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, winner of the Podoloff Trophy as the Most Valuable Player in the National Basketball Association, was named the NBA's first-team All-Star center for the fourth straight year, Commissioner Walter Kennedy announced.

But the massive Jabbar, 7-foot-2, finished second in the voting to New York guard Walt Frazier, who polled 15.291 of a possible 17 in the balloting, with each league city getting one full vote.

It was the third first-team selection for Frazier, a seven-year veteran. He led the Knicks in scoring with an average of 20.5 points per game, ranked fourth in the league in assists with 6.9, and made the NBA All-Defensive team for the sixth straight year.

Joining Abdul-Jabbar and Frazier on the first team were forwards John Havlicek of the champion Boston Celtics — also making his fourth consecutive first-team appearnce — and Rick Barry of the Golden State Warriors and guard Gail Goodrich of the Los Angeles Lakers.

Each member of the first team receives $500, while the second team gets $250.

No Bubbly For Somber Orr In Flyers' Quarters

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Bobby Orr suddenly remembered something he had to do.

He wanted to do it quietly and privately, too, with none of the media around to record it and make him out to be a big hero or something like that.

With only a towel draped around his midriff, Bobby Orr slipped past a group of newsmen talking to Phil Esposito in the dispirited dressing quarters of the beaten Boston Bruins and made his way through a back door leading to a small area next to the room where the Philadelphia Flyers were celebrating their Stanley Cup victory last evening.

Burroughs Hits In Kansas City

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Jeff Burroughs is one person who will not receive the traditional "thank you for coming" announcement from the Kansas City Royals.

Burroughs, the 23-year old Texas Rangers' slugger who now leads the major leagues with 41 runs-batted-in, padded that total considerably at Kansas City the past four days, driving in 10 runs with nine hits in 16 trips to the plate.

"You could hit against Walter Johnson in this (the Royals') park and still have a good game here," Burroughs said yesterday after driving home four runs that carried the Rangers to an 8-3 victory over Kansas City. "This is just a good hitting ballpark. You can't beat the astroturf.

"Anytime you hit the ball on the ground, it scoots right through. It doesn't matter who's pitching."

Burroughs, who was 4-for-5, singled home a run in the first, singled in two more in the fourth and then drove home one more in the seventh to provide Jackie Brown, in relief of David Clyde, with his first win of the season.

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland swept a doubleheader from Detroit, 2-1 and 9-4, California topped Minnesota 4-2 before losing 4-2, Boston dumped Baltimore twice 11-2 and 6-4, the New York Yankees split with Milwaukee, taking the first 6-2 and the Brewers winning the second 3-1 and Oakland upended the Chicago White Sox 8-3.

In the National League, Montreal swept the New York Mets 7-4 and 5-0, Philadelphia split with Pittsburgh, the Phils winning 3-2 and the Pirates coming back 2-1, St. Louis downed the Chicago Cubs 6-5, Cincinnati beat Houston 7-1, Atlanta stopped Los Angeles 4-2 and San Francisco divided with San Diego, winning 8-2 before the Padres won 10-7 in 12 innings.

Indians 2-9, Tigers 1-4

Jack Brohamer's two run homer combined with Gaylord Perry's two-hit pitching gave the Tribe the win in the opener and Buddy Bell belted another two run blast in the nightcap to help Bob Johnson to his second victory.

Red Sox 11, 6, Orioles 2, 4

Carlton Fisk smacked a two-run homer in the ninth inning of the nightcap to provide the Red Sox with their sweep. In the first game, a 17-hit attack, led by Rico Petrocelli's four singles, allowed Reggie Cleveland to pick up his fourth win in six decisions.

California 4-2, Minnesota 2-4

Nolan Ryan struck out 12 batters in the opener to outduel the Twins' ace Bert Blyleven. Paul Schaal's two run single was the big hit in a four-run Angels' eighth. Jim Holt collected two singles and two doubles to help the Twins gain a split in the second game.

Yankees 6-1, Brewers 1-3

After Lou Piniella's bases-loaded three-run double highlighted a four-run seventh inning to carry the Yanks to victory in the opener, Johnny Briggs' two-run homer in the sixth earned the Brewers' a second game split.

Almost, But Not Quite For Marin

PLEASANT HILL — Almost, but not quite.

College of Marin runners turned in a pair of outstanding performances here Saturday, but neither was enough to earn a spot in next week's state track and field meet. They were competing in the Northern California championships at Diablo Valley College.

Alfred Kellough finished fifth in the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.5 seconds. Top four qualified, and the barely-beaten Kellough was clocked in the same time as the fourth-place finisher.

Pete Sweeney set a school record of 14:26.2, but finished eighth in a strong field in the three-mile run. He brokeby 12 seconds the old school mark at 14:38.8, set in 1972 by Mike Arago.

Two other Marinites competed. Greg Biber was eighth in the 440 intermediate hurdles dash in 57.1, and Dan Turek was 10th in the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 10:24.

Five Age Group Swim Marks For By McCollister

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Terra Linda school teacher Jane McCollister set five national age group records over the weekend at the National Masters Short Course Swimming Championships.

Recently turned 55, Mrs. McCollister was competing in the 55-59 age group for the first time in the nationals. She already holds numerous records in the 50-54 age group.

Jane won and set records in all five freestyle events — 50-yard (34.5), 100-yard (1:11.8), 200-yard (2:56.9), 500-yard (7:46.3) and 1,650-yard (28:46.9).

Mrs. McCollister was the only member of the Marin Aquatic Club competing in the Amateur Athletic Union meet which ran Friday through Sunday.

San Rafael Tennis Star Bacon Wins

VENTURA — Dave Bacon of San Rafael, who went south in search of greater glory, has found it.

Bacon, playing for San Diego City College, won the state junior college doubles tennis championship here Saturday, defeating Bill Shine and John Hubbell of Foothill College (Los Altos in the finals, 6-1, 6-4. Bacon's teammate was Ted Williams.

Rocky McGuire of Canada Redwood City took the singles over Mike Nissley of Santa Monica, 7-4, 6-4.

Mark Rodnick of College of Marin was beaten in his first singles match, but went on to take the consolation title.

He lost to Hank Pfister of Bakersfield, 6-1, 6-3, but went on to win three straight, defeating Mark Simon of Pasadena in Saturday's finals, 6-3, 6-0.

DOLCINI TRIUMPHS WITH WRIST

LAS VEGAS — You can take the wristwrestling out of Petaluma, but you can't take the Petaluman out of wristwrestling.

Jim Dolcini of Petaluma made the trip along U.S. 80 to the MGM Grand Hotel here, and yesterday won the national heavyweight title when he defeated George Ludwigson of Brooklyn, N.Y. Dolcini weighed 238 pounds and Ludwigson weighed 228.

The world championships will be held in Petaluma in October. Hustler Bobby Riggs appeared here to challenge Nevada state women's champion Jackie Allard, and to announce he may come to Petaluma for the world championships.

Howe Beams After WHA Title Victory

HOUSTON (UPI) — Beaming Gordie Howe, the champagne dripping off what was left of his gray hair, just wanted to sit. He was in no hurry to pull off his Houston Aeros' uniform for possibly the last time.

At 46, the veteran National Hockey League star had just collected four assists to direct the Aeros of the World Hockey Association to a 6-2 win over Chicago's Cougars and to the World Hockey Association championship last night.

Howe said the championship was more satisfying than the four he won during his 25 years with the Detroit Red Wings.

"This one probably means a little more," he said.

It was Gordie and sons Mark and Marty who moved south less than one year ago for $5 million for four years. Although Gordie's contract called for only one playing year, in the wet and wild Aeros' locker room he hinted otherwise.

"I've got a lot of thinking to do between now and next year," he said.

The Aeros, with Gordie and Marty on one offensive line, and Mark as defenseman, led their division throughout the year. And last night's win, the fourth straight over Chicago, was even more of a breeze.

Scoring three goals in each of the first two periods, Houston got two goals from Murray Hall in a span of 68 seconds after Larry Lund opened scoring at 14:32 of the first period.

Lund slapped in a rebound past Chicago goalie Cam Newton. Hall scored on a perfect play, Gordie to Mark to Hall right in front of the net as Newton came out to face Mark. Then Hall scored on a deflection of a shot by Gordie.

Andre Hinse and Gordon Labossiere added goals in the second period and Lund finished Aeros' scoring with 4:08 showing.

Cougar Jan Popiel broke goalie Don McLeod's shutout by firing in a goal with 2:41 left in the second period and Chicago got a final goal from Rich Morris in the last period.

Burroughs Hits In Kansas City

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Jeff Burroughs is one person who will not receive the traditional "thank you for coming" announcement from the Kansas City Royals.

Burroughs, the 23-year old Texas Rangers' slugger who now leads the major leagues with 41 runs-batted-in, padded that total considerably at Kansas City the past four days, driving in 10 runs with nine hits in 16 trips to the plate.

"You could hit against Walter Johnson in this (the Royals') park and still have a good game here," Burroughs said yesterday after driving home four runs that carried the Rangers to an 8-3 victory over Kansas City. "This is just a good hitting ballpark. You can't beat the astroturf.

"Anytime you hit the ball on the ground, it scoots right through. It doesn't matter who's pitching."

Burroughs, who was 4-for-5, singled home a run in the first, singled in two more in the fourth and then drove home one more in the seventh to provide Jackie Brown, in relief of David Clyde, with his first win of the season.

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland swept a doubleheader from Detroit, 2-1 and 9-4, California topped Minnesota 4-2 before losing 4-2, Boston dumped Baltimore twice 11-2 and 6-4, the New York Yankees split with Milwaukee, taking the first 6-2 and the Brewers winning the second 3-1 and Oakland upended the Chicago White Sox 8-3.

In the National League, Montreal swept the New York Mets 7-4 and 5-0, Philadelphia split with Pittsburgh, the Phils winning 3-2 and the Pirates coming back 2-1, St. Louis downed the Chicago Cubs 6-5, Cincinnati beat Houston 7-1, Atlanta stopped Los Angeles 4-2 and San Francisco divided with San Diego, winning 8-2 before the Padres won 10-7 in 12 innings.

Indians 2-9, Tigers 1-4

Jack Brohamer's two run homer combined with Gaylord Perry's two-hit pitching gave the Tribe the win in the opener and Buddy Bell belted another two run blast in the nightcap to help Bob Johnson to his second victory.

Red Sox 11, 6, Orioles 2, 4

Carlton Fisk smacked a two-run homer in the ninth inning of the nightcap to provide the Red Sox with their sweep. In the first game, a 17-hit attack, led by Rico Petrocelli's four singles, allowed Reggie Cleveland to pick up his fourth win in six decisions.

California 4-2, Minnesota 2-4

Nolan Ryan struck out 12 batters in the opener to outduel the Twins' ace Bert Blyleven. Paul Schaal's two run single was the big hit in a four-run Angels' eighth. Jim Holt collected two singles and two doubles to help the Twins gain a split in the second game.

Yankees 6-1, Brewers 1-3

After Lou Piniella's bases-loaded three-run double highlighted a four-run seventh inning to carry the Yanks to victory in the opener, Johnny Briggs' two-run homer in the sixth earned the Brewers' a second game split.

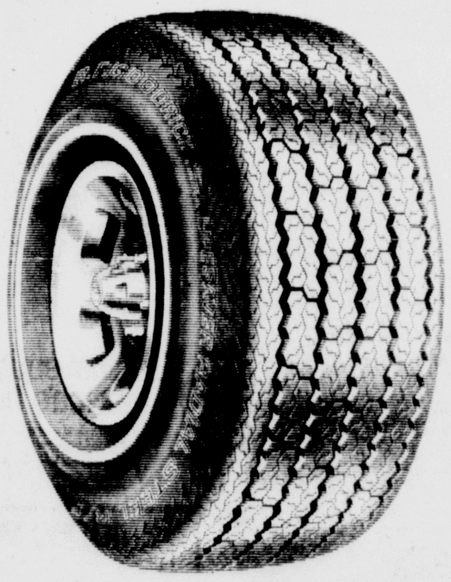
Goodrich's first steel belted radial sale



$53

For popular whitewall sizes GR70-15, GR70-14, FR70-15 and FR70-14 plus Fed. Ex. tax of $3.04 to $3.22 and trade.

$43...for whitewall sizes ER70-14 and DR70-13 plus Fed. Ex. tax of $2.38 to $2.79 and trade.

$63...for whitewall sizes LR78-15, LR70-15, JR70-15, HR70-15 and HR70-14 plus Fed. Ex. tax of $3.47 to $3.86 and trade.

Guaranteed by Goodrich for 40,000 miles. Its strength and durability come from the steel belt cushioned between two double Dynacor® rayon cord belts, for your driving comfort. 40,000 mile guarantee: In normal driving, you'll get at least 40,000 miles of treadwear from the Lifesaver® Radial Steel R/S on your car. If you don't get 40,000 miles, take the guarantee document back to any BFG retailer. He'll allow you credit for the difference toward the then current exchange/adjustment price of new ones. And add a small service charge.

Get up to a 10% savings in gas mileage. Recent tests have proven that a set of radials—like BFG's Lifesaver Radial Steel R/S—can yield a significant savings in gas mileage. Depending, of course, on how much super highway vs. stop-and-go driving you do.

Curl's Dream Comes True

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — When it comes to finding people who have their fondest wishes materialize, a person needs go no farther than Rodney Dean Curl, 31, a short, chunky Wintu Indian who is now one of the hottest things going on the professional golf tour.

Curl emerged as No. 1 yesterday from the best field the Professional Golfer's Association could muster for its first designated tournament and in so doing held off the challenge of the man who makes most pros quake — Jack Nicklaus.

The 5-foot-5 Curl edged Nicklaus by a stroke to win the Colonial National Tournament and the $50,000 that went with it and thus brought to life a dream he had had the night before.

Nicklaus was forced to roll in a 12-foot birdie putt on the final hole just to break a tie with Chuck Courtney for second place. Nicklaus, with a final round 68 and a 72-hole total of three-under 277, won $28,500 while Courtney — who began the day two shots in front of the field — captured third place money of $17,750 with a 278 total.

The only other golfer to finish under par for the tournament was 54-year-old Julius Boros, a two-time champion over the tough course, who closed with a 68 for a 279 score. He pocketed $11,750.

Lee Trevino, who came within two shots of the lead before running afoul of the final holes, shot an even-par 280 and won $10,250 in this second richest tournament played in 1974.

"I dreamed I would beat Nicklaus by a stroke," said Curl, who fired a two-under 68 yesterday to come from two strokes off the lead and finish with a four-under 276 over the exacting Colonial Country Club course.

Curl began the final round of the Colonial two strokes back of Courtney, and one stroke behind Curl was Nicklaus.

After 15 holes of yesterday's round, played in hot, humid, windy weather, those three golfers were deadlocked at three under par.

At that point, however, Curl rolled in a 30-foot putt on the 16th green which boosted him in front and by the time he had parred the final two holes and had retreated under a shade tree to await the final shots of Nicklaus and Cortney behind him he had built a two-shot lead.

HAPPY MOMENT — Redding's Rod Curl yesterday hugged the Colonial National golf tournament trophy after winning the $50,000 first prize at Fort Worth, Tex.

Original equipment on some of America's finest new 1973 cars
- Guaranteed to give 40,000 miles of tread wear
- Superb road handling, instant steering response, excellent cornering
- Super-fast traction of Firestone radial construction
- Strong line of defense against road hazards with two tough steel belts under the tread

40,000 MILE GUARANTEE
Firestone Steel Radial 500 tires are guaranteed to give you 40,000 miles of tread wear in normal passenger use on the same car. If they don't, take your guarantee to any Firestone Store or participating Dealer. He'll replace the tire with a new one and give you credit for the mileage not received based on the then current adjustment price (approximate national average selling price) plus federal excise tax. A small service charge may be added.
